SENATE MAY FORCE POINCARE TO YIELD ON RUHR CONTROL

Majority Favors Giving Experts' Committee a Free Hand in Reparations Solution.

Would Make Issue of Financial Reform Bill Should Premier Reject Their Advice.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—It is more than possible that the reports of the experts' committees will produce a French Government crisis. If Premier Poincaré does not accept the experts' recommendation for abolition of the Franco-Belgian Régie now operating the Ruhr and Rhineland railroads and of the customs barrier between the Ruhr and Rhineland and the rest of Germany, the indications are that he will face in the Senate opposition he cannot overcome.

The position of the Premier is rendered more difficult by the fact his renunciation of much of his Ruhr program may displease the Nationalist majority which controls the Chamber, but which does not control the upper house. Of course the prospects of payment held out by the acceptance of the experts' plan may have much to do with the attitude of the Chamber.

When M. Poincaré posed the question of confidence to the Senate last night on the issue of reform of the electoral laws, he won by 16 majority. It is common knowledge that if he had not put the existence of the Government at stake he would not have had a majority, and important members of the Senate are authority for the statement that the Senate kept him in office on the tacit understanding that he would not interfere with the experts' work.

Senate Leftists in Control.

Unlike the Chamber, the Senate is in control of the Left, and the Left, not liking M. Poincaré's Ruhr policy, distinctly favors giving the experts a free rein to work out a solution of the reparation problem, believing France will gain by sacrificing some of the things the Nationalists have been claiming in return for support of world public opinion in proceeding on the basis the experts' committees may advise.

I understand that if the Premier shows unwillingness to change his plans to a degree sufficient to accord with the experts' recommendations the Senate will make an issue on M. Poincaré's request for passage of the measure giving him power to make budget reductions by decree. This measure is much disliked by the Left, and M. Poincaré's enemies could muster more votes on it than on any other pending question.

The Senate leaders offer M. Poincaré the bargain of giving up the Ruhr railroads and customs barrier in exchange for the decree power he asks. Last night's vote indicates that the Senate may be able to make him accept their offer or face an adverse vote. In the latter event two names are mentioned for the Premiership—M. Briand and M. Barthou—with indications that M. Barthou would be favored as Premier on a platform of working out French policy in accord with the experts.

Two or three days ago semi-official reports made it appear that M. Poincaré was willing to make concessions to meet the experts, but from the same quarters yesterday and today come intimations he has not decided to adopt this course and regards the certainty of what France can get from the Ruhr as better than the conclusions of the experts which the Poincarists say have the basic fault of depending on German good-will.

Whether or not that truly represents the attitude of the harassed French Premier, the fact remains that there has grown up in France a tremendous demand that the Government shall do its best to accept the experts' plans, even at the price of further sacrifices.

May Find a Way Out.

It may be that M. Poincaré will find a way to make concessions without being open to the charge of having abandoned Ruhr occupation. From what can be learned of the details of the experts' plans, under them French and Belgian troops could remain in the Ruhr and it is even suggested that the French trade their hold on the Ruhr railroads against a renewal of the contracts between the Ruhr industrialists and the occupying authorities. This would still leave part of the Ruhr plan in effect, and it is thought that it should not be difficult for Berlin to persuade the Ruhr industrialists to renew the agreements, which expire in April, seeing that the experts plan a loan to enable the Reich to pay for deliveries in kind, which would include deliveries made under the Ruhr agreements.

The experts expect to complete their report by March 8 or 10. It will take the Chamber about two weeks to finish with the new tax bills, so these will come before the Senate just when the Government should be giving an indication of its attitude on the experts' report. That is where M. Poincaré's opponents in the Senate plan to have a showdown.

EGYPTIAN OFFICIALS OPEN TOMB BY FORCE

HEAVY LID IS LOWERED

Carter's Appeal Will Be Heard in Court Today—Visitors Soon to Be Admitted to the Tomb.

LUXOR, Feb. 22.—This afternoon, acting under Government orders, Pierre Lacau, Director General of the Antiquities Service, accompanied by the Mudir, the Chief of Police, the Chief Inspector of Antiquities and a police escort forced the doors of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb and the laboratory.

M. Lacau this morning sent a letter to Howard Carter asking for the keys. Mr. Carter replied that as the action was being heard in the courts tomorrow it would be wrong for him to hand over the keys.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon four workmen started to file through the eyes of the two locks securing the outer wooden door, care being taken not to injure the door. Next the steel inner gate and its chains were tackled, the whole operation taking forty-five minutes.

M. Lacau and his staff then entered and inspected the sepulchral hall.

The lid of the sarcophagus nine days ago was left suspended by ropes which were found to have stood the strain. Planks of wood were taken in and it is understood these were placed across the open top of the sarcophagus and the lid lowered onto them.

The inner steel gate and the outer door were then closed with new padlocks and the party proceeded to the laboratory, forced the padlocks and resecured the doors with Government locks. A full report of the proceedings was drawn up by M. Lacau.

Great Excitement in Luxor.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—After remaining closed nine days the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen was forcibly opened today by the Egyptian Government. A guard of soldiers was drawn up and many tourists were present.

The Minister of Works yesterday ordered Pierre Lacau of the Egyptian Antiquities Department to open the tomb today, and great excitement prevailed at Luxor. It was known to every one that Howard Carter, representing the Carnarvon expedition, would not surrender the keys to the locks which secured the doors of the tomb, and that the Government officials must therefore cut the locks to gain entrance.

M. Lacau, accompanied by M. Engelbach, Inspector of Antiquities of Upper Egypt, the Governor of Kenah Province, the Mayor of Luxor, the Chief of Police of the district and native workmen with chisels, crowbars and hack-saws, arrived at the tomb at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, the workmen sawed off the locks of the outer and inner doors, thus permitting entrance to the tomb.

The electric lights were turned on and a careful inspection showed that no damage had been done. After covering several of the objects to prevent dust settling, the top of the sarcophagus was covered with thin boards, supports were placed under the lid and new locks were attached to the doors, which were again closed.

The party then went to the tomb of Seti II., which is being utilized as a laboratory and storehouse for the objects taken from the tomb. Here also the locks were removed, and pieces of the shrine, which were more or less exposed to the weather, were wrapped in protective covers.

LIMITED PUBLICITY ON ALL TAX RETURNS IS VOTED BY HOUSE

GENERAL PUBLICITY BARRED

MORE INSURGENTS GO OVER

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The House of Representatives voted today by 158 to 100 to allow the inspection of income tax returns of individuals and corporations by the House Ways and Means Committee, the Senate Finance Committee, as well as by any special committee of either body; also to let any State call upon the Federal Government for the income data of any corporation, regardless of whether the State had an income tax law of its own.

Representative Frear of Wisconsin, Republican insurgent, offered an amendment which would make all tax returns open to the unlimited inspection of the public. This was defeated. Even Mr. Garner declined to support this move.

This action for publicity on income tax data was the principal event of today's debate. Second in importance was the announcement by Representative Longworth, floor leader of the regular Republicans, that eight or nine insurgent Republicans were now planning to rejoin the party ranks.

When during the debate Representative Tilson proposed an amendment, as previously offered by Representative Boyce, Democrat of Delaware, allowing the income tax details only to the House Ways and Means Committee, Senate Finance Committee, or a special committee, and it won by the narrow vote of 127 to 125, the Democrats immediately demanded tellers. This move sent the Republicans scurrying to get in all the members possible. Even Speaker Gillett was summoned. On the teller vote the Tilson amendment carried by a vote of 158 to 139. Then the Moore amendment, as amended by Mr. Tilson, was passed by a divisional vote of 158 to 100.

Publicity Vigorously Opposed.

Between the various votes the debate was intense at times.

Representative Murphy, Republican, of Ohio, pleaded with the House not to scourge successful business men with such a proposal, a sentiment in which other Republicans, including Representative Mills of New York, joined vigorously.

"In the last week," cried Representative Mills, "this bill has become merely a political vehicle.

"You are not only destroying the bill, but you are destroying the income tax law which your party as well as mine has built up in the last six years. The bill was designed to relieve the taxpayer, but you are making it so the bill will harass him. You are making it an object of the taxpayer's hatred and derision."

Mr. Mills read a letter written in 1918 by Cordell Hull of Tennessee, in which the present Chairman of the Democratic National Committee objected to the publicity of the returns.

The Mills statement brought a caustic reply from Representative Wingo of Arkansas, Democrat, who said:

"Browbeating won't get you anywhere. I would rather be charged with political motives than with a personal interest in framing this bill."

Roars of laughter broke from the floor when Representative Edmonds of Pennsylvania, Republican, offered an amendment that would allow any three neighbors of a taxpayer, "when they thought he did not pay enough taxes," to examine his tax returns and "comment upon them to the collector and the neighborhood."

Says Private Rights Are Invaded.

"This amendment proposes that in order to secure the punishment of 100 or 500 crooks making dishonest tax returns, the private affairs of 6,000,000 people shall be published to the world," said Representative Hawes, a Missouri Democrat.

Beats of Human Heart Heard 1,200 Miles Over the Radio

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22.—Human heart beats broadcast from The Post-Dispatch Radio Station, KSD, Wednesday night, were heard in Fort Bayard, N. M., 1,200 miles by airline from St. Louis, according to a telegram received today from Dr. A. F. Seidler.

HYLAN IS WILLING TO BE MAYOR AGAIN

PUTS TRANSIT BILL FIRST

Mayor Says He Will Return March 1 or 2 and Go to Work Immediately.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—Replying tonight to a telegram sent to him by H. F. Gunnison of The Brooklyn Eagle, Mayor John F. Hylan said that the question of renomination was a matter for the people of New York to decide. The most important thing for New York City at present, he said, was the enactment of the transit legislation requested by the city. Mr. Gunnison's telegram to the Mayor said:

"Congratulations on your score of 104 at golf. Please wire me when you break 100. If agreeable to you, would appreciate it if you would wire answer to the following questions, which cover subjects of interest to your friends:

"When do you expect to return and take charge of the City Government?

"Have you attempted to keep track of any city affairs in your absence from City Hall?

"Have you made up your mind whether you will seek renomination?

"If you do not care for a third term what would you prefer to do?

"Have you any one in mind at present whom you would like to have carry on your work at City Hall after your term expires?

"What is the most important thing for New York City at present?

"If you do not care to discuss these matters do not hesitate to say so. I thought a discussion of some of them might be of value to you. With kind regards to Mrs. Hylan and best wishes."

Mayor Sends Reply.

The Mayor's telegram said in reply:

"Telegram received. Will leave for New York the first or second of March and will return to work immediately.

"I have kept generally in touch with affairs of city during my convalescence, and have been in communication almost daily with the city since arriving at Palm Beach.

"The question of renomination for Mayor is a matter for the people of the city to determine. If they have any one who will serve them better and more sincerely than I have it is my duty to retire. But if they wish me to continue working for them I shall gladly do so.

"The most important thing for New York City at present is the enactment of the transit legislation requested by the city. If Speaker Machold and the Republican Assembly will give the people of the city the legislation needed, relief can be had in less than sixty days."

Mayor Hylan has been somewhat handicapped by unusual cold spells and frequent rains which have been prevalent since his arrival here. Although the Mayor has endeavored to make the most of his vacation and to rest as much as possible, he still shows plainly the effects of his recent illness. He has succeeded in regaining his strength to a certain extent, but is still extremely nervous.

Keeps in Touch With Office.

Efforts on the part of Grover Whalen during his stay here and other friends since the departure of Mr. Whalen to restrain the Mayor from taking active interest in municipal affairs during his vacation have been unsuccessful, as he keeps constantly in touch with his office by telephone.

The Mayor has followed closely the movements of the Legislature in Albany in regard to transit measures. He saw in the Adler bill a trap by which the Republicans sought to invest him with power over future subways which will not be completed for five or six years, and to fasten upon him the responsibility for the present congested conditions.

Contrary to his usual custom, Mayor Hylan did not attend the Washington's Birthday ball tonight. He and Mrs. Hylan were the guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. O'Brien in the Garden grill.

WASHINGTON IDEALS URGED BY COOLIDGE TO END PRESENT ILLS

Must Make Sacrifices, He Says, if the Institutions He Founded Are to Endure.

ANY FAILURE WILL BE OURS

TRIBUTE SENT BY RADIO

Address From the White House Goes to Millions All Over the Land.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Coolidge, in a radio address delivered tonight from the White House, combined with a tribute to Washington an appeal to the American people to accept the responsibilities and continue the sacrifices necessary to make enduring the institutions which Washington founded.

Mr. Coolidge described the part played by Washington in the founding of the American Government, and declared that he accomplished the results "by accepting great responsibilities and making great sacrifices."

"If we are to maintain the institutions which he founded, if we are to improve what he created, we must be like-minded with him, we must continue to accept responsibilities, we must continue to make sacrifices," the President said. "Under all the laws of God and man there is no other way."

The address was delivered by the President in his study in the White House and was made by invitation of the International Rotary Clubs, members of which recently asked that the President make an address today in anniversary of the founding of Rotarianism.

TEXT OF HIS ADDRESS.

Each year the birthday of George Washington gains wider acceptance as being of more than national significance. He becomes more and more a world figure, a mighty influence reaching into all lands and recognized by all people. He is as universal as the truth. The great place which he holds in history grows more clear as we are able to compare him with all others who have set their stamp upon the affairs of mankind.

This position began to be appreciated even before his death. When Talleyrand, Foreign Minister of Napoleon, reported that our first President was gone he was led by his admiration to compose a eulogy. In it he dwelt upon these moral qualities of Washington, which have become more and more appreciated, and upon his exalted character. In recommending that a statue be raised to his memory in one of the great squares of Paris he declared: "The man who, amid the decadence of modern ages, first dared to believe that he could inspire degenerate nations with courage to rise to the level of republican virtues, lived for all nations and for all countries."

Something of the spiritual power of Washington is realized when it is remembered that even from Talleyrand his passing inspired such a tribute, accompanied by the suggestion of a memorial to the first citizen of a country who was at that very time preparing for what appeared to be an imminent conflict with France. The character of Washington raised him even above national enmities. It made him a hero that all peoples were compelled to honor.

In far-off lands people are observing this day by taking thought of the qualities that gave Washington this foremost place among the truly great. They are drawn to this man by his calm and clear judgment, by his abounding courage and by his unselfish devotion.

Beyond that which was ever accorded to any other mortal, he holds rank as a soldier, a statesman and a patriot. Others may have excelled him in some of these qualities, but no one ever excelled him in this threefold greatness.

Yet Washington the man seems to stand above them all. After we have recounted his victories, after we have examined his record in public office, after we have recalled that he refused to be made King, we have not exhausted his greatness. We can best estimate him by not identifying

SLEMP TO BE CALLED BY OIL COMMITTEE; WALSH BACK TO PRESS SCANDAL INQUIRY; PARTY RIFT WIDENING OVER DAUGHERTY

ADAMS HITS LODGE GROUP

WANTS A HEARING FIRST

HE ALSO DEFENDS DENBY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22. — Attorney General Daugherty's refusal to resign from the Cabinet at the behest of a group of regular Republican Senators has produced a remarkable situation in the Republican Party organization.

John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, today issued a statement bristling with defiance and denunciation of those who seek to cause Mr. Daugherty's retirement from public life without giving him the hearing he seeks. His attitude is directly at variance with that of the Administration Senators who told President Coolidge that he should get rid of his Attorney General.

As Chairman of the National Committee, Mr. Adams is in the position of speaking for the organization. His course stiffens the refusal of Mr. Daugherty to surrender the portfolio of Justice, and gives opportunity for the crystallization of sentiment, both within the party and out, as to whether it is fair dealing to condemn a high official of the Government without giving him a chance to defend himself against accusations affecting his integrity.

Thrust for Senator Lodge.

The statement is a defiance to such Republicans as Senator Lodge, majority leader in the Senate; Senators Pepper, Lenroot, Fess and Curtis, who attended a series of conferences which resulted in a decision to urge President Coolidge to induce Mr. Daugherty to retire, and Senator Borah, who told Mr. Daugherty at the White House, in the presence of the President, that he should sever his connection with the Administration.

There is no direct criticism by Mr. Adams of the course of Senator Lodge and the other Senators, but in the concluding paragraph of the statement what is obviously an admonition to them is contained in the assertion that "the time has come for Republican leadership to stop acting on the defensive and to begin aggressive warfare on political traducers." This appears to be a thrust aimed particularly at Senator Lodge, in view of the fact that he is the chosen leader of the Senate Republicans.

Nor does Mr. Adams confine himself to the Daugherty case. He acquits Secretary Denby of any act that justified his enforced resignation, and contends that not one of his critics dare make his accusations outside the protecting walls of Congress. Altogether, the chairman has taken the bit in his teeth and served notice on the entire party leadership, from the President down, that the removal of Daugherty from the Cabinet in response to the attacks of his enemies in the Senate would be regarded by the National Committee, so far as Mr. Adams is able to speak for it, as an act of injustice and cowardice.

The statement was the most important development of today in connection with the series of sensations that have been produced by charges affecting prominent men. The statement gave emphasis to the refusal of the Attorney General to retire from office under fire. Nothing has appeared to indicate that President Coolidge has added his voice to those of the Senators who want Mr. Daugherty to get out for the sake of the party.

Weakening Within Party Feared.

Information obtained tonight shows that the statement of Chairman Adams has a more important bearing on the present situation than even its sensational utterances suggest. It is under-

No Aid From Federal Bureau Yet Received, Says Walsh

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Not one of the investigating or secret service agencies of the Government has so much as "lifted a finger," Senator Walsh of Montana declared this afternoon, to aid him in exposing the oil lease scandals.

"I have been both detective and prosecutor," said Senator Walsh, "and up to this moment I have received absolutely no assistance from any investigating arm of the Federal Government. There is the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, at the head of which is that greatest of detectives—the greatest, they say, since Sherlock Holmes. Yet that bureau has not uncovered one particle of evidence, it has not suggested a single witness, nor has it in any other way aided the committee in its efforts to get to the bottom of this Teapot Dome affair.

"I am also informed that the Navy Department has a very efficient investigating organization. However, Mr. Denby is still Secretary of the Navy and no assistance is, for that reason, to be expected from that source.

"The War Department has its military intelligence service; the Post Office Department also has an efficient investigating arm, while the Treasury Department has under it the United States Secret Service. From none of these have we received any assistance whatever. I don't like to say these things, but it so happens that it is the exact truth."

The detective referred to by Senator Walsh is William J. Burns, a friend of Mr. Daugherty, whom the latter appointed Chief of the Bureau of Investigation.

M'ADOO DEMANDS GUILTY BE PUNISHED

ARRIVES IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—William G. McAdoo returned home late today, after testifying in the oil lease investigation at Washington, voicing a demand that the "guilty must be brought to punishment."

"The shocking revelations at Washington of betrayal of public interest must give profound concern to every lover of our institutions and to every patriotic American, regardless of party," Mr. McAdoo said. "These transactions must be probed to the bottom, and the guilty brought to punishment. This is not a question of party politics. It involves the life of the nation.

"The duty of the Government is no less to punish those who are guilty than to protect those who are innocent. No attempt to divert attention from the guilty should be permitted.

"When men in high place, those to whom the nation has the right to look with confidence and respect, betray their trust and prostitute their power a danger to Democratic institutions infinitely greater than Bolshevism or any other 'ism' confronts us. The subtle poison of corruption ultimately will do its deadly work.

"All good citizens, therefore, must unite to drive corruption out of the Government, to elevate the standards of public morality and to administer the Government upon the high conception that public office is a public trust."

When he passed through Pasadena, approaching Los Angeles, Mr. McAdoo made a speech from the train platform, in which he said:

"I have this to say, and I say it with real meaning: I would rather have my California friends, or live in California, than be President of the United States."

Ohio Supporters Will Meet Today.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Ohio supporters of William G. McAdoo, at a conference to be held in Columbus tomorrow, expect to decide whether or not a fight will be made to elect delegates from this State to the Democratic National Convention at the primaries on April 29.

It was reported here today that Hamilton de Weese of Columbus and W. D. Wilkin of Cleveland were to file declarations of candidates for national delegates pledged to McAdoo tomorrow or Monday.

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War and Chairman of the Cuyahoga County Democratic Executive Committee, announced today that he will be a candidate to the national convention from the Twenty-second Congressional District and that his support will be pledged to ex-Governor James M. Cox for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

He also let it be known that he hopes to be appointed on the convention's Committee on Resolutions that he may be able to fight for a League of Nations plank.

Mr. Baker says Cox was loyal to the peace program of the late Woodrow Wilson, and he believes Ohio Democrats are proud of the fight made by the former Governor on the question of America's foreign relations in 1920.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 22.—The declaration of candidacy of President Coolidge for entrance into the Presidential primaries will be filed by Hoke Donithen, the President's Ohio campaign manager, tomorrow, according to an announcement by Mr. Donithen.

WILL CALL SLEMP MONDAY

McLEAN ALSO TO BE HEARD

Sinclair Will Be Asked Later for Further Light on Loans and Payments.

DAUGHERTY VOTE TUESDAY

Wheeler Says Mass of Data Relative to Attorney General Has Been Offered.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Senator Walsh of Montana returned to Washington this afternoon, and within a few hours after his arrival it was announced that C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to President Coolidge, would be a witness before the oil investigating committee on Monday.

Mr. Walsh did not disclose the nature of the information Mr. Slemp will be asked to impart, but it is believed that, among other things, he will be asked if, while at Palm Beach during the Christmas holidays, he met or talked with ex-Secretary Albert B. Fall and Edward B. McLean, publisher of The Washington Post, both of whom were in Palm Beach at that time.

Senator Walsh let it be known that Mr. McLean will be called next week, and it is probable that Harry F. Sinclair also will be asked to take the stand within a few days. The Senator said he had several questions he wished to put to Mr. Sinclair, among them a request for further enlightenment as to the $250,000 cash payment he made to Frederick G. Bonfils, publisher of The Denver Post, and Bonfils's partner in that venture, Leo Stack.

Wants Light on Loan to Fall.

"Then, of course," added Senator Walsh, "we want Mr. Sinclair to tell us what he knows about the loan of the $25,000 in Liberty bonds to Fall, and perhaps he can also shed some more light on the deal whereby Shaffer, the publisher of various Western newspapers, was given a half interest in 410 acres of the Teapot Dome."

The Montana Senator appears much improved in health as a result of his three days' rest at Pinehurst, and he made it clear that he is going to pursue with renewed vigor the inquiry into the oil lease transactions.

As to whether or not immunity will be granted any witness, Mr. Walsh was non-committal, but the impression prevails here that if there is any witness who has evidence which may aid in unmasking of wrongdoers, such a witness may get immunity.

Senator Walsh said it was true that he conferred with Wilton J. Lambert, counsel for Edward B. McLean. This conference, he added, was held just before he left for Pinehurst. He was not in a position, he explained, to discuss what passed between Mr. Lambert and himself. He refused to discuss the rumor that the question of immunity for any witness had been the subject of any of the conferences with representatives of persons who may be called by the committee.

Just when Mr. McLean will be asked to take the witness chair is yet to be determined, Senator Walsh said. When questioned at Palm Beach on Jan. 11 last, Mr. McLean told Mr. Walsh that he had given Fall checks for a total of $100,000, and that, to the best of his knowledge, these checks were drawn on the Federal, American and Commercial National Banks of this city.

Bank Officials to Be Called.

Officials of these banks have been notified to be ready to take the witness chair on Monday. Mr. McLean informed Senator Walsh that Mr. Fall returned the checks without cashing them, but it was not denied that the bankers who have been ordered to appear before the committee will be asked questions to clear up certain phases of the situation in so far as it relates to the affairs of Mr. McLean.

The committee, Mr. Walsh indicated, is going to try to identify a mysterious "Mr. Hays." When G. D. Wahlberg, confidential secretary to Mr. Sinclair, was on the stand on Jan 21, and was being questioned as to the accuracy of the statement made by Archie Roosevelt, Mr. Wahlberg mentioned a "Mr. Hays" as a person to whom Liberty bonds had been loaned.

Mr. Wahlberg testified that he told Mr. Roosevelt it was his hope he would not be asked to testify about certain loans of securities. He testified that Liberty bonds had been loaned to Col. H. W. Zevely, counsel for Mr. Sinclair, and others, he thought, had been loaned to "Mr. Hays."

"That matter has been called to my attention," Senator Walsh said. "It raises a rather interesting question which I hope will be aired in due time."

"Have you dropped the million-dollar slush fund feature of the inquiry?" Senator Walsh was asked.

"No. We have not," he replied. "We are going to make further inquiries, and if there is any truth in that story we shall leave nothing undone to get it and make it public."

Missing Inventor May Have Met Foul Play; Dr. Swanberg Feared Plot to Steal Formula

A country-wide search for Dr. Arthur W. Swanberg, physician, chemist and inventor, who disappeared under mysterious circumstances on Feb. 5 last from his suite in the Lincoln Park Hotel in Newark, had not produced the faintest clew to his whereabouts, the police of that city reported yesterday. Dr. Swanberg, who is 65 years old, was reported missing by Mrs. Ida Waller, Manager of the hotel, which is at 1,076 Broad Street. She said yesterday that she feared the man had met with foul play.

Mrs. Waller said that Dr. Swanberg had confided to her in January that he feared somebody was plotting to get from him the formula of an invention which he had perfected within the last year and which would convert gasoline into gas so that a great economy in motor power would be effected.

She also said that the doctor had told of having been attacked by strangers in this city, who assaulted him in endeavoring to take the formula out of his inner pocket, where he always carried it. Dr. Swanberg told her that his injuries from the attack were such that he had to receive attention in a hospital here.

Mrs. Waller said that Dr. Swanberg had told her on several occasions that he had refused to part with his formula to certain interests and was organizing a company through which he expected to place it on the market. He had closed a deal with business men in Newark to exploit his invention, and among those he mentioned were William P. Blaisdus and Bernhard Poeter, who are officials of the Purse Frame Manufacturing Company of Newark.

Dr. Swanberg also told her, she said, that several tests of the invention had been held in the company's plant which had aroused considerable interest on the part of persons whom he had offered to let in on its exploitation and who, having declined, were besieging him to renew his offer. He had become offended and had declined to renew his offer, and this attitude, he asserted, had brought about an enmity which he believed was responsible for the plot to steal the formula and the recent attack on him.

COOLIDGE SHIES AT PUNCH FROM DEMPSEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—President Coolidge greeted Jack Dempsey today as "one who has been before the public longer than I have."

The world's heavyweight champion, accompanied by Jack Kearns, his manager, called at the White House, and was introduced to the President by Secretary Slemp, with the explanation that the boxer could knock out a man with a two-inch punch.

"Well, that is two inches more of a punch than I would like to get from you," the President replied.

The President inquired if he "had any engagements in sight," and was told he expects to box two or three times during the Spring and Summer."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—The Matin publishes the following statement made by M. Spalaikovitch, Minister in Paris of the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes:

"The situation in the Balkans is becoming disquieting. Everything serves to show that in Bulgaria dangerous propaganda is being carried on and that menacing designs are being harbored against Eastern Serbia of such a kind as might cause a conflict next Spring."

To a Matin reporter the Serbian Minister gave an account of what he said transpired at a recent meeting of the Belgian Council of National Defence presided over by King Boris, at which the whole program of political and military action was planned to be operated in conjunction with Macedonian malcontents and frontier comitadjis.

Arms, food supplies and munitions, he said, had been already accumulated at various points and the valley of the River Struma had been chosen as the base of operations.

The Serbian Minister added:

"It must be made known to the Macedonian Committee and Bulgaria that the Serbian army will be able to crush at once any such insensate plans. By encouraging them Bulgaria is running great risk. She is even playing with her existence, for Yugoslavia cannot any longer tolerate a situation which allows Bulgaria periodically to trouble the peace of Eastern Serbia."

National Bank, Senator Walsh said, would be asked to testify early next week.

There was much speculation today as to the nature of testimony it was expected Mr. Alles would give. Senator Walsh said it had nothing to do with the McLean $100,000 check transaction. It is possible that Mr. Alles will be questioned about reports that the Doheny oil interests had made heavy deposits in the Riggs bank.

Senator Walsh denied published stories that any of the original documents desired by the committee were missing. Photostatic copies of documents, he said, were frequently being used by the committee in its work, but the originals were in the files of the departments.

Daugherty Resolution Held Up.

Action on the Wheeler resolution calling for an investigation of the administration of the Department of Justice under Attorney General Daugherty was withheld today because of the absence of several Senators. Senator Wheeler said the resolution probably would be reported favorably tomorrow and the debate started on Monday. It is believed a vote will be reached not later than Tuesday and that the resolution will be adopted by a substantial majority.

Developments in the last few days have led the supporters of the resolution to believe there will be a bitter debate which will bring out a discussion of the visit made to the White House by Senators Lodge and Pepper to advise the President that Mr. Daugherty should resign and of the Attorney General's letter to Senator Pepper.

Senator Wheeler said he intended to fight for selection of Senator Brookhart, radical Republican, as head of the proposed committee of five to investigate the Daugherty rule of the Department of Justice. He would insist, he said, that the members of the committee be elected by the Senate and not appointed by the presiding officer. His avowed purpose was to get on the committee members who would be impervious to any attempts to influence the course of the investigation.

According to Senator Wheeler he already has received many applications from persons who wish to appear as witnesses when the hearings begin. Such a mass of data carrying complaints against Mr. Daugherty had come to his office, he said, that it had been impossible to analyze it and separate that which was promising from that which was useless. But, he added, he would fight to see that all witnesses who had anything of value to say would be given an opportunity to appear.

Morse Wants to Testify.

Charles W. Morse, who was indicted, tried and acquitted in cases involving deals with the United States Shipping Board, dropped in to see Senator Wheeler today and expressed a desire to testify before the committee. Senator Wheeler said he did not know Morse, but had listened to his story, and he probably would be given an opportunity to be heard.

A letter sent to Senator Lenroot today by E. L. Doheny, in which he charged Senator Wheeler with reckless utterances which had no basis of fact, and called attention to the recent speech and testimony of Frank A. Vanderlip, was made public here by representatives of Mr. Doheny. The suggestion was made by the oil operator that the Public Lands Committee should call Senator Wheeler, as it had called Mr. Vanderlip, and ask him to produce his facts.

Mr. Doheny's letter read:

New York, Feb. 21, 1924.

My Dear Senator:

Recently in a public speech Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip made statements which, when brought to the attention of your committee, caused you to promptly summon him as a witness, with the result that it was disclosed that Mr. Vanderlip did not know a single fact, nor could he name any person who could testify to a single fact, relevant to the charge which had been referred to in his speech. This action of your committee has been everywhere commended.

On Feb. 19, 1924, Senator B. K. Wheeler, addressing the Senate, according to the official report contained on page 2794 of the Congressional Record of that date, said:

"Ever since the Attorney General has occupied the important position which he now holds various charges have been made against him in the newspapers and by individuals from one end of the country to the other. Recently when the oil scandal first developed it appears that the Attorney General's name was mixed in it. It appeared, if you please, that he was a friend of Ned McLean. Everybody knows that he was the friend of Sinclair. Everybody knows he was the friend of Doheny. Everybody knows that the three men met in the apartment of the Attorney General from time to time."

Suggests Calling Mr. Wheeler.

The foregoing directly relates to the subject matter of the investigation being conducted by your committee far more directly than anything Mr. Vanderlip had to say.

Following the precedent set when Mr. Vanderlip was called to testify, I respectfully suggest that the committee should summon Senator Wheeler and call upon him to testify to any facts that he may know to support the above quoted statements.

If his own testimony develops that Mr. Wheeler does not know any such facts, I suggest that he be asked to give the committee the name of any person who can supply them.

Yours very respectfully,
E. L. DOHENY.

It is not probable that the committee will pay any attention to Mr. Doheny's letter.

TO PROTEST OIL SCANDAL.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Plans for a protest meeting in Chicago next month against the alleged graft and corruption disclosed in the National Administration at Washington were launched today at a meeting of the Illinois State Conference for Progressive Political Action.

Leading Republican insurgents who have joined with the Democrats in revealing the oil lease and other scandals will be invited to address the meeting. A committee, including Irvin D. Strain of the United Mine Workers and H. P. Daugherty, Assistant Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, will go to Washington and invite Senators La Follette and Brookhart to speak at the Coliseum meeting.

Predictions that the scandals involving Cabinet members and other Republican leaders will split the Republican Party more widely than in 1912 were made by some of the conferees who remained in session all day.

Labor leaders and representatives of farm bureaus were among those in attendance. Some of them expressed a willingness to support Senator La Follette or some other leading Republican insurgent in a third-party movement.

SINCLAIR TO GO TUESDAY.

May Appear Before Oil Committee as Voluntary Witness.

Harry F. Sinclair is not expected to go to Washington to appear before the Senate committee investigating oil leases before next Tuesday. It was indicated yesterday that Mr. Sinclair might not wait to be subpoenaed but would go before the committee voluntarily when his presence was desired.

Mr. Sinclair spent yesterday at his offices conferring with his attorneys, preparatory to the examination before the Senate committee. He continued to maintain silence regarding the testimony he will give.

VANDERLIP OPENS HIS 'MORAL WAR'

ATTACKS THE NEWSPAPERS

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 22.—Frank A. Vanderlip in a speech at a dinner of the Masonic Club of Ossining at the Weskora Hotel here tonight called upon the public to "enlist in a moral war against corruption," which he declared existed in the Government.

"Shall we become the victims of our abominable lust for gain?" Mr. Vanderlip said, quoting from a letter of George Washington.

"This is the question George Washington asked 135 years ago." He added, "I repeat it tonight."

Ten days ago in a Lincoln Day speech before the local Rotary Club, Mr. Vanderlip made the assertion that The Marion Star, the property of the late President Harding, had been sold for "far more than its true value" and his statement resulted in a libel action against him for $600,000 damages by Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore, purchasers of The Star. Mr. Vanderlip made no reference to this remark, which resulted in his being called as a witness by the Senate Investigating Committee, except to say that he had spoken "from his heart" on that occasion and was equally in earnest tonight in his appeal for a fight against corruption.

Mr. Vanderlip reiterated his charge that the newspapers had not published all the facts in the oil and other investigations at Washington, and intimated that this was because the large newspapers had become great business institutions and were more and more dominated by their business offices.

The Introduction of Mr. Vanderlip.

Edward M. Henry, the toastmaster, introduced Mr. Vanderlip as a fellow Mason of whom all present were proud. "Ten days ago Mr. Vanderlip delivered a message of warning, honesty and truth," Mr. Henry said. "It was misunderstood because most of our people read only the headlines in the newspapers, but the message is more generally understood now than it was at the time it was given. Mr. Vanderlip has enlisted for the war against hypocrisy and all that is objectionable in our National Government."

"Mr. Chairman and brother Masons," said Mr. Vanderlip, after acknowledging the applause which greeted his introduction, "these are extraordinary days. We are in an extraordinary period of history, and George Washington's Birthday is not an inappropriate time for us to discuss the situation which the nation faces.

"There are two things that are needed today. The first is an understanding of the facts. We want to know what the facts are at Washington, we want to know the truth. It is very important that we should have a clear and unimpeded stream of information.

"I believe that we have not at the present moment a clear and unimpaired stream of information. I believe that we do not know the facts at Washington.

"Why is that? Are newspapers less honest than they used to be? I do not believe so. Are newspaper men less honest and skillful than they used to be? I do not believe so.

Traces Development of the Press.

"There has been an extraordinary development in the newspaper field since the days when I was a newspaper man. There are better and larger papers now. They undertake to cover the news of the world. The large newspaper has become a great business enterprise, run by its proprietor, a man of great business ability, and is run with the shadow of the business office on the news. That is so of necessity. There must be cooperation. So while the newspapers have become better and more comprehensive, there is a certain standardization about them. Each prints about the same news that the others do and none prints all the news from Washington.

"Formerly, when I had a knowledge of newspaper work in Washington, the correspondents sat at the table. They didn't take 'handouts' in the way of 'flimsies.' This began in the Roosevelt Administration when newspaper men were disciplined when they printed matter which was not satisfactory.

"Today no newspaper man feels the freedom to print the news as he did in my day in Washington. He is circumscribed by the attitude of the heads of the departments.

"That's one thing we need—a clearer stream of information with fewer obstructions. We need to know the facts.

"There is another thing we need. We need a dynamic public opinion—and I believe we are getting it—a public opinion that is going to demand action.

"There is a pretty large class of men—I find them particularly among my own associates—who say:

"'For heaven's sake, it may be bad, but keep still about it; put on the extinguisher; it's going to hurt business; it's going to hurt the Stock Exchange quotations.'

"That leads me to run back over history. One of my first recollections as a boy is that of the failure of Jay Cooke, which resulted from the Credit Mobilier scandal. It was hushed then. The extinguisher was put on. I doubt if it was wise. The voice of the people spoke eventually and spoke against corruption in the Federal Government.

"What corruption there was in those days was a small matter compared with the corruption now.

Sees a Breakdown of Justice.

"Why are we not getting action? Something has gone wrong with the machinery of justice. It has been twenty-two months since the red flag of suspicion has been hoisted on the Teapot Dome. The Senate passed a resolution of investigation unanimously, information was called for and nothing was furnished for weeks. When it was furnished nothing happened.

"We had an investigation of the Veterans' Bureau. The report of the hearings was one of the most astounding documents in our history. It indicated not only waste but a criminal withholding from deserving men of what the nation wanted them to have. These things were reported to the Senate. What has been done about it?

"The Alien Property Custodian has not been investigated. Yet I am convinced that there will have to be an investigation and that it will disclose a situation worse than expected.

"The Department of Justice itself, obviously, now must be investigated. No such statements about the Department of Justice as have been made in the Senate can be allowed to go unchallenged."

Criticizes Government's Inquiries.

Mr. Vanderlip said that his hearers might say that the Government was getting at the job of uncovering and punishing corruption, but he declared that it was proceeding in the wrong way.

"Two lawyers have been appointed," he continued, referring to the appointment of Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, "to make any oil prosecutions necessary.

"Are we to put on the President of the United States the duty of detecting and punishing misdemeanors?" That is not the way the machinery of our Government was organized.

"For men to sit back and say that if something has happened to the machinery of justice we will somewhat grudgingly give the President lawyers and shoulder on him the resonsibility will not do. He would have to have a thousand lawyers before he could get through with it. That is not his task. It certainly is his task to inform himself about the situation, but it is not his task to detect and punish.

"The machinery of justice, not the courts but the machinery back of the courts, has failed to bring forward for trial men whose guilt appears clear from prima facie evidence. To have the President take up the task after the machinery has failed is a serious situation and one the people of this country are not going to stand for.

"Your Chairman has said that I have enlisted in the fight against corruption. I have enlisted and you are going to enlist—in a moral war. There can be no pacifists. You're either for it or against it. This is a moral war and if you're a pacifist there is something wrong with you.

Some Leaders Dishonest, He Says.

"I spoke the other night on 'Courage in Leadership.' That's what we need now.

"The American people are honest. Most of our public leaders are honest—not all. We must root our corruption wherever we find it.'

Mr. Vanderlip ended his speech with an extract from a letter from George Washington to James Warren on March 31, 1779, in which Washington wrote:

"Is the paltry consideration of a little dirty pelf to individuals to be placed in competition with the essential rights and liberties of the present generation and of millions yet unborn? Shall a few designing men, for their own aggrandizement and to gratify our own avarice, overset the goodly fabric we have been rearing at the expense of so much time, blood and treasure, and shall we at last become the victims of our own abominable lust of gain?"

Other speakers were Charles O. Boughton, President of the club, and William F. Bleakley. One hundred and fifty members of the club attended.

BECK UPHOLDS DAUGHERTY.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Denouncing the effort in Washington to force Attorney General Daugherty to resign, James M. Beck, Solicitor General of the United States, in an address at the annual observance of University Day at Ohio State University, today rose to Mr. Daugherty's defense and expressed confidence in his integrity and honesty.

Although the Solicitor General spoke but briefly in the defense, his remarks apparently met with approval by his audience, as attested by the applause which followed his statement that "during my whole official and private association with Mr. Daugherty, I have always held him in the highest esteem and vouch the belief that he has never done an unjust or questionable thing in administering the office of Attorney General of the United States."

"No age has a monopoly on virtue or frailty," said Mr. Beck. "From the beginning of our country there have been scandals in Government, and there also have been virtues. In a time like the present, when there is confusion and when wild charges fly freely, it is well to remember the injustice of ignoring the great mass of faithful public servants.

"How does this generation meet the challenge of George Washington with respect to the corruption of morals, profligacy of manners and listlessness? I believe, notwithstanding the present deplorable scandal in public life, that we can, as a people, hold our heads high.

"The heart of the people is sound and it will not tolerate wrongdoing in high places of any man or party."

OIL PROMOTER SENTENCED.

Houston Is Sent to Leavenworth for Three Years.

TEXARKANA, Ark., Feb. 22.—Reginald C. ("Colonel") Houston, oil promoter, who pleaded guilty to charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy, today was sentenced to serve three years in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, and was assessed fines aggregating $4,600.

Houston is the only one of more than a hundred oil promoters from the Eldorado and Smackover (Ark.) indicted in connection with stock selling and promotion activities to plead guilty. The trials of the others are expected to be held next month.

Robber Suspect Caught on a Roof.

James Collins of Pittsburgh was arrested on a charge of entering the apartment of Mrs. Anna Boehm, 213 East 126th Street, while she was out yesterday. He was held in $3,000 bail for examination next Thursday. Collins was caught on the roof of the building after a chase by Patrolman Albert Freed.

Leaps From Third Floor to Death.

For a week or so John Larkin, 28, a longshoreman, of 2,191 Eighth Avenue, tried to smoke to death, and failing, he jumped from the window of his room on the third floor yesterday and fractured his skull. He was dead when an ambulance surgeon arrived.

PRESIDENTIAL LIST OF THIRTEEN NAMED

MAJORITY U. S. SENATORS

Thirteen possible candidates for President on a proposed third party ticket are suggested in a questionnaire sent out by the National Bureau of Information and Education of the Committee of Forty-eight, which was made public yesterday. It has already been decided to hold a national Farmer-Labor-Progressive Convention at St. Paul or Minneapolis on May 30 to name candidates for President and Vice President. The questionnaire asks the recipient to indicate his choice for President among the following candidates:

United States Senators William E. Borah of Idaho, Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, Lynn J. Frazier and E. F. Ladd of North Dakota, Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, George W. Norris of Nebraska, Hendrik Shipstead of Minnesota and B. K. Wheeler of Montana; William Mahoney and F. A. Pike of Minnesota; Victor Murdock of Kansas and Amos R. E. Pinchot of New York.

The questionnaire explains that Senator Magnus Johnson of Minnesota does not appear on the foregoing list only because his foreign birth makes him ineligible for the Presidency.

"This convention is pledged to the abolition of special privilege," the questionnaire says, "and the conferees designated as their platform: (a) public ownership of railroads; (b) control on money and credit by the people through Government and cooperative banks; (c) public control of natural resources; (d) preservation of civil rights guaranteed by the Constitution; (e) prevention of judicial abuses. Candidates must be nominated whose courage, honesty and adherence to principle cannot be questioned, whose political sagacity and economic knowledge are of a high order, and who cannot be diverted from the task we have in hand."

Questions asked include the following:

"In view of the admitted corruption, lack of principle, subservience to special privilege and practical identity of the Republican and Democratic Parties, as graphically illustrated in the recent sugar, oil and Department of Justice scandals, do you favor a new political party?"

"Are you in general agreement with the national platform, which has been adopted as the unanimous expression of the organizations affiliated in the new party movement?"

"Do you endorse the national Farmer-Labor-Progressive Convention called for May 30 in the Twin Cities?"

"Will you attend this convention and serve as a delegate if selected?"

"Any local unit comprised of twenty-five or more who subscribe to this platform is entitled to one delegate. Shall we send you a blank petition so that you can obtain the necessary signatures and qualify as a delegate?"

MEXICANS BATTLE FOR OIL CENTRES

Revolutionists Report Capture of Panuco—Federals Further Advance Toward Tuxpam.

REBEL COLLAPSE IN WEST

Gen. Alvarado Sails From Manzanillo for United States as His Forces Join Obregon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The gunboat Tulsa, which was ordered from Galveston to the Mexican oil port of Tuxpam to pick up American refugees, guard American interests and report on the situation, arrived at Tuxpam last night and will report conditions as soon as possible. No report had been received by the Navy Department tonight.

The capture of Panuco in the heart of the Tampico oil region is claimed in telegrams from Adolfo de la Huerta, head of the rebel movement in Frontera, State of Tabasco, to J. M. Alvarez del Castillo, the de la Huerta agent in Washington. One of the telegrams made public by Señor Alvarez del Castillo stated that Panuco was captured by General D. M. Herrera, commanding a column of rebel troops in Northern Vera Cruz, and declared that the advance on Tampico "from two sides continues."

Panuco is situated on the south bank of the Panuco River, about twenty miles inland from Tampico, and is the most important inland point in the oil region. An official of the State Department said tonight that no official advices had been received dealing with the situation at Tampico, and denied that the Tulsa had been sent to Tuxpam in anticipation of military operations in that section.

Alvarado En Route to United States.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—The rebel General, Salvador Alvarado, has been arrested by his own men and placed on board a steamer at Manzanillo en route to the United States.

The followers of Alvarado, headed by General Ansaldo, decided to leave the revolution and arrested Alvarado. The Federal Government has accepted the surrender of the rebels.

Forces under the rebel General, Cavazos, were defeated in the State of Hidalgo by Federal troops.

Cavazos is atempting to enter the State of Tamaulipas where he is expected to join the rebel groups in the oil region.

A strong column of three arms is proceeding under orders of General Topete to clean up the rebels along the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in the State of Oaxaca.

Federals Near Tuxpam.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—The movement against Tuxpam is progressing steadily, General Juan Soto Lara having captured Tamiahua (about ten miles north of Tuxpam), after defeating the rebels under Augustin Galindo, killing fifteen of the enemy and taking twenty prisoners.

According to intercepted wireless messages, the rebel leader, Guadalupe Sanchez, has arrived at Merida from Frontera accompanied by Froylan Manjarrez, former Governor of Puebla, in obedience to instructions from de la Huerta.

The rebel Generals Maycotte, Castro and Aguilar have arrived in the Oaxaca neighborhood with about 600 men, reinforcing the rebel Governor Manuel Garcia Vigil for his defense against an impending attack by the Government forces under General Almazan. The rebels have been actively destroying the railway in order to hinder Almazan's advance.

Coahuila Town Claimed by Rebels.

FRONTERA, Tabasco, Feb. 22.—(By Radio via Dallas News—Associated Press).—Further victories for the revolutionary forces in brushes with the Federals were claimed in the official statement of activities of the de la Huerta forces issued last night by Otilio Gonzales, chief of the Publicity Department.

Panuco, Vera Cruz, on the Panuco River, ten leagues from Tampico, also was taken by revolutionary forces operating under Generals Martinez and Diaz de Leon, according to reports from Division Commander José C. Moran. The fighting started at 3 o'clock in the morning and continued several hours. The defending troops finally surrendered.

New Port Duties in Yucatan.

MERIDA, Yucatan, Feb. 22 (by Radio, via Dallas News—Associated Press).—Certain exemptions from port and impost duties for extraordinary war expenses have been granted in decrees issued by de la Huerta, according to information from Progreso. The steamers of the Gulf Fruit Company, which touch at Progreso, will not be compelled to pay the port duties, and merchandise intended for commerce also will be exempt from the impost duties of 25 per cent.

Another decree is expected soon regarding the hemp trade. A delegation of growers has gone to Tabasco to confer with de la Huerta.

CORRESPONDENT EXPELLED.

Copyright, 1924, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 22.—An executive order was issued last night through the Secretary of Interior for the deportation of Frederick Wright, Chicago Tribune correspondent, under Article 33 of the Mexican Constitution. The charge made is "persistent misinterpretation of political news." I have been given to understand that the Secretary issued the order after some weeks of investigation of an article in The Tribune on Jan. 6 last regarding the destruction of the hacienda of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, in the State of Puebla.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—The above-mentioned article was written under date of Monterey, Mexico, by Ralph Cameron, who now is in the United States.

The article, which has been confirmed by The Tribune in all respects, disclosed the brutal operations of Obregon troops under command of General Almazan on the hacienda San Pedro Coxtocany Anexos, property of Mrs. Rosalie Evans, a native of Brownsville, Texas. This woman is a widow, who for several years has blocked, often with arms, the efforts of Bolshevist politicians of Puebla to seize a fine estate jointly developed by herself and her late husband. The buildings on the estate were burned by the Obregon soldiers and the lone woman defender escaped only because of the fidelity of her servants. Her present whereabouts are unknown, and grave fears are entertained that she has been slain.

MORGENTHAU PROPOSES MEMORIAL TO WILSON

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Feb. 22.—A Woodrow Wilson memorial school for industrial training of children orphaned by war and oppression was proposed by Henry Morgenthau at the Washington Birthday celebration here today as a monument to the man who among Near Eastern peoples represented the highest ideals of American philanthropy and humanitarianism. M. Venizelos, the Greek Cabinet Ministers and the entire American colony applauded the former Ambassador warmly.

Mr. Morgenthau said he had been in communication with influential Americans regarding the proposal, which involved completion of the huge orphanage now under construction by the American Near East Relief on the Island of Syra in the Greek Cyclades. It would be the largest American training school in the Levant, providing self-supporting trades for 5,000 children the Americans had brought from Anatolia.

Eulogizing Woodrow Wilson, Mr. Morgenthau said:

"The best hope for future happiness and peace in these disturbed historic lands is the new spirit which America introduced through the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, whose idealism created a great popular desire for closer ties with his country. Wilson was the friend of the oppressed subject races in the Levant. No more fitting tribute to his memory could be paid, therefore, than the dedication of such an institution which will inculcate his ideals in the children who are destined to play an important part in the future of the Near East.

"This memorial will be an educational lighthouse on the Island of Syra, at the crossroads of trade routes between East and West. America assumed the guardianship of these children. Let it make the spirit of Wilson their guardian angel."

Mr. Morgenthau said the establishment of the Wilson school would be another link in the chain of American educational institutions at Constantinople, Beirut and Cairo which have influenced the lives of thousands in the Near East and Balkan countries.

To Guard Quebec From Stolen Cars.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEBEC, Feb. 22.—Automobile dealers in the Province of Quebec who have been protesting that the sale here of automobiles stolen in the United States has been ruining their business have accepted Premier Taschereau's measures to protect them. The Government will pass an act under which all dealers will have to obtain a license and furnish a bond to protect purchasers for one year. Persons who buy stolen cars from unlicensed dealers will pay the penalty of losing their cars.

'CLEANSE CAPITOL,' SAYS SENATOR REED

URGES ISOLATION POLICY

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 22.—Opposition to the League of Nations, the World Court of International Justice and all other instruments for American cooperation in world affairs was the keynote of a Washington Day address here tonight by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri before the Creve-Coeur Club.

He urged the policy of uncompromising political isolation, enunciated by Washington in his farewell address 128 years ago, and characterized as "ridiculous" the recent suggestion of William G. McAdoo, Democratic Presidential candidate, that the question of American participation in world affairs be submitted to a national referendum.

The Missouri Senator dwelt also upon Teapot Dome, and the professional traditions concerning the relationships between lawyers and clients.

In a summary of his platform, Senator Reed declared for the "restoration of liberties secured by the Bill of Rights."

"I would like to see a large number of oppressive laws modified or repealed," he said. "I should like to see the Capitol cleansed of every bribe-giver and bribe-taker, every buyer and every seller of influence, and honest Government restored to the nation by men who, either in office or out, regard their obligations to their fellow-men as too sacred for barter or sale."

Discusses Ethics of Lawyers.

Teapot Dome, the Senator said, "has shocked the public conscience and almost destroyed the faith of the nation in their Government."

Referring to the McAdoo proposal for a referendum on foreign policy, Senator Reed said he was unwilling to see his party "enter a race on an issue which lost, on an issue which defeated it in every Northern State and broke it in the solid South."

Discussing ethics of the legal profession, the Senator recalled that after the war there was a flood of resignations by every sort of Government employe from department clerks to Cabinet officers.

"They were possessed of inside information or they had gained great influence through public honors that had been conferred upon them.

"Accordingly they went into the open market to sell that information and that influence to those who were contending against the Government. Most of them distinguished their transactions under the term of 'legal services.' With that mask before them, they expected to escape detection, and even now have the effrontery to pretend that their action was ethical because it was performed in the capacity of attorneys at law.

"I deny and repudiate such a doctrine. It is contrary to the ethics of the legal profession and contrary to the spirit of the law."

Cohalan Raps Foreign Interests.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—America can best honor the memory of George Washington by conforming to his standard and ideals in government, former Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of the Supreme Court of New York said tonight in a Washington Day banquet address before the Friends of Irish Freedom.

His address was a plea for American adherence to the policy of political isolation from the other nations of the world and for such action in the Teapot Dome affair as will restore the "confidence of the people in Government and those who administer it." He suggested the possibility of "great foreign interests" being "back of these deals and schemes intended to exhaust as speedily as possible the great oil stores so essential to our national welfare."

Earlier in the day the former Justice, who came here with Senator Reed to be the luncheon guest of officers of the Friends of Irish Freedom, denied his trip with the Missouri Senator had any political significance.

"The fact that we are traveling together is merely a coincidence," he said. "It does not mean that I have been appointed manager of Senator Reed's Presidential campaign. Without doubt I will work for his nomination and election, but not in the capacity of campaign manager."

Mr. Cohalan's resignation from the Supreme Bench, announced Dec. 28, started reports in political circles he would assume the management of Senator Reed's campaign.

stood to be the beginning of the battle on the part of Mr. Adams and his lieutenants in the organization to array Republicans throughout the country against the effort that is being made within the party to permit members of the Coolidge adminitsration to yield to the demand of Democratic and Republican radical Senators.

The Chairman feels that he has back of him the weight of the sentiment of the party throughout the counrty. That there is such a sentiment is indicated by communications which are pouring in on the committee from Republicans, who feel that an attempt is being made to wreck the party by the assaults against Secretary Denby and the Attorney General.

A number of events preceding announcement of the statement indicate the reasons which impelled him to issue it. These events emphasize that the attack on Mr. Denby is keenly resented by his Republican friends in Michigan and that considerable feeling is being aroused over the effort on the part of leading Republican Senators to have Mr. Daugherty ousted

A week ago last Sunday Mr. Adams had a conference in Washington with two Washington friends of Secretary Denby and two Michigan Republicans, to whom he expressed the hope that Mr. Denby would not be permitted to resign the Navy portfolio. These friends of Mr. Denby responded that he would not remain in the Cabinet while under the daily fire of Senators making "slanderous" attacks to which he could not reply when he had no Republican defenders in the Senate. They said, apparently quoting Mr. Denby, that the best any Republican Senator seemed able to say in his defense was that Senator Robinson's resolution calling for his resignation was not the proper way to go about obtaining his retirement. These Michigan Republicans also told Chairman Adams that the Republican national organization might just as well expect no help from Michigan if Mr. Denby left the Cabinet.

Advised Against Denby Action.

It became known tonight that Mr. Adams advised President Coolidge not to permit Mr. Denby to resign and asked him not to accept his resignation if it were offered. Since then Mr. Adams has told the President that it would be unwise to permit Mr. Daugherty to be forced out of the Cabinet. President Coolidge was also told by the Chairman that if the Administration does not take a stand against the attack upon the members of his Cabinet the assault of the Administration's political enemies will be carried on indefinitely, with the campaign against Denby and Daugherty followed by other attacks.

Reports from sources regarded as reliable have been brought to the National Committee that those who were behind the attacks on Daugherty and Denby are making preparations to attempt to force out of the Cabinet every one of its members except Postmaster General New and Secretary of Labor Davis.

According to these reports, there is to be an assault upon Secretary Hughes with relation to his foreign policy as far as it concerns oil fields in foreign and mandate territory. Senator Wheeler of Montana, the author of the resolution aimed at Attorney General Daugherty, already has offered resolutions calling for diplomatic correspondence concerning oil.

Secretary Hoover is to be attacked, it is claimed, for alleged support of the Administration policy under which the naval oil leases were made, and for his attitude with regard to sugar and furs, so far as these products come within the province of the Department of Commerce.

Secretary Weeks and Secretary Wallace are also mentioned as down on the list of those upon whose official records it will be sought to throw discredit.

Information was obtained tonight that the statement of Chairman Adams issued today is a mere curtain-raiser. It is to be followed by aggressive attacks upon the same line from Republican national headquarters. Preparations are being made to go back into the record of the Wilson Administration with a view to finding the genesis of the oil leasing policy.

From what was said in informed quarters here this evening, it is gathered that local party leaders and editors of Republican newspapers are urging Chairman Adams to fight back at the Democrats and to go into the records of members of the last Democratic Administration. Mr. Adams's statement is interpreted as meaning that if the party leadership in the Senate is to be spineless, and President Coolidge does not intend to defend his Cabinet, the organization will take up the cudgels for those officials who are being attacked and will fight the situation through to a finish.

Everything known of the President's attitude tends to create the impression that he adheres to the response he made to the Senate resolution calling for Secretary Denby's resignation; that he will not sacrifice the innocent along with the guilty, but will not spare any one against whom charges of irregularity or dishonesty are proved. Mr. Denby's reaction to this course of the President was to tender his resignation as an act of appreciation for the President's rebuff to the Senate, and to relieve the President of any possible political embarrassment due to his continuance in the Cabinet.

Mr. Daugherty, however, takes the position that the drive against him has no connection with the charges concerning the Teapot Dome and California oil leases. He contends that the charges were investigated by the House Committee on the Judiciary impeachment proceedings last Winter, and that after the committee acquitted him by a vote of 20 to 1, the House sustained its findings. In these circumstances Mr. Daugherty declines to get out and demands another investigation. His position, in substance, is that he will not be sacrificed to the fear of prominent Republicans that he is a political liability to the Coolidge Administration.

Daugherty Appears in Senate.

Mr. Daugherty caused a mild sensation today by appearing on the floor of the Senate. That body was then engaged in its customary observance of Washington's birthday through the reading of the Farewell Address of the Father of his Country. Senator Willis, of Ohio, Mr. Daugherty's stanch friend, who had left the Senatorial conference of Wednesday when it was apparent that its object was to bring pressure to bear on President Coolidge and Mr. Daugherty to have the latter resign, had been selected to do the reading. The Attorney General listened to him attentively, and before and after the exercises chatted with Senators Elkins and Moses, who sat near him. He shook hands with Senator Fess of his own State.

The explanation given for the Attorney General's appearance in the midst of a body comprising men who are seeking to disgrace him was that when Senator Willis was chosen to read Washington's Farewell Address Mr. Daugherty told Mr. Willis that he would be present to hear the reading.

There was no abatement today of the circulation of sensational reports in connection with the investigation of the oil leases, and the situation in which Mr. Daugherty occupies the centre of the stage. One rumor had it that he had made up his mind to tell many startling things if he were sacrificed by President Coolidge in compliance with the desire of Republican Senators.

Mr. Daugherty served notice in his letter to Senator Pepper that if he were forced out of office without a hearing, he would appeal to the country. That he intends to stand pat on his refusal to resign seemed to be clear from all that developed today. It is taken for granted that he would tender his resignation if asked to do so by President Coolidge, but that he would construe such a request as justification for charging that he had been sacrificed to party expediency, and would go to the country to combat the course of the President.

In no quarter is it asserted that the President has even suggested to Mr. Daugherty that his resignation would be welcome. From all accounts, Senators Lodge and Pepper got nowhere with Mr. Coolidge when they called on him Wednesday to say that a group of regular Republican Senators thought that Mr. Daugherty's retirement was desirable for the good of the party. It is evident that the President's attitude is causing a slight reaction to the belief that even a man who has been so bitterly attacked as Mr. Daugherty is entitled to a fair hearing.

Fear Too Many Complications.

Meanwhile there are suggestions that Senators who are seeking to uncover all the details connected directly or remotely with the alleged corruption of public officials are apprehensive that the drive against Attorney General Daugherty may complicate what they are trying to accomplish.

While there are attempts to prove that Mr. Daugherty was a party to sanctioning the lease to the Sinclair and Doheny oil interests, and that he invested in oil securities, the pending resolution of Senator Wheeler of Montana provides for an investigation of the Department of Justice administration by a special committee of five Senators. This would be a separate investigation from that now in progress by the Committee on Public Lands, which has developed ex-Secretary Fall's relation with Messrs. Sinclair and Doheny. The Wheeler resolution probably will come before the Senate early next week, and it is regarded as a foregone conclusion that it will be adopted, if pressed.

In his statement on Mr. Daugherty today Chairman Adams paid his respects to Democrats who were retained by oil interests. He asserts that the reputation of three former Democratic Cabinet officers and other Democrats prominent in the Wilson Administration "has been affected because they received money from the same oil interests as hire for their political influence with their own Administration."

Mr. Adams refers to those who sought Secretary Denby's removal and are furthering the agitation against Mr. Daugherty as "a few political blackguards and scandalmongers," who, he alleged, "have launched a general campaign against members of the Cabinet and others high in official life." This seems to be a reflection of a belief prevailing in Republican quarters that the Democrats have agreed upon a plan to pick off members of the Coolidge Cabinet one by one, with Denby first and Daugherty second on the list.

Chairman Adams makes the flat statement that Mr. Daugherty had nothing to do with the oil leases. The investigating committee has been seeking evidence to prove that Mr. Daugherty gave an oral opinion approving their legality. Its quest is based on a letter, apparently written by Director Bain of the Bureau of Mines, to Albert B. Fall when he was Secretary of the Interior, in which reference was made to an opinion of the Attorney General.

Mr. Adams's Statement.

Chairman Adams's statement is as follows:

"The integrity of a former Republican Cabinet official has been called into serious question because he accepted money while in office from certain oil interests.

"The reputation of three former Democratic Cabinet members, and other Democrats prominent in the Wilson Administration, has been affected because they received money from the same oil interests as hire for their political influence with their own Administration.

"So much for the facts regarding the use of money disclosed up to date in the oil investigation.

"Taking advantage of this situation, a few political blackguards and scandalmongers have launched a general campaign of slander against members of the Cabinet and others high in official life.

"One of the victims of this campaign is Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Navy. The record shows he did not perform a single act in connection with the leasing of the naval oil reserves that was either illegal or immoral—much less a betrayal of public trust or inimical to public welfare.

"Not one of Secretary Denby's detractors can quote any official record or sworn testimony to the contrary. Not one dare make his accusations outside the halls of Congress, where he claims protection in the prerogative of uttering slander.

"Now it is being charged that Attorney General Daugherty was a party to the transaction. He had nothing whatever to do with the oil leases. He was not even consulted regarding them. Those making these charges claim they want a Congressional investigation of Mr. Daugherty in order to bring out the facts. But they are not willing to wait for the investigation.

"What they hope to do is to force Attorney General Daugherty to retire from the Cabinet before such an investigation can take place. They hope he will prefer such retirement to the alternative of remaining in office to be harassed and slandered.

"The Republican Party organization stands unalterably for clean and honest administration of public affairs. It does not condone betrayal of public trust, or seek to protect those of its party guilty of such betrayal.

"But it is equally insistent that guilt must be proved or shown by evidence that admits of no doubt. Hysteria is not proof. Libel is not truth. Idle gossip and hearsay scandal are not evidence.

"To punish innocent men upon such irresponsible and disreputable grounds often results in letting those who are really guilty escape. It is not without the range of possibilities that those who are now making wild charges against public officials seek to sacrifice innocent men in order that guilt which should be ferreted out and properly placed may escape detection.

Calls Campaign "Terrorism."

"This is not the time to yield to the threats of those who are conducting this campaign of political terrorism, or to the demands of those who are frightened by such methods. The records show that most of the charges now being made are merely revamped from those made some time ago by a member of the House of Representatives in a demand for Attorney General Daugherty's impeachment.

"These charges were thoroughly investigated by a House Committee, which by a vote of 20 to 1 denounced them as untrue and unwarranted. This decision of the committee the House of Representatives concurred in by an overwhelming vote on non-partisan lines. The new charges now being made are nothing but cheap gossip, part of which has already been utterly discredited.

"Why should Attorney General Daugherty resign without a hearing? That is not the American way of doing things. It is time for officials of integrity to face their detractors and place the brand of infamy upon those who make their public office the mouthpiece of foul calumny.

"America, her institutions and her form of government are not now, and never will be, endangered by enemies from without. Her menace is from those who, for the purpose of elevating themselves into the limelight of questionable notoriety, or of serving the baser purposes of partisanship, seek to destroy the faith of the American people in their public officials and institutions.

"The time has come for Republican leadership to stop acting on the defensive and to begin aggressive warfare on political traducers who sat silent while the greatest orgy of waste, incompetency and corruption that the world has ever witnessed took place in Washington under the Democratic Administration."

WASHINGTON IDEALS URGED BY COOLIDGE

him with some high place, but by thinking of him as one of ourselves. When all detailed description fails, it is enough to say he was a great man. He had a supreme endowment of character.

No one can think of America without thinking of Washington. When we look back over the course of history before his day, it seems as though it had all been a preparation for him and his time; when we consider events since then, we can see a steady growth and development of the ideals which he represented, and the institutions which he founded, world-wide in extent. The principles which he fought to establish have become axioms of civilization. It might almost be said that the progress which peoples have made is measured by the degree with which they have accepted the great policies which he represented.

Called People to a Higher Duty.

It is not possible to compress a great life into a single sentence. We look upon Washington as the exponent of the rights of man. We think of him as having established the independence of America. We associate his name with liberty and freedom. We say that he was a great influence in the adoption of the Constitution of the United States. All these are centred around the principle of self-government. But when we examine the meaning of independence, of constitutional liberty and of self-government, we do not find that they are simple rights which society can bestow upon us. They are very complex. They have to be earned. They have to be paid for. They arise only from the discharge of our obligations one to another.

Washington did not, could not, give anything to his countrymen. His greatness lies in the fact that he was successful in calling them to the performance of a higher duty. He showed them how to have a greater liberty by earning it. All that any society can do, all that any Government can do, is to attempt to guarantee to the individual the social, economic and political rewards of his own effort and industry.

The America which Washington founded does not mean we shall have everything done for us, but that we shall have every opportunity to do everything for ourselves. This is liberty. But it is liberty only through the acceptance of responsibility.

It cannot fail to be worth while to recall some of the activities of Washington and the men of his day. They were without independence. They went through the hardship of seven terrible years of war that it might be secured. They were without a National Government. They went through the toil and expense, the misgivings and sacrifices of years of political agitation that it might finally be established.

They were without industry, without commerce, without transportation and without shipping. But by their enterprise, their effort, their inventive genius and their courage these were created.

These efforts and their experiences we should keep constantly in mind. Before we complain too much about our hardships in these luxurious days, before we complain too much about such hardships, before we lose faith in the power of the people by relying on themselves best to serve themselves, it is well to consider the early beginnings of the Republic.

No one needs to be told of the general success which has attended the putting into effect of these principles politically and socially. No one claims that they have brought about, or are likely to bring about in the immediate future, a condition of perfection.

Self-government does not purge us of all our faults, but there are very few students of the affairs of mankind who would deny that the theory upon which our institutions proceed gives the best results that have ever been given to any people. When there is a failure it is not because the system has failed, but because we have failed.

For the purpose of insuring liberty, for enactment of sound legislation, for the administration of even-handed justice, for the faithful execution of the laws, no institutions have ever given greater promise or more worthy performance than those which are represented by the name of Washington.

We have changed our Constitution and laws to meet changing conditions and a better appreciation of the broad requirements of humanity. We have extended and increased the direct power of the voter, but the central idea of self-government remains unchanged. While we realize that freedom and independence of the individual mean increased responsibility for the individual, while we know that the people do and must support the Government, and that the Government does not and cannot support the people, yet the protection of the individual from the power now represented by organized numbers and consolidated wealth requires many activities on the part of the Government which were not needed in the days of Washington.

Many laws are necessary for this purpose, both in the name of justice and of humanity. Efforts in this direction are not for the purpose of undermining the independence of the individual, but for the purpose of maintaining for him an equal opportunity. They are made on the theory that each individual is entitled to live his own life in his own way, free from every kind of tyranny and oppression.

We have not yet reached the goal of Washington's ideals. They are not yet fully understood. He was a practical man. He suffered from no delusions. He knew that there was no power to establish a system under which existence could be supported without effort.

Those who now expect anything in that direction are certain to be disappointed. He held out no promise of unearned rewards, either in small or large amounts. On the other hand, if no one ought to receive gain except for services rendered, no one ought to be required to render service except for reasonable compensation.

Equality and justice both require that there should be no profiteering and no exploitation. Under the Constitution of the United States there is neither any peasantry nor any order of nobility. Politically, economically and socially, service and character are to reign, and service and character alone.

Such is the meaning of the life of George Washington, who came into being nearly 200 years ago. He left the world stronger and better. He made life broader and sweeter.

He accomplished these results by accepting great responsibilities and making great sacrifices. If we are to maintain the institutions which he founded, if we are to improve what he created, we must be like-minded with him; we must continue to accept responsibilities; we must continue to make sacrifices. Under all the laws of God and man there is no other way.

Millions Heard Address.

Several million persons heard the Washington's Birthday address of President Coolidge over the radio last night, according to information from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. Atmospheric conditions were excellent for broadcasting, and the President's words were heard with remarkable distinctness. He spoke into a microphone in his study at the White House. The microphone carried the sound to Station WCAP of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company at Washington, which broadcast the address throughout that vicinity, and also relayed it to Station WEAF of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in this city and to Station WJAR of the Outlet Company in Providence, R. I.

Americanization Graduates Among Audience—Services Also Are Held in Churches.

The anniversary of the birth of Washington was widely observed yesterday in churches and at meetings, the observance being linked, through half-staffed flags, to the month's memorial declared for former President Woodrow Wilson.

The largest meeting was held in Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of the Sons of the Revolution in New York State, in cooperation with eighteen patriotic organizations. Robert Olyphant, President of the Revolutionary descendants in this State, presided and the speaker was United States Senator Selden P. Spencer, General President of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution.

More than 2,000 were in the audience, including Boy and Girl Scouts and graduates of the Americanization classes conducted by the society.

"In the Revolution," said Senator Spencer, "there was one traitor to 231,791 soldiers, and the proportion is no greater today. The heart and conscience and patriotism of the American people on the farm, in the shop, at the office and in the home as in public office is fundamentally true and honest. Here and there, now and then, there is a betrayal of public trust, but the instant outcry of indignation and contempt as against an incredible wrong shows how little accustomed the American people are to treachery. Rather should we guard ourselves that in the earnest desire to punish the guilty we do not besmirch unjustly the innocent.

Washington Led in Two Crises.

"In two of the three great national crises of this Republic, upon which the very existence of our Government depended, Washington took the leading part. These three crises were the War of the Revolution, the formation and adoption of the Federal Constitution and the Civil War between the North and the South.

"Upon three foundation stones of human patriotism, human unselfishness in the hour of the country's need and human dependence upon an infinite God, rested the fate of the War of the Revolution, as today, upon these same great foundations, rests the superstructure which we call America and within which 110,000,000 people enjoy the blessings and privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship.

"Let us never forget our Constitution. It ought to be read and reread by every American. The preamble is the best illustration of high governmental purpose, expressed in beautiful and convincing language, that has ever been written. We stand or we fall in this loved Republic of ours as we deal with the Constitution of the United States.

"Congress may be swayed, perhaps, with temporary majorities in Congress, by public clamor, or by ill-considered and widespread agitation—pray God it may never happen—but all such passing passion is unavailing to either weaken or destroy this mighty guardian of justice."

Washington would counsel the policies of Wilson were he alive today, said Professor Nelson P. Mead of the Department of History of the College of the City of New York at services in the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

"It is a curious critic," he continued, "who would say that Washington today would again advise the United States to avoid foreign entanglements, for he would be confronted with a set of problems vitally different from those which existed when he made his farewell address. The end of that farewell address makes clear that Washington qualified his advice. He stated that 'the time will come when this country will be strong enough to stand by itself and to protect itself.' That time has come. Whether we like it or not, we are part of a great world fabric."

Professor Mead referred to the naval oil leasing scandal, declaring that corruption in high places makes inspiring the memory of great men who stood for great ideals against overwhelming odds. He linked the name of Washington, Lincoln and Wilson.

Washington a Churchman.

"George Washington was a thorough churchman," said Bishop William T. Manning in an address at the annual communion of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. "The spirit of duty," he added, "of responsibility, trustworthiness and sense of obligation are the things that make a nation strong."

More than 1,000 members of the New York Chapter, Knights of Columbus, gathered in St. Patrick's Cathedral for their annual Washington's Birthday solemn mass of requiem for members who died during the year. The preacher was the Rev. Joseph O'Connor, pastor of St. Denis Church, Yonkers, and the celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Patrick N. Breslin, pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Mercy, Fordham. The church was decorated with the American and papal colors.

"It is well to recognize," said Rabbi Israel Goldstein, preaching at Temple B'Nai Jeshurun, "that in the building of the sanctuary of American democracy, of which George Washington was the master architect, the Jew, small as was his number, contributed even more than was his full levy. Washington's championship of religious freedom was an integral part of his passion for political liberty."

Under the auspices of the Sulgrave Institution, which maintains the Washington ancestral home in Sulgrave, England, a memorial service for the first President was held in St. Paul's Chapel. The pew where General Washington sat was occupied by Judge and Mrs. Alton B. Parker, John A. Stewart and Colonel Walter Scott. Judge Parker is Chancellor of the institution. Mr. Stewart is Chairman of the Board of Governors and Colonel Scott is head of the St. Andrew's Society. Asthma prevented the scheduled preacher, the Rev. G. A. Stoddert-Kennedy, a chaplain to the King of England, from appearing. His place was taken by the vicar of St. Paul's, the Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas.

Several hundred members of the Washington Headquarters Association, which was founded by the Daughters of the American Revolution, gathered yesterday afternoon at the Jumel Mansion, Edgecombe Avenue and 162d Street, to celebrate Washington's Birthday. This old homestead, which was the headquarters of the First General of the United States Armies during the battles in the vicinity of New York, is now preserved by the Municipal Department of Parks, although managed by the Daughters of the American Revolution, as a museum.

A Salute to the Colors.

Following an invocation by the Rev. Dr. Anthony H. Evans, Colonel Walter Brownell Tuffts, dressed as a Colonial soldier, presented the colors while all saluted. At the close of "The Star-Spangled Banner," Acting Commissioner of Parks John J. Ryan delivered the greeting on behalf of the city and compared the flocking to the colors in 1776 with 1917. He maintained that the spirit for which Washington and his followers fought was fulfilled in the World War.

Miss Laura Burt recited "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and a representative of Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, spoke on behalf of the navy. Other speakers were N. Taylor Phillips and Gutson Borglum, the sculptor. The audience joined in singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "America."

Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn, who spoke at the exercises of the American Legion of New York County at Town Hall, told his audience what he described as a secret of the World War.

"At about the time when it was learned we would have to paint our steamers up like scarecrows so they would not be sunk," said Mr. Lunn, "and Mr. Wilson had resolved we would have to go into the war, he was visited by a group of Senators and members of the House who told him, 'If you bring in a resolution declaring war, we will oppose you.' But Wilson remained steadfast, as Washington and Lincoln had done before him in times of crisis."

Edward E. Spafford, State Commander of the Legion, quoted a letter from General Washington to the Governors of the thirteen States urging that an award be made to the Continental soldiers. A certificate of award was presented to Miss Cecelia Gill, a pupil at St. Monica's School, who won the Legion's essay contest on "The Federal Government, Its Departments and Their Functions."

GOVERNOR REVIEWS PARADE

Veterans of Brooklyn Volunteer Firemen's Associations March.

Governor Alfred E. Smith was the principal reviewing officer yesterday at the annual parade of the veterans of the volunteer firemen's associations in Brooklyn. With the Governor on the steps of the Borough Hall were John H. McCooey, Jacob Livingston, Sheriff John N. Harman, Justice William J. Kelly, William H. English, President of the Montauk Club, and other notables.

William H. Todd, head of Todd's Shipyard Corporation, was the grand marshal. Occupying positions of honor were delegations of volunteer firemen from Baltimore and Wilmington. Todd's Shipyards Corporation Band furnished the music, to which about 350 veterans marched past the reviewing stand. John B. Byrne, President of the Brooklyn Volunteer Firemen's Association, received a silver trumpet from the students of St. Francis College. Some of those in line were between 80 and 90 years of age. They made a brave showing with their blue coats flapping in the brisk breeze exposing their red shirts. After the march there was a luncheon at the Hotel Bossert.

A few gray-haired men who fought fires in Manhattan before the Civil War celebrated Washington's Birthday. They were the remnants of the volunteer firemen whose last fire was that which destroyed Barnum's Museum, Ann Street and Broadway, on July 13, 1865. They are members of the Association of Exempt Firemen, organized on Oct. 13, 1842. The program yesterday consisted of a luncheon, an entertainment and a dance at their club rooms in the old Jefferson Market Building, 10 Greenwich Avenue. Instead of turning out 150 strong with their own band and their pump engine, as they did in other years, only about thirty-five were present.

The youngest member is George W. Collier, 81 years old, of 1,701 Montgomery Avenue, the Bronx, and the oldest Manhattanite is James Y. Watkins, 94 years old, of 7 West 128th Street. Both attended the celebration.

AMERICANS IN PARIS HONOR WASHINGTON

PARIS, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—One hundred and fifty members and guests of the American Club attended a banquet this evening celebrating Washington's Birthday.

Count Charles de Chambrun of the French Foreign Office, who is a descendant of Lafayette, was the guest of honor. He related numerous incidents showing that Washington was appreciated in France, even contemporaneously. He cited a remark Washington made after the revolution had been successful: "Our battles might have been skirmishes, but they decided the fate of a world."

Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, spoke of Washington's hope to make the red Indian an integral and useful force in the life of the new nation. Failure to realize such hope the Ambassador attributed largely to the Indian having been the pawn and victim of the Franco-British struggle on American soil, both nations employing him and encouraging his bloodthirsty practices. Later the English used the Indians as mercenaries against the Colonials. Thus the Indian became irretrievably debased before the Federal Government was organized.

Earlier in the day Ambassador Herrick, by inviting each of his guests to speak, transformed his customary Washington's Birthday luncheon to the diplomatic representatives of Latin America into a real Pan-American celebration.

Ambassador Says English-Speaking Democracies Constitute the World's Hope.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Improved Anglo-American relations was the theme of speeches by Winston Churchill and Ambassador Kellogg at the Washington Birthday dinner given by the English-Speaking Union tonight to the American Ambassador and Mrs. Kellogg.

Winston Churchill presided, supported by J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and the High Commissioners for Newfoundland, Australia, Canada and the Irish Free State.

"Had his advice been taken and the reservations he proposed been incorporated in the program of the great party to which he belonged and the policy of the President, it is quite possible that a far better situation would exist in Europe and the whole of our affairs would stand with an enormously stronger foundation, which can only be reached with the cooperation of the United States."

Mr. Churchill said there were many difficulties which in the past had obstructed the relations of Britain and the United States, which now had been cleared out of the way forever. Whereas the military recollections of the two nations were those of strife and hostility, they now had a common ground of comradeship in the line of battle.

Referring to the Washington conference, Mr. Churchill said Britain had consented with a good heart that henceforth the guardianship of the seas should be shared with the United States, and no greater act of faith in the character, proof and pledge of the deep, profound understanding that existed between these two great democracies could have been given.

J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary, said the significance which had brought into being the present Government was that it was brought about not by a bloody upheaval, not by bullets, but by democracy exercising its right at the ballot box.

Mr. Kellogg, responding to Mr. Churchill's toast, said the English people now looked on the American Revolution as a great epoch in human history and a milestone of progress. Without detracting from the great accomplishments of other peoples in the advancement of representative self-government, he thought it fair to the English-speaking race to say they had done more to advance self-government than all the rest of the world. England was the cradle of parliamentary government, the United States was the first great constitutional democracy. Representative democracy and parliamentary government, going hand in hand, had been adopted by nearly all the nations of the world.

A real, true and lasting entente between the British people and the United States could not be made in a day, he said, nor could it be made between any two countries by treaties of offensive or defensive alliance, or by treaties by the few men who happened to be in power. A lasting entente could be made only by common purposes, common ideals, common objects and common knowledge of each other, having due regard for each other's rights and place in the world. That, he believed, existed in the British Empire and the United States.

Seeks Missing Daughter.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 22.—President Coolidge was made an honorary member of George Washington Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, by unanimous vote passed today in the Washington's Birthday celebration of the chapter.

WADSWORTH WANTS CURB ON AMENDMENTS

Says Voter Should Have More Voice in Altering of Constitution.

Pointing out that there were more than ninety proposed amendments to the Constitution before Congress, Senator James W. Wadsworth, speaking at the Washington dinner of the Sons of the Revolution in the Hotel Plaza last night, declared that a way should be provided for voters to pass on the ratifying acts of their legislators. He said he believed such a change was vital in view of the power of organized propaganda to accomplish the amending of the Constitution.

Senator Wadsworth called attention to the fact that under the Constitution no way was provided for a State to change its vote on an amendment from affirmative to negative, although it could switch from negative to affirmative. He cited as an example the action of the Tennessee Legislature in reversing its affirmative vote in favor of the Nineteenth Amendment granting woman suffrage, a procedure which was of no avail. He said that of the two ways provided to amend the Constitution only one had been used, namely, submitting the question to State Legislatures.

"With more than ninety possible amendments confronting us, we should give some serious attention to this subject," Senator Wadsworth said. "We are in a restless era when many people want to change things just for the sake of a change; when others want to do away with the old and the tried. When citizens see the very laws which they rejected affirmed by their legislators they are inclined to ask: 'Where do the people come in?'

"Take the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Amendments, for example. The people of Maryland and California rejected prohibition, yet their Legislatures ratified the prohibition amendment. The voters of West Virginia by a three to one vote rejected woman suffrage, yet the members of the Legislature promptly vote to affirm the Nineteenth Amendment."

Senator Wadsworth said that no State Legislature should be permitted to ratify a Federal amendment unless the members of at least one House had been elected since the submission of the question. He said that of the thirty-eight States which ratified the Nineteenth Amendment, thirty Legislatures were holdovers and that the State Constitutions of five of these thirty States forbade its Legislatures passing on amendments unless one House had been subsequently elected.

"One can see the dangers that confront us in the future if we are to be called on to put dozens of amendments into the Federal Constitution," Senator Wadsworth said.

"It is especially vital when one considers the power of organized propaganda, much of which is good and some of which is wretchedly bad. If a law is faulty, it can be amended or repealed; but once it is put into the Constitution in the form an amendment, nothing short of a political revolution can change it.

"The people never should be deprived of the right to say 'yes' or 'no' as to whether a new power should be delegated to the Government.

"Our great trouble has been that we wake up after the Constitution has been amended and nothing can be done about it."

Major Arthur de Ples of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, described George Washington as a man of destiny who had been chosen by God to forge a link in the chain of progress in the world. Major de Ples said that were Washington alive today he would recognize that not only was it a political and economic necessity, but a spiritual necessity that the two English-speaking nations work together in the world.

FOUR FIRE VICTIMS BURIED.

Crowd at Funeral of Mrs. Harkaway and Children, Last of 13 Killed.

As survivors watched from near-by windows yesterday, four hearses, three of them white, passed the ruins of the tenement at 395 Madison Street, in which thirteen persons died last Tuesday morning. The hearses contained the bodies of four of the five members of the Harkaway family, victims of the fire. Five coaches with relatives and friends followed the hearses.

The funeral procession to Calvary Cemetery was led by Captain William McKenzie and a detail of police from the Fifth Street Station. The bodies were those of Francis Harkaway, 8; John, 10; Felix, 12, and their mother, Mrs. Francis Harkaway.

The father is in Gouverneur Hospital, being treated for injuries received in the fire.

The funeral was held from the parlors of Peter Jerma, 129 East Seventh Street. It marked the burial of the last of the thirteen victims of the fire.

HYLAN LAUDS POLICE AT JUBILEE DINNER

ADMIRAL PLUNKETT'S PLEA

Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Commandant of the Third Naval District, with headquarters in the navy yard, last night asked the police to "keep the liquor away" from the 20,000 sailors due to land here March 2. He promised that they would behave if they were protected against the possibility of obtaining liquor. The Admiral took occasion also to assail the press.

Admiral Plunkett's speech was inspired by a letter written from Palm Beach by Mayor Hylan and read last night before the Silver Jubilee Dinner of the Police Lieutenants' Benevolent Association, held in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel with some 2,000 men and women in attendance. The Mayor's letter held up the solution of the West End Bank case as a criterion for police conduct. It attacked the press briefly and paid adverse compliments to "the pestiferous Citizens Union." Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright made an address devoted largely to a historical review of the last quarter of a century. United States Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey spoke in humorous vein. United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, ex-United States Senator Charles A. Towne and State Senator James J. Walker, also listed as speakers, were unable to be present.

Mayor Hylan's Letter.

The event began with the appearance of eight buglers from West Point. They sounded their respects to the national and police colors. After Auxiliary Bishop John J. Dunn had pronounced the invocation Lieutenant John H. Ayers, President of the association and toastmaster, read this letter from Mayor Hylan:

City of New York.
Office of the Mayor.

Dear Mr. Toastmaster: The annual dinner of the Lieutenants' Benevolent Association furnishes me an opportunity, personally or by letter, to get into direct touch with a very important branch of the police service. This is an opportunity which I have never let slip since I became Mayor. I think that the silver jubilee of the formation of the association now being celebrated is an occasion of more than usual interest and one which may permit of a communication of more than usual length.

One of the most gratifying signs of an awakened public interest in the efficiency of police work in the City of New York is the volume of congratulatory communications which have been received during the past year. Since my letter of a year ago to the Lieutenants' Benevolent Association, both the Mayor's Office and the office of the Police Commissioner have been in receipt of a considerable number of commendatory letters. From trifling acts of courtesy to the arrest of dangerous characters and the performance of thrilling acts of heroism runs the scope of public praise.

The apprehension of the murderers of the two West End Bank messengers in Brooklyn brought forth an exceptionally wide response. People in all walks of life seemed anxious to voice appreciation. This particular case was admittedly an extremely difficult one from the police viewpoint, the clues being most meagre and the tracking of the suspects requiring dogged pursuit through many cities. To the skillfulness of the detective work employed, the Kings County Grand Jury, which indicted the bandits, were pleased to pay tribute in a note of congratulation to the Commissioner; and that no error of judgment was made in these arrests is evidenced by the prompt conviction and the imposition of the death penalty upon three of the apprehended bandits.

Praise for the Courts.

Personally, I am greatly heartened by such a conspicuous example of effective police work, the splendid cooperation extended by the office of the District Attorney and the courts, as well as the definite assurance which followed that the people of the City of New York are solidly behind their police.

But the situation should not furnish any pretext for resting upon our oars. The public encouragement extended should be regarded as a greater incentive for continued zeal and painstaking effort in all branches of the police service. Lieutenants, as superior officers, will recognize the inescapable obligation devolving upon them to permit of no relaxing of activity among the men of their commands. Every superior officer in the Police Department should carefully bear in mind that there are rules and regulations governing his own conduct as well as that of subordinates, and that nothing tends more to disturb the honest, well-intentioned policeman than to perceive his superiors playing fast and loose with rules while insisting upon their absolute observance by the rank and file.

Robbers, thugs and other undesirables must be made to realize that lawlessness is becoming less and less profitable from a financial as well as a physical standpoint in the City of New York. To prevent the occasional outbursts of criminality and to deter the weak or criminally minded from embarking upon careers of crime, there must be more of the splendid police work which characterized the handling of the West End Bank case. The attendant publicity acts as a decided deterrent to the commission of similar crimes by others.

"Larceny in High Place."

This country has been rocked as never before by disclosures of moral turpitude and political larceny in high place. The loss of confidence in the integrity of public officers entrusted with the property of the people of the nation which these disclosures are entailing is too obvious for comment. While the public may not have been able to prevent the spoliation of its property by faithless trustees, the time is not distant when it will demonstrate that it can impose severe punishment.

But the fact remains that the lessening of public confidence in the servants of the public strikes a blow at respect for the law itself. To the unthinking mind no reason may suggest itself why public plundering should be the monopoly of the educated or the powerful. In that there is food for much thought. We will need to be more than ordinarily watchful in this great cosmopolitan City of New York where hostile newspapers and anti-municipal administration agitators lose no opportunity to create false and distorted impressions as to the effectiveness of the police arm.

Despite a 4 per cent. reduction in such crimes as murder, felonious assault, assault and robbery, and burglary during the year 1923 as compared with the preceding year, following the continued reduction in these major crimes throughout the past six years, there are some who still blab of "crime waves," drawing upon their heated imaginations rather than upon verifiable facts.

It is not to be expected that there will ever be a unanimity of opinion as to the conscientiousness or motives of those dealing with the public. For example, there is the pestiferous Citizens Union, which would like to, but can't, run the city Administration, and whose Chairman in a published interview in The World of last year, in answer to the query, "Just what is your ideal of good government?" replied "It is not a very high ideal." On that I am absolutely in accord with the Chairman of that organization.

Criticizes Citizens Union.

It was the Citizens Union which would have denied to the City of New York the right to hold its Silver Jubilee and by so doing would have kept the people of the country in the dark as to the safety accorded life and limb in this city. One of the reasons for their opposition to the celebration was, in effect, according to the Chairman, because the community could not find money enough to provide school facilities for the children. Now the fact is, and it cannot be reiterated often enough, the City of New York has appropriated over $130,000,000 for schools during this Administration, and in the past few years there have been more public schools built and opened for the children than were constructed during the previous thirty or forty years. The latest contribution of the Citizens Union to municipal obstruction appears to be a pooling of interests with the Public Education Association—the arch-advocates of the Gary system—and certain groups of women in an advocacy of the destruction of a great number of the older school buildings which, if permitted before new ones are opened, would only increase the congestion which is being rapidly corrected.

Neither the hypocrisy of disappointed, disgruntled, self-constituted, unofficial groups and organizations, nor the vicious criticism which has been launched against us for more than six years has prevailed. But we must be constantly on guard. If each of us in our respective spheres will continue to do his utmost for the welfare of the people of the city, we shall earn and receive that measure of public commendation which is the only true index to the honesty, loyalty and efficiency of public servants.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN F. HYLAN, Mayor.

Admiral Plunkett said, in part:

"No organization has higher ideals and none lives up to them better than the New York police force. Twenty thousand sailors are impatient to reach this port March 2 and take a fling at New York. In the old days it was the ambition of the sailors to get ashore at New York and take a crack at a cop. Times have changed. Those men have disappeared. Today we have an entirely different young sailor. They are good, honest North Americans.

"I beg of you, when you see those youngsters ashore here—a large majority of them will act like all good New Yorkers, but a small number, as in any community, won't do what is right. But they'll do right if you keep the liquor away from them.

"We've all been reading in the press the things the police ought to do. One sure way to destroy the morale of a force is to keep pounding them day after day and telling them they're no good. Your force is the finest in the world. Go to the people who print to the world things derogatory to the force that makes the city safe for you and me. They haven't got a leg to stand on. It's an outrage. The Mayor's letter voices the sentiment of the great mass of the people of the city. The only ones opposed to the police are those who should be in cages or locked in cells."

Commissioner Enright said that a roll call of the city would show all present at the dinner "with the exception of the bob-haired bandit and John T. King."

POLAND ASSAILS SMITH ON 'DRY' LAW STAND

Anti-Saloon League Counsel Says He Was Insincere in Demanding Enforcement.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 22.—In a statement made public here today, Orville S. Poland, counsel for the Anti-saloon League, attacked the sincerity of Governor Smith in demanding strict Statewide enforcement of the prohibition law.

"The Governor spoke in Albany, but his heart was in Madison Square Garden," said the statement.

"He cuts a curious figure when, with the mantle of assumed reverence for the law, he tries to cover the scars of twenty years' subservience to the liquor interests," continued the statement. "He shook a minatory finger at the officials of six rural Republican counties the total vote of which in 1922 was less than that of Bronx County and all of which gave Governor Miller substantial majorities in the year of the Democratic landslide.

"The Governor asserted that he can answer for the State Constabulary, because it is under his direct control. He has a lot to answer for. The State Constabulary will probably not add very much to his accountability. It certainly, on the Governor's statement, did not add very much to the number of arrests for violation of the prohibition law. With the whole force directly under his control, and such portion of it as he might direct, acting for 182 days in the border counties of the State, the best they could do was to make 124 arrests and that was an increase of 200 per cent. over the same number of days immediately preceding. Of course, at the latest available figures, there are only 348 officers and men in the State Constabulary and yet during 1922 they managed to make nearly 11,000 arrests.

"The striking thing about this comparison, however, is the emphasis it places upon the fact that the Mullan-Gage law deprived 25,000 State officers of any adequate power for the enforcement of prohibition. In 1922 there were more convictions, not merely arrests, under the Mullan-Gage law in Nassau County alone than the total number of arrests made in six months by the State Constabulary, which the Governor is so willing to answer for.

"The Governor is right when he states that there is an obligation upon every State official to enforce the National Prohibition act, but he is willfully misleading when he attempts to convey the impression that that obligation is coupled with adequate power for its performance.

"If the Governor were sincere in his desire to make amends for his action in signing the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, which he now so regrets, or if he really and honestly believes in local self-government, he would have endorsed the ordinance enabling 'triplets,' instead of merely indulging in generalities about coordination of municipal units, when he knows that the municipal units, with the possible exception of the cities, are wholly without the essential power in any proper way to discharge their obligations under the National Prohibition act and the Eighteenth Amendment."

The enabling "triplets" to which Mr. Poland refers, twice defeated in the Legislature, is an Anti-Saloon League measure advocated by the deposed William H. Anderson, which would permit cities, counties and villages to adopt local ordinances to enforce the prohibition law. Governor Smith holds there is no need for these bills.

MACREADY FAILS OF HEIGHT RECORD

Instruments Record 41,000 Feet, but Tests Cut This to 34,983 Feet.

SUPERCHARGER EXPLODES

Aviator Says He Could Have Gone Higher but for Accident—Hits 70 Below Zero.

DAYTON, Ohio, Feb. 22.—Lieutenant John A. Macready today failed in his second attempt in two months to set a new world's airplane altitude record.

His Lepere biplane reached an actual altitude of 34,983 feet, it was announced several hours after he had descended. It previously had been believed that the record was broken when his instruments showed an indicated altitude of 41,000 feet.

To better the Lecointe record Macready must have reached 37,855 feet, which is 1,300 feet or 400 meters higher than the French mark. This is a new ruling. It was formerly necessary to exceed a record by only 300 feet.

There were two outstanding failures in today's flight, officials said. The first was the failure of the supercharger, which broke when an indicated altitude of 41,000 feet was reached, and the second was the extraordinarily cold weather encountered at Macready's ceiling. The thermometer failed to register when 60 degrees below centigrade was reached. This is approximately 70 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit. Macready estimates that it was much colder, since he went considerably higher after the thermometer failed.

What Macready regarded as the most dangerous event, however, was the failure of the supercharger.

"I was going along fine, I thought," he said, "when suddenly something snapped. Whatever it was, it let go with a loud bang and shook the ship from end to end. I regarded this as so serious that I was prepared to jump.

"When the supercharger failed there was only one thing to do, start down," he said.

Macready declared that so far as his personal condition was concerned he could have gone higher. Two frostbitten spots on his face resulted from holes in his mask, and his feet were numb with cold, due to the failure of his engine, but otherwise he was in good shape.

Lieutenant Macready began his flight at 9:32 o'clock this morning and landed at 11:22.

Lieutenant Macready wore his usual height flying garb. Fur-lined clothing, five suits of underwear, heavy flying moccasins and a specially designed helmet figured in his record "make-up."

Until Lecointe won the title Lieutenant Macready held it with a record of 34,509 feet, established at McCook Field Sept. 28, 1921. The plane used in that flight was the one used by Macready today. Several improvements had been made, however.

Macready probably will make no more altitude attempts in the Le Pere ship, officials said, but may try again in another machine now being turned out at the field.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA UNABLE TO AGREE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Feb. 23.—After three years of intermittent negotiations between the Soviet Republic and the Government of Japan, the last hope of reaching an agreement seems to have disappeared. The recall from Japan of Arsène Vozneciensky, representative of the official Soviet news agency Rosta, who has acted as the unofficial mouthpiece of the Soviet Government since the departure of Joffe, is one more incident of a long chain of events which have developed in the past two weeks and which go to make an understanding impossible.

While orders recalling him were sent to Vozneciensky on Wednesday night from Moscow, simultaneously the Soviet announced the expulsion of the Japanese journalists from Russia. It is understood the Japanese Foreign Office informed Vozneciensky that in the event of the expulsion order continuing in effect against Japanese journalists similar action would be taken against his remaining here.

Recent incidents which led to the present climax include cancellation of the official status of the Japanese Consul at Vladivostok, suspending of mail from Vladivostok to Japan, prohibition of new contracts between Japan and Russian business men and Soviet authorization of cancellation of old contracts, a newspaper polemic between Karahan, head of the Soviet mission in Peking, and Baron Matsui, Japanese Foreign Minister, and finally the expulsion of the Japanese journalists.

Baron Matsui made it clear Japan is not prepared to recognize the Soviet and Japanese officials hold out no further hope of agreement on account of the wide divergencies of views apparent at three conferences held at Dairen, Changchun and Tokio, respectively, on fundamental questions, such as payment of old debts and recognition of old treaties.

Furthermore, Japan is apprehensive of Soviet influence owing to the radical tendency of the country manifest since the earthquake.

Vozneciensky, interviewed by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, charged that "need of financial support since the earthquake has led Japan to formulate her Russian policy in accord with America's policy."

LIMITED PUBLICITY ON TAX PASSES HOUSE

"A man is entitled to some privacy. My mind is not upon the mighty rich; my mind is upon the man with an income of $5,000, $10,000 or $20,000. Let us all remember that in this nation of 115,000,000 this tax is paid by only approximately 3,500,000.

"It means that we are having a new Government in America. It means that Wisconsin rules the House and Wisconsin rules the Senate—mighty Wisconsin. Well, I will not follow the lead of Wisconsin when it goes into the privacy of the home.

"The frontiersman who crossed the ocean and built the cabins in this land put doors and windows in the home in order that they might sleep and rise and dress in privacy. Some privacy must attach itself to the business of a man and to his occupation. Income tax returns are subjected to the closest scrutiny by United States officials, and the men who make false returns may be punished and sent to the penitentiary. But if we are going to start in here today and have those who make no returns pry into the privacy of the home, then democracy has been struck a powerful blow.

"I am not one of those who want to restrict the power of Congress to investigate false returns. I agree that there should be some Congressional method found to examine these returns, but I am not willing that every gossip on the corner, every scold in the village and every nuisance in the neighborhood should be permitted to go into the private affairs of the men and the women of this land. It should not be permitted, and it cannot be done without striking a fatal blow to our theory of government."

In a defiant speech Representative Frear defended his amendment, stating that tax records had been available at all times.

"Yes," interrupted John M. Nelson, the radical Republican leader, "why shouldn't we be able to look into the statements of Sinclair and Doheny?"

Early in the day Mr. Moore of Virginia renewed his attempt to force itemized statements of campaign expenditures in income tax returns. He eliminated the tax of 100 per cent. on expenditures of more than $5,000 he unsuccessfully proposed yesterday, and today made his amendment so that expenses below $1,000 need not be listed. His amendment was lost on a point of order.

Through the same objection, Representative Blanton of Texas, Democrat, was defeated in an endeavor to prevent any employes of the income tax unit from seeking outside employment in connection with income tax business, for two years after they have left the Treasury Department.

Beer and Bonus Bob Up.

Representative Rosenbloom of West Virginia, Republican, stated today that he would offer an amendment, taxing 2.75 per cent. beer $6 per barrel, thus raising, he said, $600,000,000 annually, more than enough to pay for a soldier bonus, and to provide for tax reduction.

One of the leading "wets" in the House, Representative John Philip Hill of Maryland, was primed to speak today for his local option bill that would pay for adjusted compensation by taxes on light wines and beer. He sent to the press gallery a notice headed:

"Feb. 22.—If the suitable legislative situation arises, Mr. Hill of Maryland, as a special mark of respect to General Washington, who advocated a bonus for the Revolutionary soldiers, will offer the following amendment to the revenue bill," and then appended his bill.

"Bright and pleasant" was the way in which Representative Longworth, the floor leader, late this afternoon described the situation looking to a final vote on the surtaxes in the bill. He stated that eight or nine of the insurgents had signified today that they were anxious to enlist again under the Republican banner, but that overtures had been made by them and not by him.

One of those who is supposed to be in a receptive frame of mind, Mr. LaGuardia of New York, has written a letter to Secretary Mellon asking if the bonus could not be financed by a tax bill carrying normal rates of 2 and 5 per cent. and a surtax maximum of 40 per cent.; but Mr. Longworth said this afternoon he would not yield to these figures, holding, instead, to his offer to the insurgents of 2 and 6 normal tax, and a 37½ per cent. maximum surtax.

Democrats, asserted Mr. Longworth, were "chafing" under the mandate of their caucus to vote for the Garner 44 per cent. rate, but Representative Garner and Representative Oldfield, the minority whip, laughed at this. They said they would hold their forces in the last vote, including Representatives Browne and McNulty of New Jersey, and perhaps Representative Deal of Virginia, who are against the Garner figure. Mr. Garner said the caucus action would be as binding in the last vote as at any time.

In reply to rumors that he would oppose Chairman Green's proposition to reduce taxes paid in 1924 on 1923 incomes 25 per cent. and try to make the Democratic income schedules retroactive for 1923, Representative Garner said today he would vote against the Green amendment, and would also try to make his rates apply to the past period, but said he did not think he would be successful.

It was learned that Chairman Green will propose a tax of 1 per cent. on gifts ranging between $10,000 and $[illegible]4,000 and graduating on up to 10 per cent. on gifts above 46 per cent.

Representative Ramseyer of Iowa, Republican, will propose an estate tax.

The letter written by Representative LaGuardia to Secretary Mellon follows:

"You are by this time convinced, I am sure, that there is a decided difference of opinion in the House as to reduced income tax rates.

"The line-up in the committee and the preliminary skirmish on the floor indicate the attitude of the House toward this very important measure. It is time, I venture to say, for complete and frank statement as to the condition of the Treasury. Every honest and sincere friend of the bonus, as well as declared opponent, must admit that the bonus question and tax reduction cannot be separated. They must be considered together.

"It has been repeatedly stated that your tax reduction plan reported by the majority of the committee did not allow sufficient resources out of which to pay the bonus. It is likewise charged that the rate schedule adopted yesterday will not raise sufficient funds.

"We have had a flood of conclusions and a dearth of actual figures.

Says House Demands the Bonus.

"Considering the present situation and the overwhelming sentiment in the House in favor of a bonus, will you be good enough to inform me, regardless of your personal feeling toward the bonus, the maximum tax reduction possible, assuming that a bonus is to be paid our ex-service men and women. To be specific, will a 2 per cent. and 5 per cent. normal tax respectively and surtax graduating up to 40 per cent. raise sufficient funds which, together with the other revenue of the Government, will permit the paying of a bonus along the lines of the bill passed by the last Congress and vetoed by the President. If not, what rate will do it?

Commenting on his letter, Representative LaGuardia stated this afternoon:

"The parliamentary situation created by those who befriended the Mellon plan left no alternative to the progressive members of the House but to vote for the Garner plan. In fact, a great many of the conservative members of our party do not desire to lower the maximum surtax to 25 per cent. as suggested by the Secretary.

"Friends of the bonus who intend voting for the bonus must bear in mind the cost of the bonus in voting on any tax reduction plan. I have submitted a suggestion to Secretary Mellon which will substantially reduce taxes, conserve the social tax feature of the income tax rates and at the same time bring in the revenue, which, I believe, together with the other resources of the Government and the inheritance and gift taxes which Congressman Frear intends introducing as an amendment to the present bill, will take care of the bonus, in the event that it is passed and approved. That is the only manly, honest stand that can be taken by those of us who are committed to the bonus."

LABORITES PUT CURB ON RENTS IN BRITAIN

TAUNTS FOR CONSERVATIVES

Health Minister Accuses Them of Espousing Causes of the Rich and Neglecting the Poor.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Labor Government won another victory today when a division over the new Rents bill, introduced by a private Labor member but supported by his party, brought the Ministry a majority of 147. Yesterday, over the laying down of new cruisers, it was Conservative votes which sustained the Government; today it was Liberal support that carried the day.

Whatever else may be said of the MacDonald Government, it appears to succeed in being "all things to all men." It was Conservative in its attitude toward the cruisers, but it was Liberal in its advocacy of today's bill—a measure which, in the vexed issue between the landlord and the tenant, leans noticeably on the side of the tenant.

John Wheatley, Minister of Health, supported the bill in a speech which could not be mistaken for anything else than a Socialist utterance, and which for almost the first time since the new Government took office, threw the gage of class warfare on the floor of the House of Commons. He alleged that Unionist attitude toward a proposal likely to benefit the working class was different from their attitude where proposals likely to enrich the wealthier classes were concerned.

This was hotly resented, as was a declaration that a Conservative amendment which called for an inquiry, was dishonest.

Rents have been controlled in Britain ever since the war. The control was supposed to be exercised to prevent the victimization of the tenants, but its continuance is said sometimes to have resulted in the victimization o. landlords, and it has been held responsible for a perpetuation of the housing shortage.

Today's private bill proposed to extend control until 1928, and provided that a landlord could get possession only where he wanted the house for his own use. Other provisions similarly favored the tenant as against the landlord.

It was freely alleged by the Opposition that credit for the draftsmanship of the measure must be accorded to the Solicitor Genera., Henry H. Slesser, K. C., and Neville Chamberlain, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, protested against the Government's leaving to a private member responsibility for its proposal, thus evading its responsibility.

The Labor members justified the bill by a recital of conditions in Scotland, where there are 125,000 houses with only one room, in some of which a dozen people live, and they said people there were used worse than pigs.

Lieut. Col. Fremantle moved the conservative amendment for an inquiry, and Neville Chamberlain defended his own rent bill of 1923, when he was Health Minister.

James Kirkwood, one of the extremists from Scotland, declared that he and his friends from Glasgow were out to change public opinion so that private enterprise, not only in the building but in the owning of houses, should be out of court.

Mr. Wheatley, the Minister of Health and one of the ablest members in the MacDonald Cabinet, supported the bill. He said the fact was that three-quarters of the community could not afford to pay rents which would return the profits desired by private capital, and houses must be provided for them. Of all the defects of the bill, he said, there was only one from the Opposition viewpoint, and that was that it would reduce the rents of the working class houses.

His statement stung Sir Thomas Inskip into a declaration that he had never heard a more immoderate speech in support of what was claimed to be a moderate measure. The bill was inspired by anxiety to make the ownership of houses uneconomical, and therefore impossible, he said.

On the vote being taken the bill passed second reading by 248 to 101.

LIMITS A B C POWERS TO ONE MORE BIG SHIP

International Naval Conference Would Also Curb Norway, Denmark and Holland.

ROME, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—One capital ship of 35,000 tons, to be built in 1927 or later, will be the new construction of first-class fighting craft allowed Argentina, Brazil and Chile, if the proposals formulated by the conference here under League of Nations auspices for extending the principles of the Washington naval treaty are adopted by the respective countries.

The work of the conference is still in a formative state and the discussion is proceeding with great fervor. Argentina, represented by Captain Jorge Gomez, is maintaining quietly her observant position, while Brazil is doing most of the proposing.

The conference has confined its discussion throughout to the question of capital ships, not touching the subject of smaller craft, so that under the proposals so far considered the building of cruisers, destroyers and submarines would not be limited. Aside from the A B C powers, the South American countries would be confined to the building of the smaller craft, not being permitted capital ship construction.

The conference has spent much time on the European situation, holding important sessions for dealing with the position of Russia, which asked permission to build 419,000 tons in capital ships. Admiral Behrens, representing Russia, set forth the difficulties of her position, with its frontage on three seas, and pointed out that she had not received any guarantees from the other nations for her security.

The conference offered Russia 125,000 tons, but her representative refused to consider that tonnage and after much discussion the figure was reduced by Admiral Behrens to not more than 300,000 tons, in exchange for which he asked certain guarantees for the Baltic and the Black Sea.

The Russian representative said Russia could not construct warships at present, but did not wish to tie herself down to any agreements which would prevent her doing so in future if circumtances permitted and she had need to exercise the privilege.

An agreement for limitation for Norway, Denmark and Holland has been reached.

As regards the Mediterraneau, the conferees have touched little new ground, as this question was thoroughly discussed at the Washington conference. Spain has indicated that she expected to be able to construct a certain amount of first class tonnage, but the conference as a whole found itself not in accord with the Spanish viewpoint, and some reservations to the consensus of opinion have been made by the Spanish delegate.

The spirit of the Washington conference, by all accounts, has been intensely pervasive throughout the discussions, while the delegates as a whole concede that outlay on capital ships is a heavy drain on the resources of all the countries and are anxious for an agreement as to limitation in the interest of economy, if for no other reason.

The conference is continuing its sessions today and will meet again tomorrow, when its report is expected to be made public.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Feb. 22.—The people of Porto Rico are entertaining Admiral Coontz, commanding the fleet, and visiting publishers and editors from the United States. The guests were landed from destroyers at Fajardo this afternoon and driven forty miles to San Juan.

At Rio Grande and Canaanovos the streets were decorated and school children, holding American flags, sang patriotic airs. There were flowers for Admiral Coontz.

On arrival of the visitors at San Juan, Mrs. Towner, wife of the Governor, and Acting Governor Coats received them at the palace.

An elaborate program has been arranged of banquets, balls and rides into the hills, ending with a luncheon on Sunday at Santurce. Return to the fleet will be made by destroyers from Fajardo.

perts today definitely finished its task of estimating the amount of German capital that has been placed abroad, and then adjourned until March 3, when it will begin to formulate its ideas for attracting this capital back to Germany. This delay is necessary, as the committee must await the completion of the conclusions of the Dawes committee in order to thoroughly coordinate the joint full report.

The latter committee devoted today to the hearing of the railroad experts' reports on German railway systems and tomorrow will discuss these with the railroad specialists.

The two subcommittees on the proposed German gold bank and on the German budget have presented their preliminary conclusions and their ideas will be considered at a full meeting early next week.

CHAMBER RUSHES TAX BILLS.

French Business Demands Debate in Parliament Be Cut Short.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Though the Chamber sat for three hours this morning and four hours this afternoon it is sitting again tonight discussing and voting almost automatically the clauses of the financial measures with which the Government intends to balance the budget and help stabilize the franc. It was at the request of Premier Poincaré that the tired Deputies consented to the night sitting.

"This matter is urgent," said the Premier, "and though I regret having to do so I must ask the Chamber to make this sacrifice."

All the most important clauses of the measure have been discussed and voted, and the work is now going much faster than it did at the beginning of the debate. At the present rate it may be possible by the middle of next week to obtain the Chamber's assent to the whole measure, which then will be sent at once to the Senate.

PARIS, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—Parliament has been asked to cut short debate on Premier Poincaré's taxation plans and to take an early vote on the Premier's program.

The request is contained in an open letter sent by the General Confederation of French Production, representing scores of industries, and federations of business men. It was addressed to all the Senators and to the members of the Chamber of Deputies.

The letter says the fall in the value of the franc has revealed the peril of continuing with an unbalanced budget, and that, as faulty and incomplete as the proposed measures are, the chief need is immediate action.

Parliament is reminded in the letter that business must bear the burden and that therefore it ought to be listened to.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The Government gave the Reichstag to understand this morning that if any attempt is made to annul any of the special rules and regulations decreed by the Government while the country is under martial law the Reichstag will immediately be dissolved.

The Socialist Democrats and Deutsche Volkspartei, who lost heavily during the recent State elections, fear nothing more than early Reichstag elections and will therefore submit to almost any terms of the Government, while the Nationalists and Monarchists, who gained largely, will probably seize upon an opportunity to bring about early elections, being convinced that at present they can count on large majorities.

To appease them the Government has promised to suppress any attempt by the Socialist or any other parties to prolong the mandates of the present Reichstag members.

GERMAN NOTE RETURNED.

France's Action on Palatinate Message Resented by Stresemann.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Foreign Minister Stresemann today announced in the Reichstag that France had returned Germany's note respecting the Palatinate, France at the same time informing the German Government that it did not intend to interfere in German disputes in which it was not concerned.

The Minister strongly criticized the French caction in rejecting the note. It could only lead, he said, to increasing despair among the people, instead of to agreement, which every one desired.

During the Hittler putsch Rossbach had undertaken to lead a Bavarian invasion from Coburg into Thuringia and from there to Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The Reichsbank is planning an issue of new silver coins of one, three and five marks denominations. Though the bank has asked well-known artists to submit designs, none has yet been definitely decided upon. This new coinage, it is explained, does not mean an increase in currency because for every piece that leaves the Reichsbank's counter its equivalent in paper money will be withdrawn from circulation.

DEDICATE MEMORIAL TO THE WAR DEAD

COOLIDGE PRAISES SPIRIT

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 22.—Business practically was suspended here today while the people joined in the dedication of the Chattanooga Memorial Auditorium, erected and equipped, at a cost of about a million dollars, in memory of the men from this city and county who gave their lives in any branch of the national defense during the World War.

Just as the building itself is unique in the South, and one of the best of its kind in the entire country, so the gathering and the nature of the exercises to dedicate it excelled anything of similar nature attempted. Probably no occasion of this sort in the United States has been graced by the presence of so many high officials representing branches of the National Government and States.

Greetings were presented from the United States Government by General H. M. Lord, from the army by Colonel Robert J. Fleming, commanding the Sixth Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe; from the navy by Rear Admiral W. R. Shoemaker, from the Marine Corps by General Smedley D. Butler, Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia, and from the State of Tennessee by Governor Austin Peay.

Governor Richard I. Manning, war Executive of South Carolina, who had six sons in the World War, one of whom was killed, delivered a tribute to the Gold Star mothers, and Senator K. D. McKellar a tribute to the war President, Woodrow Wilson. A message from President Coolidge, sent through Alexander Guerry, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, paying tribute to the "fine public spirit that has prompted your community to raise this monument," was read by Mayor Richard Hardy.

President Coolidge's message follows:

"I should not do justice to my sentiments regarding the splendidly patriotic demonstration of Chattanooga in raising this memorial t othe soldiers of the World War if I should omit to pay my tribute to the fine public spirit that has prompted your community to raise this monument. It will be a continuing reminder to all that as a nation we owe to the service men a debt which we can never repay. But we can at least acknowledge the debt, and we can and should do everything in our power to remind our children and our children's children of the fact that this nation does not forget."

Major Gen. James G. Harbord, commander of the American troops at Château-Thierry and Chief of Staff of the A. E. F., made the principal address. The general exercises were preceded by a military parade, in which a column of more than 2,000 ex-service men marched; a prayer service in Memorial Hall of the Auditorium for Gold Star mothers and immediate relatives, and the unfurling of the allied and Legion flags. These flags, which will be for permanent use on the Auditorium, were presented by Charles R. George, a city official, in memory of his son, Captain William C. George, who died in Germany after serving throughout the war.

Exceedingly impressive and appealing to the patriotic emotions were several tableaux, arranged by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the American Legion, depicting epochal events in American history, such as Washington crossing the Delaware, the birth of the flag and phases of the life of a typical citizen-soldier.

The central figure in the dramatic part of the program was Miss Chattanooga, portrayed by Mrs. Merrill Loftin, one of whose grandfathers was an officer in the Union Army and the other in the Confederate Army during the war between the States. She joined the ceremony attendant upon the presentation of the flags of Captain A. J. Gahagan, veteran of the Blue, and Captain J. F. Shipp, veteran of the Gray, who previously had ridden side by side in the parade bearing battle flags which were borne on many fields in the Civil War.

The Auditorium, dedicated so auspiciously to the memory of the World War victims and the promotion of the ideals for which they fought, has a seating capacity in the main hall of more than 5,000, a theatre on another floor seating 1,500, and a large exhibition hall. Its design was based on the best features of such construction throughout the country, and the verdict of the visitors is that it excels in arrangement all similar buildings.

General Butler was the principal speaker at a civic luncheon following the exercises, and emphasized the work being done in Philadelphia. He declared that there is no reason for laws not being enforced if the officers do their duty, and that as his department has nothing to do with making laws, its function being to enforce those in effect, Philadelphia certainly will be made a law-abiding city.

REGRET LOSING FLETCHER.

Brussels Newspapers Praise Ambassador, Who Is Leaving for Rome.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 22.—The departure of Henry P. Fletcher, retiring American Ambassador, for Rome where he is to assume the American Ambassadorship to Italy, announced as imminent, has given rise to expressions of regret in all circles. The Ambassador's relations with Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar have always been of a very friendly character. Today's newspaper comments testify to the general sympathy he inspired during his incumbency of the Ambassadorial post here. Newspapers of all shades of political opinion dwell upon the diplomatic qualities he displayed, his comprehension of Belgium's political necessities and aspirations, and his good nature.

It is commented that Queen Elizabeth and Crown Prince Leopold are losing a brilliant partner on the royal golf links through the Ambassador's departure.

of his staff was present. It is understood that he has placed the matter in the hands of the courts to determine his rights, until which time nothing inside the tomb can be removed.

The tomb will be closed after the public view, which is expected the Government will permit during the next ten days, when about 2,000 persons will be admitted. In the event of the failure of the Government to adjust its differences with Carter, it considers the Antiquities Department capable of completing the work.

Officials spent the afternoon inventorying the contents and covering the objects exposed to damage.

Direct discussions between the Egyptian Government and Lady Carnarvon initiated by a mediator in Cairo whereby the Egyptian Government has offered to renew her contract on conditions calculated to avoid future disagreements are expected to prove fruitless.

DENIES AMERICANS DESIRE ISOLATION

Will Not Shirk Their International Duty, Professor Brigham Tells London Audience.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—In the first of three lectures by Professor A. P. Brigham of Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., on "The Geography of the United States, Regional and National," delivered tonight at the London School of Economics, the lecturer said Americans would not isolate themselves. They would not act so narrowly for themselves as Lord Birkenhead seemed to think.

Never in history, he said, had Americans thought so much about the whole world as they were thinking at this moment. League or no League, Court or no Court, they were not going to shirk their international duty.

After referring to the distribution of crops and mineral resources of the United States and quoting figures of the 1919 census to show that Europeans must no longer think of America as preeminently an agricultural country, Professor Brigham continued:

"We have no national policy to grasp the markets of the world. We depend increasingly upon things that only other countries can supply. We must balance these imports in some measure with what we send out.

"An increasing number of aggressive men and corporations are going after foreign markets, but on individual initiative. That it is no policy of the American nation ought to be evident in the mountainous tariff wall which we erected. Millions of Americans do not believe in it. We would keep the barriers low, letting each nation do what it can do best, the whole world gaining by ready exchange.

"Our attempt at a mercantile marine has the look, indeed, of grasping after the planet. Here, too, multitudes of our thoughtful taxpayers do not believe in subsidized shipping. We have little confidence in governmenta ventures in commerce, but some merchant marine we must have."

INSISTS AUSTRIANS MUST BEAR SACRIFICES

Zimmermann Says They Cannot Expect Easier Living Than in Countries Backing Loan.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Feb. 22.—Commissioner General Zimmermann's latest monthly report to the League Council's International Controller has, contrary to expectation, brought forth very little serious comment, although the Commissioner General confesses that he is seriously concerned regarding certain aspects of Austria's reconstruction. This is in fact the first report which may be considered at all pessimistic since the period of reconstruction commenced.

Referring to this report and his warning to the Austrian people which appeared yesterday inthe Austrian papers and which unlike other reports refers to the whole fiscal year, Commissioner Zimmermann said today:

"It is perhaps open to discussion whether all the figures that were fixed in the Autumn of 1922 can be conformed to because it is extremely difficult to fix totals one year and a half in advance of the financial outcome of a State Administration. But what is not open to discussion is that the program laid down in 1922 must be followed. The tendency therefore had been toward a reduction of expenses and energetic simplification of the State Administration. In both these respects there is still much to do and it is my duty to see that it is done.

"I am convinced that the Austrian people will realize that their condition of life cannot be easier than it is in those countries which to help Austria have guaranteed her loan."

The Neue Freie Presse refers to a passage in Commissioner Zimmermann's report which says that were an Austrian Government to be elected under pressure of certain classes of the people which might prevent Austria from carrying out her obligations there might be danger of an international conflict.

F. K. PULSIFER KILLS HIMSELF WITH GAS

HAD BEEN IN ILL HEALTH

Depressed Also by Mother's Illness —His Financial Condition Good, Counsel Says.

Frederick K. Pulsifer, a member of the New York Stock Exchange house of Clark, Childs & Co., killed himself yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas in his apartment at 743 Fifth Avenue. He opened a gas heater, spread a sheet tent-like over it and then crawled under the covering, death coming quickly in the improvised gas chamber.

According to his associates and friends, the broker had been in ill-health for more than a year, and this was cited as the motive that impelled him to suicide. A contributory cause, they said, was the critical condition of his mother, Mrs. Marion Pulsifer, 85 years old, who is ill at the Hotel Imperial. He sought vainly to cheer her up on Thursday night and appeared deeply depressed when he returned home.

Mr. Pulsifer, who was 63 years old, was one of the best known brokers in the Street, having been a founder of the Clark, Childs & Co. firm. His wife, formerly Miss Emily Cook of Chicago, died four years ago, and this, and his own bad health dating slightly more than twelve months back, had caused the broker to become less active in his firm. He lived alone in an apartment at the Fifth Avenue address, which is directly opposite the Vanderbilt home at Forty-eighth Street.

When he returned to his apartment on Thursday night, he played cards for a short time with a few friends. He retired earlier than usual, notifying the employes in the apartment house that he wished not to be disturbed for breakfast as he planned to sleep late because of the holiday.

Found Dead in Apartment.

During his illness Miss Vere Haisley of 131 West Fifty-eighth Street had been looking after him, and she went to the suite yesterday about 10 o'clock. After feeding Mr. Pulsifer's dog, she took the animal out for a walk in Fifth Avenue. She was absent about a half hour, and when she returned to the fourth floor apartment she found the door locked. Repeated rings at the bell failed to elicit a response.

She notified Harold Lervcock, superintendent. Lervcock entered Mr. Pulsifer's apartment through a window which opened on a ledge that extended past the window of his own apartment. He was almost overcome by the rush of gas from the apartment. He found the broker dead under the sheet. Lervcock telephoned to the East Fifty-first Street station, and Policeman Mahan went to the apartment.

The policemen found two slips of paper on a table in the living room. One bore the name and address of a married daughter, Mrs. E. P. Crockett, also of the Hotel Imperial, and the second had the name of Mr. Pulsifer's son, Frederick K. Pulsifer Jr. of 736 West 173d Street, on it. The son and daughter were notified, but when they arrived they could give no explanation of their father's act, beyond his health.

Dr. Horace E. Ayers of 9 West Sixty-seventh Street, the broker's physician, arrived soon after Dr. Benjamin M. Vance, Assistant Medical Examiner, had given a verdict of death by gas poisoning with suicidal intent. Dr. Ayers said Mr. Pulsifer had been suffering for a year from a nervous breakdown. About a month ago, the physician said, he had ordered his patient away for a complete rest. Mr. Pulsifer went to the Riggs Sanitarium, at Stockbridge, Conn. He returned a week ago, somewhat improved but not fully himself.

Tells of Large Income.

The broker's counsel, Leon Forst, of 165 Broadway, also went to the apartment. He said that his client had not suffered any financial reverses, and added that Mr. Pulsifer owned a great deal of property at Monmouth Beach, N. J., which yielded an exceedingly large income, reported to have been $5,000 a month. The broker was born in Chicago, said Mr. Forst, and was a member of the Sea View Golf Club and the Lambs Club.

Both J. F. A. Clark and Herbert H. Childs, partners in the brokerage firm, were out of town yesterday, the former at Newport and the latter at Miami Beach, Fla. Another member of the firm added his denial that Mr. Pulsifer had encountered monetary difficulties. He said that lately the broker had suffered intensely from insomnia. He was at the Clark, Childs & Co. office on Thursday all day.

Charges against Clark, Childs & Co. were made in a complaint filed on Aug. 14, 1922, in the Supreme Court by Willard P. Barrows, as trustee in bankruptcy of Chandler Brothers & Co. The trustee charged financial jugglery between the two firms aggregating millions of dollars. The trustee's suit was the result of the claim of Clark, Childs & Co. to the proceeds, about $90,000, of the sale of the Stock Exchange seat of Chandler Brothers & Co.

The defendants in the suit were the following individuals in the Clark-Childs firm: Messrs. Clark and Childs, Charles A. Morse, Mr. Pulsifer, Channing Burbank, William L. Meffert, Richard Wharton and Hans Nowa. The New York Stock Exchange was joined as a party defendant. Answers were filed by the firm and by the Stock Exchange denying any wrongdoing.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 22.—J. F. A. Clark, who is here for the holiday at his home, Wrentham House, said tonight that he could throw no light on the suicide of Mr. Pulsifer unless it was because of his ill-health. Mr. Pulsifer, he said, had everything to live for and was a man of considerable wealth.

WOULD ACCEPT TROTSKY.

Dartmouth Would Let Him Teach There, President Says.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Dartmouth College, founded in 1766 by Eleazar Wheelock and aided by Franklin and John Adams, has an opening on its Faculty, according to its President, for Leon Trotsky.

"A man wrote to me protesting against a proposed appointment to the Faculty, contending that I might as well bring in Lenin or Trotsky as the instructor in question. I replied that if Lenin and Trotsky were available I would certainly bring them in."

The gathering included clergymen, jurists and executives of large corporations.

"I know no man and no interest I could not present if it would stir up the mind of the undergraduate," he added. President Hopkins said he believed open-mindedness, ability to think and the formation of personal convictions that had stood the test f challenge were among the most cherished aims of the liberal college and the greatest need of the hour. The combined opinion of the alumni, he asserted, would be as nothing compared to the interests of the student.

The Weather Signal Man in the first days of the issue of weather bulletins was sometimes called

The Storm King

The people used to look at the little thin yellow papers regarding the weather given away by the United States Government as curiosities, and they laughed at the probabilities as a joke when they were inaccurate.

But nowadays the Philosopher of Storms regulates the sailing of ships, social affairs, and his statement is almost the first item of news consulted by the morning newspaper readers.

Any one in these parts who can avoid it postpones a journey if there is a prediction that a blizzard is on its way Eastward.

What is true of weather science is also true of business science.

The methods applied to examination of shoddy materials, counterfeit linens and heavily loaded silks, enable honest merchants to protect their customers from the cheateries of cunning makers who still believe that the eye of the buyer must carry them safely in their purchases.

We keep a strict watch upon our merchandise.

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers! Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

WILL ASK ASSEMBLY FOR FIGHT INQUIRY

STONEHAM IS BROUGHT IN

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 22.—A legislative investigation of the allegations made here this week by Tom O'Rourke, veteran fight promoter, that Tex Rickard has acted in collusion with fight ticket speculators will be demanded next week by Assemblyman Lord, father of the bill to repeal the Walker boxing law.

"I received a letter today from Mr. O'Rourke alleging that Rickard has friends on the Boxing Commission and for that reason I feel that an investigation by the commission might not be so productive of reaching the bottom of the boxing scandal as a legislative investigation," said the Assemblyman.

"I understand," continued Mr. Lord, "that Assemblyman Male has a resolution pending before the Ways and Means Committee calling for a legislative investigation. I intend to join with him next week in requesting such an investigation, because I believe it will be for the best interests of the public."

There was much speculation here today as to whether the Legislature would sanction an investigation of this nature, in view of the fact that District Attorney Banton announced here recently that he intended to call O'Rourke before the Grand Jury and have him tell all he knew about the alleged collusion between Rickard and ticket speculators. Some were inclined to think the Assembly would approve such action, while others believed that it would not be approved, in view of the Banton statements.

Assemblyman Lord believes the accusations made against Rickard have improved the chances for his bill being passed in the Assembly.

O'Rourke Accuses Stoneham.

The O'Rourke letter follows in part:

"During my talk before the legislative committee on the repeal of the boxing law I was rather at a disadvantage in not having heard the remarks of the previous speakers. However, I tried to convey to the committee that if the sale of fight tickets was taken over by the Boxing Commission for all big attractions, and handled by it personally, it is possible there would be no more scandal through the conveying of tickets to speculators.

"The restriction put upon clubs in France, the commission there handling the tickets, eliminates all speculation, which is not the case here. The scandal of the Polo Grounds would not have occurred had the commission here done likewise in the Dempsey-Firpo fight.

"Had Stoneham not given in to Rickard's orders to have the tickets conveyed to Madison Square Garden and left there until the arrival of the United States men the return of the Jacobs tickets could not have been made. Had Stoneham done what was right it would have been to his and the United States' advantage, as all tickets were supposedly sold at 12 o'clock the day of the contest."

Rickard Makes Sweeping Denial.

The allegations contained in a letter from Tom O'Rourke to Assemblyman Lord, made public yesterday in Albany, in which Tex Rickard was pictured as having juggled figures in his report to official authorities on the ticket sale for the Dempsey-Firpo bout, were denied yesterday by Rickard. The fight promoter asserted he was willing to stand on the financial records on file with the State Athletic Commission and the Government and State tax authorities, and reiterated that he welcomed any inquiry or investigation which would be sweeping in its scope.

O'Rourke, in his letter, involved Charles A. Stoneham, President of the National Exhibition Company, operating the Polo Grounds, as an innocent party to the alleged conspiracy. Efforts to communicate with Mr. Stoneham failed. Attempts were also made to get a statement from Senator James J. Walker, who sponsored the bill under which boxing was revived here, but without success.

"I cannot deny too strongly the charges contained in O'Rourke's letter," said Rickard. "If a little common sense was exercised I don't see how anybody could place any stock in them. I'll bet right now that I paid more in taxes to the Government and State than I collected in taxes from those who attended the bout. The charge that the choice seats were withheld in anticipation of a last-minute demand that did not materialize is ridiculous. The answer to this is that there was not a ticket returned for any seat in the single letter section of the alphabet. The only high-priced tickets returned were those for the extreme rear ringside section, which we found impossible to dispose of.

"We cut our ticket prices on the $20 and $15 seats in the closing hours of the sale when we sought to get rid of every ticket we had. The financial records of the fight will bear me out in this. The records will show that, contrary to asking exorbitant prices for the tickets sold in the neighborhood of the Polo Grounds, we slashed prices in an attempt to get the people to buy. The $20 tickets we cut to half. The $15 tickets we offered for as low as $5. And on every ticket sold at these cut rates, I had to pay the tax for the face value originally stamped on them.

Denies Incorrect Reports on Sales.

"The charge that the reports of the ticket sale were incorrect or altered to suit my purposes is unworthy of notice. There is a law which compels every printer in the business of printing tickets to file with the tax people a statement showing exactly how many tickets are printed by him. My printer has a statement on file which covers the tickets I ordered from him. Then there are the ticket counters regularly assigned by the tax people to prepare a financial statement, so that it would be foolish even to try to evade tax payment, as it is charged I have done.

"About the only thing that is true in O'Rourke's letter is the statement that the ticket sale near the Polo Grounds on the day of the bout was attended with considerable disorder. I could not conduct my sale from the Polo Grounds direct, because if I had, the people holding tickets never could have got into the park. The police, very wisely, refused to let me get nearer to the grounds than the section where police lines were formed, about five blocks away. This was perfectly proper and minimized the confusion.

"There was no exasperation over prices which were being charged by Jacobs, who was assisting in this sale as a helper of mine. He assisted in similar sales at the Willard-Firpo and the Milk Fund bouts, and I have found his experience and ability a great help. That a reward of $100 was offered with no questions asked for the return of a batch of tickets which were stolen is not true. A batch of tickets did disappear, and I did pay $100 for their recovery, but the money was paid to two men who caught the fellow who was trying to get away with them.

"I am satisfied that everything was conducted satisfactorily with regard to the ticket sale and that the financial report met every requirement. The State Athletic Commission has a financial record of the bout on file, and I have prepared another statement which I will send the board, showing where every ticket went and every nickel that came in through the boxoffice. I have no fear of a legislative investigation or any other kind of inquiry. I will welcome one because then every incident and detail in connection with the battle will be uncovered for the benefit of the public, and these charges will be proved to be without foundation."

SMITH TO URGE END OF GRADE CROSSINGS

In Special Message Will Ask Abolishment of 4,000 Throughout the State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 22.—A special message on grade crossings will be transmitted to the Legislature Monday evening by Governor Smith. He has been hard at work on the message for several weeks, and it is understood it will contain a large amount of data on recent railroad fatalities, to impress the lawmakers with the need of more speed in eliminating dangerous crossings throughout the State.

The Governor is undertood to favor a plan whereby the State Superintendent of Public Works would have supervision over the elimination of crossings outside of cities. He also will suggest a new method of financing the cost of wiping out some 4,000 dangerous crossings. At present the railroad pays one-half the cost and the other half is equally divided between the State and the locality.

A bill introduced today by Assemblyman Reidy, Bronx Democrat, provides half the expense shall be borne by the railroads and the remaining half by State, county and town in the same ratio as they now share the cost of highway construction.

In an effort to prevent automobile accidents Assemblyman Lord of Chenango has introduced a bill which would compel pedestrians to obey traffic signals. Mr. Lord said that at present pedestrians, at least a majority of them, never pay any attention to traffic signals, but continue to cross street intersections when traffic is going in an opposite direction.

"'Jay walking' is becoming more and more a dangerous pastime, especially in view of the ever-increasing number of automobiles," he said, "and I believe we should enact a law that would prohibit pedestrians from intentionally walking in the path of automobiles.

"It is impossible for the driver of a motor car to keep his eyes on the traffic officer and pedestrians at the same time. When the traffic officer signals for traffic to move he wants it to be snappy, but this is impossible when people are constantly walking in front of automobiles."

LONE SENATOR HOLDS SESSION BY HIMSELF

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 22.—Senator William T. Byrne of Albany was the only member of the upper house present in the chamber today when the time came for opening the session.

While clerks and a few visitors looked on he nominated and erected himself President pro tem, and ascending the rostrum proceeded to call himself to order.

He then delivered an eulogy on the life of George Washington, the empty seats listening in deepest silence. On completing his address he declared the Senate adjourned out of respect to the nation's first President.

Similar action was taken in the Assembly after a few bills had been introduced.

DEATH TAKES 'ANGEL OF BROOME STREET'

Mrs. Bellantoni, a Friend in Need to Thousands, Victim of Heart Disease.

MOURNING ON EAST SIDE

Mrs. Angelina Bellantoni, known as the "Angel of Broome Street," is dead. The benefactress for nearly half a century of many thousands of poor Italians succumbed to heart disease at her home at 8,159 New Utrecht Avenue, Brooklyn, on Wednesday night, it became known yesterday.

Today her Brooklyn home is filled with flowers. Recipients of past favors, many of them now wealthy, have sent offerings from all over the country. These "sons" and "daughters," as she called them, have sent tributes ranging from expensive clusters of Winter roses to humble bunches of early violets.

Last night more than 400 telegrams of condolence had been received by her son Thomas from every corner of the United States, including messages from people now prominent.

As for Broome Street, where she lived until the detah of her favorite son, Edward, three years ago, there has been since Wednesday night an emigration to Brooklyn. Every hour of the night and day hundreds of Italians, and men and women of other nationalities, too, who in years gone by had know the touch of her helping hand, have left their work to see for the last time the face they knew so well. Today, when the funeral cortege leaves New Utrecht Avenue to go to old St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Mott Street, and thence to Calvary Cemetery, it is expected that there will be several thousand in the procession.

Mrs. Bellatoni, the Italians promise, will have today the "biggest" funeral New York has ever known. It will be "big," they say, not in expensive ceremonies and preparations, but in the lavishing of genuine sorrow. The pallbearers are Christopher D. Sullivan, Congressman for the district in which Mrs. Bellantoni resided; State Senator Philip Kleinfeld, Alderman James F. Kiernan, Albert Marinelli, Port Warden of New York; Kenneth Sutherland, political leader of her district; Nicholas Salvaggi, Ralph Della Paola and John T. Cronan.

The "angel" came to Broome Street with her husband, Rocco, forty-five years ago. She reared a family of seven sons. Edward, the eldest, was a lieutenant of Big Tim Sullivan, a former Bowery leader; Thomas, the third son, changed his name to Dyke for professional purposes and became the owner of the Ritz Restaurant, a prosperous concern in Buffalo.

The other sons prospered likewise. As time went on they were able to support their mother in comfort and to permit her to indulge in the charitable instincts for which she later became renowned. No woman, man or child, it is said, ever appealed to her in vain. At first her gifts were small, but as her children sent her increased funds she indulged her philanthropic nature to a greater extent, until, it is estimated, she gave away during the last twenty-five years of her life more than $100,000.

Mrs. Bellantoni herself lived simply. She always declared that the only joy she had in life was the joy of giving. During her last illness her thoughts were constantly on those whom she knew stood in want and she begged her sons to carry on her work.

Thomas would call his mother every night by telephone from Buffalo. On Tuesday night one of his brothers told him that "mother was poorly." Thomas took a train the next day, but before he could reach New York she was dead.

REPORT ON TEACHERS' FUND

System of Retirement Board Found Sound—Urge Changes in Law.

The State Insurance Department yesterday made public a report regarding the Teachers' Retirement Board, of which Controller Charles L. Craig is custodian of funds. The report is based upon an examination made at the request of the Controller, and it states that the system is on a sound financial basis. After making several recommendations for the improvement of the system the report says:

"In the opinion of the examiners, defects in the administration of the law are largely due to defects in the law. In the light of the system's six years' experience it is believed that if the retirement law is amended to make it clear-cut, its administration will be decidedly improved and that the members of the board will welcome such a change.".

CLEMENCY HEARINGS BEGIN IN LEAVENWORTH

Twenty-four of the Wartime Prisoners Ask the Board for Freedom.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—Twenty-four military prisoners, including twenty-two of the Houston rioters, were heard at the Federal Penitentiary here today by Major James Stanfield, and Major F. E. Ross, members of the special Clemency Board appointed by the War Department. The prisoners appeared before the board one by one, told why they sought clemency and detailed their plans for civilian life.

The names of the prisoners who appeared were withheld, and the hearing itself was behind closed doors. The officers said their orders were to consider the case of each man in private. Many of the prisoners submitted written statements. Court-martial and prison records are available to the board members.

Majors Ross and Stanfield said they did not know who had taken the initiative in the present investigation but assumed that the War Department had taken cognizance of the appeals from the American Legion, the War Mothers and similar organizations. Such organizations they said, have asked a review of the military cases, pointing out that clemency has already been granted to all I. W. W.'s and others convicted under the Sedition and Sabotage laws.

Asked whether they would make a blanket recommendation for clemency the army officers merely pointed to their orders, which ask for "a general and detailed" report of their cases. Their report, they said, would be prepared upon their return to Washington, Major Ross represents the Adjutant General's Department and Major Stanfield the Judge Advocate General.

No effort is being made to retry the cases, it was said, as the facts are on record. The prisoners, who were called in numerical order, appeared encouraged as they left the hearing room.

Major J. A. Stevens, Adjutant of the disciplinary barracks, said the number of prisoners in that institution was 702, of whom approximately 10 per cent. were serving sentences of five years or more. It is the men with these longer sentences that will automatically come under the investigation of the Celemency Board.

ATTEMPT TO BAR A GARAGE.

Residents of West Ninetieth Street, near Central Park, are opposing strongly an attempt to open a garage at 69-71 West Ninetieth Street, it was learned yesterday. The matter is coming up before the Board of Appeals at the Municipal Building next Tuesday morning and the objectors plan to have their side of the controversy presented vigorously.

Senator Nathan Straus Jr., the Rev. W. F. Hughes of the Church of St. Gregory the Great, the West End Association and the Central Park West and Columbus Avenue Association are among the objectors. Others are the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Watson Smith, Secretary of the Anti-Garage Committee of West Ninetieth Street; George Sylvester Viereck and Jacques C. Cohn, manufacturer.

The owner of the premises in question, Samuel Block, applied to the Fire Department last June for a permit to open a garage, but the application was denied. Last December the matter was reopened and a rehearing was set for Feb. 26.

The building is a graystone front, erected twenty years ago as a medicinal bathhouse. It first was called the "Fango Baths." Later it was leased to the Filmart Laboratories, Inc., but has been vacant for three or four years.

FRATERNITIES' NEW HOME.

The formal opening of the Fraternities Clubs Building, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street, which houses seventeen college fraternities, was held yesterday afternoon. The idea for such a building was conceived by William H. Silk, Secretary and Treasurer of the Allerton House Companies, and many suggestions offered by members of the various fraternities were adopted.

The new building is seventeen stories high. Each of the fraternities has its own private club quarters and sleeping rooms. An oyster bar, tailor shop and dressing rooms are in the basement. On the main floor are the general lounge, reading room, writing room and the national headquarters of some of the participating fraternities. Other features are a sun parlor and a promenade on the fourteenth floor, which encircles the building; squash and tennis courts, a large dining room and a grill.

FARMERS TO FIGHT HIGHER SHIP RATES

COOLIDGE'S AID IS SOUGHT

He Asks the Opinion of Chairman O'Connor and Secretary Hoover on the Question.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The increase of ten cents a 100 pounds in Atlantic Ocean freight rates on certain farm products, to which Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture has declared his opposition as wholly unwarranted and detrimental to American agriculture and business in general, has been brought to the attention of President Coolidge. The latter has referred the question to Chairman O'Connor of the Shipping Board and to Secretary Hoover.

Various farm organizations have displayed interest in the rate increase and Senator King of Utah announced today he would introduce a resolution and speak on the subject in the Senate.

The resolution which Mr. King intends to introduce will call upon the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation to send to the Senate all information in their possession relating to participation of either in the North Atlantic and United Kingdom conference of steamship lines, which has announced the rates effective March 1.

The rates apply to an extensive export business of hams, bacon, shoulders, lard and meat products, and farm experts declare the increase will be immediately reflected back to the farm producers, who at present are receiving low prices for their hogs. Department of Agriculture officials say the increase is likely to destroy their work in assisting to build up the export business in those products in order to take care of the present surplus. About 2,000,000,000 pounds were exported last year.

The Shipping Board and Emergency Fleet Corporation will be asked under Senator King's resolution whether they are represented directly or indirectly in the North Atlantic conference and whether the arbitrary fixing of rates by the conference has resulted in the payment by the shipping public of higher rates on freight, particularly products of the farm, than would be paid in open, uncontrolled business.

It will ask the effect the operation of the conference and the fixing by it of ocean freight rates have had upon the ability of American farmers profitably to export surplus crops and of American manufacturers profitably to export to world markets many of their products.

The shipping officials will be asked further by the resolution whether they regard the arbitrary fixing of rates by the conference as a violation of the anti-trust laws and whether they have at any time prevented operators of vessels owned and controlled by them from discontinuing participation in the conference.

The resolution will in addition inquire whether the two shipping agencies of the Government have knowledge of discrimination by the British Board of Trade or of the practice of giving rebates or deferred rebates by the North Atlantic and United Kingdom service.

Information will also be sought as to whether they have knowledge of discrimination against United States vessels by granting or withholding of insurance or preferential rates in insurance by British companies.

PRAISE FOR WARDEN LAWES.

Prison Association Congratulates Him on Conditions at Sing Sing.

The members of the Executive Committee of the Prison Association of New York visited Sing Sing Prison recently. They were so favorably impressed with the improvements at the prison and the general evidence of Warden Lawes's conscientious endeavors, E. R. Cass, general secretary of the association, announced yesterday that they adopted a resolution to this effect. Mr. Cass remarks that Warden Lawes has difficult work, is doing it well and this should be brought to the attention of the public.

The resolution says in part:

"Whereas the evidences of improvement in the general conduct of the prison, both as to cleanliness, industrial equipment and activities, orderliness in the yards, the morale among the inmates, their appearance and changed countenances, are so plainly visible, and,

"Whereas it is our belief that these improvements are due to the executive ability, trained leadership and humane attitude of Warden Lewis E. Lawes, be it

"Rosived, That we hereby record our appreciation of the splendid service rendered this institution and the State by Warden Lawes, and extend to him our congratulations on what has been accomplished, and assure him of our confidence in him and our continued interest in his humanitarian endeavors."

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM,
Chairman Executive Committee.

C. C. Auchincloss, Charles M. Baldwin, Ira Barrows, B. Ogden Chisolm, Alexander M. Hadden, Richard M. Hurd, George P. Ingersoll, Morgan J. O'Brien, Mrs. H. H. Porter, Wilson M. Powell, Charles H. Sabin, Dean Sage, Mortimer Schiff, E. R. Cass, General Secretary.

GIVES FUND FOR STUDENTS.

The Community Trust, 120 Broadway, announced yesterday the foundation of the Theresa E. Bernholz $1,000 fund, established by Mrs. Rosabel Schiff, 2,880 Broadway, just before her departure last week for China and Japan. The income is to be awarded semi-annually to one of the graduating students of Public School 9, Eighty-second Street and West End Avenue, where Miss Bernholz has long been Principal. The U. S. Mortgage and Trust Company is named as custodian of the fund.

Superintendent of Schools William L. Ettinger, when advised of Mrs. Schiff's gift, said last night:

"The plan is excellent. It insures the possibility of carrying out the intentions of the donor even though present conditions change somewhat. I have often hoped that some well-intentioned citizen would provide funds for the building and maintenance of a play school in one of our congested neighborhoods."

AGRICULTURAL BILL CARRIES $56,758,513

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—A total of $56,758,513, of which $17,700,000 would be available for improvement of highways during the coming fiscal year, is carried in the annual Agricultural bill reported today by the House Appropriations Committee.

The total is $16,082,940 less than the appropriation a year ago, when $32,300,000 was allotted for State-aid road construction, and is $471,312 less than the budget estimates.

For the enforcement of special laws by the Department of Agriculture the bill carries $2,627,000, the items including: Packers and Stockyards act, $452,540; Grain Futures act, $104,460; Plant Quarantine act, $324,426; Insecticide act, $140,575; Grain Standards act, $500,000; Warehouse act, $163,000; Cotton Futures and Cotton Standards act, $185,000; Food and Drug act, $716,000.

An additional $1,071,150 is provided for meat inspection, $308,000 for market inspection of perishable food and $682,480 for the department's news service on fruits and vegetables.

An appropriation of $20,000 is authorized to enable the Weather Bureau to give warnings throughout the country to fruit growers as to frost and advice on harvest weather and fruit spraying conditions.

The bill carries $3,277,600 for eradication of tuberculosis among cattle, the major portion of it to be spent in indemnities; $860,000 for eradicating cattle tick, $184,000 for eradicating hog cholera, $328,480 for blister rust control, $411,315 for barberry eradication, $572,360 for preventing the spread of moths and $216,350 for preventing the spread of the European corn borer.

Provision is made for appointment of delegates to the International Seed Testing Conference, to be held in England during 1924.

The committee's report, in dealing with expenditure of Federal funds for highway improvement, brought out that since 1917 Federal appropriations to the amount of $392,817,500 have been made available to the States, of which $284,380,339 had been paid to them prior to Jan. 1 last. Estimating that expenditures are being made during this fiscal year at the rate of $6,000,000 a month, the committee went on the theory that $72,437,160 would be available July 1 for highway expenditure in the coming fiscal year, in addition to the $17,700,000 carried in the bill.

PRIVATE OWNERS GAIN 13 SHIPS DURING 1923

Shipping Board Makes Public Report on American Merchant Marine.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The privately-owned fleet of the American merchant marine made a net gain of thirteen ships, exclusive of tankers, aggregating 83,178 gross tons during 1923, it was shown today in figures made public by the Shipping Board. The report covered only vessels of 1,000 tons or more.

The increase brought the total number of vessels under private operation to 766, displacing 3,020,651 gross tons. Of the total tonnage under the American flag, 2,385 vessels of 11,368,113 tons, including tankers but exclusive of ships operated on the great lakes, the report showed the Government owned 1,288, of which 68.4 per cent. were idle on Jan. 1. Private operators owned 1,097, of which 15.5 per cent. were unemployed.

Absorption by the intercoastal and coastwise trade of a majority of the six passenger and eleven cargo ships withdrawn by private operators, the report said, left only nine passenger and twenty-five cargo ships under their ownership in the transatlantic service.

A net increase of thirty-seven passenger and cargo ships of 241,254 tons was shown in the coastwise trade, and the transpacific service was augmented by ten cargo vessels of 54,158 tons. Passenger service across the Pacific decreased as a result of the withdrawal by the China mail of two vessels of 13,322 tons.

Of the active private vessels 72 per cent. were engaged in coastwise traffic, 11 per cent. on long-haul overseas trade and 17 per cent. in nearby foreign trade. Ninety per cent. of the Government-owned ships were employed exclusively in overseas service.

QUINN HITS MELLON PLAN.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Feb. 22.—"Mellon juggles figures and big business sends a few of its hoarded war profits to fight against the passage of obligations which are pledged to us by the Republican Party," John R. Quinn, National Commander of the American Legion, declared here today in an address to Legion representatives from Southern States.

"Every one except big business felt veterans' compensation was an obligation that was owing," he said, adding that railroads, war-time contractors and shipyard workers received large sums, and civil service employes received and still receive bonuses.

Fire Drives Out Fifty Women.

Fire starting in the tailor shop of Joseph Marinelli at 130 East Thirty-second Street yesterday drove out the occupants of the second and third floors of that building and fifty women living in a rooming house next door. Patrolman John Carroll rescued Walter Smith, a writer, who had rooms above the tailor shop.

KILL 14, WOUND 34 IN CLASH IN INDIA

Troops Under British Administrator of Nabha State Fire on Sikh Fanatics.

DELHI, British India, Feb. 22.—Fourteen Akalis or Sikh fanatics were killed and thirty-four wounded in a conflict recently in the Sikh State of Nabha between a force of Akalis and a party of Nabha troops under the British Administrator, according to advices just received here.

The enforced abdication of the Maharaja of the Nabha State has been used for several months by the Shrines Committee of the Punjab as a pretext for agitation, according to reports to the authorities, and as the former Maharaja refused to dissociate himself from the Akali movement both the Shrines Committee and the Akali Dal, another anti-British organization, were proclaimed illegal. The present trouble arose when 500 Akali fighters, armed with spears and rifles and screened by 4,000 other Akalis, started from Bargari, in the Faridkot State, on a raid against Jaito, in Nabha, in defiance of the Administrator's orders.

The raiders were met by the Administrator with a force of Nabha troops. They refused to retire, it is contended, when called upon to do so, and then became aggressive and opened fire, wounding a villager. The Administrator, the reports state, ordered the troops to fire six rounds, to which the Akalis replied and then attacked the Nabha forces.

The attack was checked by dismounted cavalrymen and subsequently the Akalis retired, leaving their killed and wounded and 100 prisoners.

Dr. Kitchiew, a Khilafat leader, and Professor Gidwani, a leading member of the Indian National Congress, who reached the scene after the firing, also were taken in custody.

Amnesia Victim Unidentified.

A well dressed young woman, about 23 years old, who was found at Myrtle Avenue and Spencer Street, Brooklyn, two days ago, a victim of amnesia, still was unable yesterday to give the police any information that might lead to her identification. She is at St. John's Hospital. She had only 2 cents and a set of rosary beads when found. She is five feet seven inches, weighs 160 pounds, and has brown hazel eyes and a ruddy complexion.

What You Should Know About Your Income Tax

The Tribune will publish with its issue of Monday, February 25th, a separate tabloid Income Tax Guide. This is the first Complete Income Tax Guide ever issued by an American newspaper.

This guide will be edited by The Tribune from facts compiled by Joseph J. Mitchell, member of the American Institute of Public Accountants.

It will give the exact figures on the proposed 25% reduction in the 1923 Income Tax and 25% earned income credit on 1924 incomes. This is an intricate thing to figure under the terms of the proposed act.

The Income Tax Blank will be reproduced and explained line by line. The Guide will give also the figures of the 1924 Income Tax as proposed in the Mellon Bill, the Garner Bill, the Frear Bill and other measures now before the Congress.

In addition, it will contain complete tables showing the actual yield on bond interest or dividends when the tax is subtracted. There will be other similar tables.

The arrangement of the guide permits for the first time a complete follow-through on the Income Tax blanks. It will specialize on each problem presented and list all deductions allowable and non-allowable. It will be couched throughout in simple English, permitting a ready understanding.

DARTMOUTH BEATS COLUMBIA, 20 TO 18

HALF-TIME SCORE 10 TO 10

STANDING OF TEAMS.

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Cornell	6	1	Princeton	2	3
Columbia	3	3	Penn	2	4
Dartmouth	3	3	Yale	2	4

Columbia's chances for an intercollegiate championship in the basketball league received a setback last night when the Blue and White five went down to defeat before Dartmouth on the Morningside floor, 20 to 18, and dropped into a tie for second place in the league standing. The Green team's victory brought it up to even terms with Columbia, each having won three and lost three contests.

The contest swayed back and forth, first one team leading and then the other, with the score even at half time, 10 to 10. But in the second period a field goal by Edwards, which came at a time when Columbia was out in front, sent the Green ahead, 15 to 14, and Coach Deering's five was unable to catch up again. Neither team showed any surprising qualities, the team-work of the Columbia five being especially poor, and both teams missing many easy tosses from the field. Edwards of Dartmouth was the only performer who found the basket with any degree of regularity. He contributed eight points to the Green's total on three field goals and two from the foul line.

Coach Deering rushed in a string of substitutes throughout the game in an effort to put a winning combination on the floor, but his efforts proved futile in the end. The stands were filled to their capacity of 3,000, President Butler being among the spectators who witnessed the contest.

Foul goals accounted for all the scoring during the first few minutes of the game, Columbia taking the lead at the start on two free tosses by Strom and another by Lustig. Edwards tossed one in from the foul line for Dartmouth and Lustig added to Columbia's score with another. Tulley then came into action for the first time and accounted for a field goal and a pair of baskets from the foul mark to send Dartmouth ahead, 5 to 4. Edwards caged another from the field and increased the Green's lead, but Mannheim put Columbia back into the running with a pair of foul tosses and a field goal. Thus the lead swayed back and forth until the half closed with the teams even at 10-10.

Columbia again took the lead at the start of the second half, Strom counting from the foul line, but Dooley's field goal put Dartmouth ahead at 12—11, and when Farer tossed in another foul shot the score was tied. Strom sent Columbia into the lead for what proved to be the last time when he capitalized a chance from the foul line, but once more Edwards scored, accounting for two points on a field goal and another from the foul line, and Dartmouth forged ahead, never to be caught again.

Shanneman	L.F.	Strom
Friedman	R.F.	Lustig
Edwards	C.	Mannheim
Sailer	L.G.	Wilson
Tulley	R.G.	Farer

Goals from field—Dartmouth: Edwards (3), Tulley, Dooley (2). Columbia: Strom, Mannheim, Farer, Kirchmeyer.

Substitutions—Dartmouth: Goas for Sailer, Dooley for Shanneman, Shanneman for Dooley, Dooley for Tulley. Columbia: Kirchmeyer for Wilson, Donaldson for Mannheim, Dockerill for Lustig, Mannheim for Donaldson, Wilson for Kirchmeyer, Lustig for Dockerill, Adams for Farer.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 22.—Yale, intercollegiate basketball champions last year, dropped out of the competition for the title in the present race by losing to Princeton, 30 to 28, here today. The game was played before an alumni reunion crowd which packed the gymnasium. The first half was as thrilling as any played on the home floor this season with the leading alternating several times before the period ended with the teams tied at 12 to 12.

In the second half Princeton opened up with a dazzling floor game that simply swamped the Blue and swept the Tigers to victory. In this period Hynson, a Princeton substitute, scored five field goals, which made him the star of the contest. Pite, the diminutive Yale forward, led the New Haven five with six field goals and a foul for his total during the entire game. Coach Joe Fogarty tried three players at centre in an unsuccessful attempt to check the whirlwind Tiger offensive.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 22.—Three Princeton records fell in Brokaw Pool this afternoon when the Tiger swimmers defeated Penn in a league meet, 50 to 12. All of the new marks were set by Princeton performers and came in the 50-yard dash, the 440-yard swim and the 200-yard relay.

Hayes, sprint man and member of the relay four, set the first new mark when he took the 50-yard dash in 24 and 3-5 seconds, clipping two fifths of a second off the mark made a month ago by Erdman of the yearling combination.

Hayes had a busy day as well as Hawkins, for he took third place in the fancy dive, after his record-breaking victory in the 50-yard dash, and later swam on the relay combination.

WEDELL IS HIGH SCORER

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 22.—Cornell improved its Intercollegiate Basketball League championship chances today when it defeated Penn in Weightman Hall before a crowd of 2,200 persons, 25 to 15. It was Penn's first defeat of the season on the home floor, after fourteen straight victories. The defeat eliminated Penn from any title hopes.

Coach Ortner's team held the Red and Blue to five field goals, while the invaders located the basket eleven times, Wedell leading the way with three. Dake, Byron and Rossomondo each got a pair for the Ithacans.

Cornell's speed, alert blocking, skilled dribbling and splendid shooting were entirely too much for Penn, which trailed at the end of the first half, 12 to 8. In the second half Cornell made six field goals to Penn's two, Ben Dessen, a substitute, being responsible for both.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 22.—The Passaic High School basketball team extended its record string of consecutive victories to 136 by winning two games here today. Jersey May Raise Top Price At Bouts From $15 to $25

TRENTON, N. J., Feb 22 (Associated Press).—New Jersey is expected to be placed in a position to compete with New York for big boxing bouts as a result of the action of the House Judiciary Committee this week in reporting a committee substitute for the Williams bill, by which a maximum admission price of $25 would be allowed. The maximum now is $15. The original Williams bill was a measure to permit decisions in boxing bouts. At the request of State Boxing Commissioner Newton A. K. Bugbee this feature was eliminated and the measure changed to a bill increasing the maximum admission. Commissioner Bugbee sees in the higher admissions a means of bringing championship matches to New Jersey with a consequent increase of about $200,000 yearly in the State boxing revenue. The bill is not expected to encounter opposition in the Assembly.

ANDY CRAW WINS THIRD MET TITLE

Andy Craw of the Glencoe A. C. added his third metropolitan A. A. U. senior championship within a period of seventeen days last night when he won the one and three-quarters-mile title event at the fifteenth annual indoor track meet of the Knights of St. Antony at the 106th Infantry Regiment Armory in Brooklyn. Before approximately 4,000 spectators, Craw gave one of his finest performances of the season, setting the pace for the field of six other starters for most of the early part of the race and taking it again on the last lap to finish with a sustained burst of speed 8 yards in front of Pat Kennedy of the La Rabida Council, K. of C. His time was 8:26 1-5. Kennedy, who held the lead from the one and a half-mile mark until relieved of it by Craw, finished well ahead of Fred Wachsmuth, a clubmate of Craw and holder of the junior cross-country title, whose sprint was beaten off. Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Feb. 22.—The National Challenge Pennant for Fifth Class iceboats carrying 150 and 200 feet of sail, offered by Mayor Charles Billings of Ocean Port, was the holiday attraction and opening race of the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht Club today over the inside course of ten miles, Captain Leon Price's Little Imp winning with 26 seconds to spare. Clarence Reid's C. and C. was second and William Duryea's Scout third. The Crazy Kat and Ace started but broke down.

Tomorrow the Third Class fliers will sail for the Commodore's Pennant. The club will hold its skating races March 1 and 2, under the sanction of the New Jersey Skating Association. It is expected that some of the Olympic skaters will take part in the races.

COMMITTEE NOT TO MEET.

Date for Big-Ten Track Games Will Be Chosen by Mail.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—Because of the action of Colonel Palmer Pierce in calling off the national collegiate track meet, scheduled for June 1, members of the committee appointed to pick a date for the Western conference meet will not gather here tomorrow as planned and a mail vote on the question probably will be taken.

Since there is no conflict of dates it is thought the conference meet will be awarded to Chicago for June 7 as originally planned.

Exeter Academy Athlete Sets 45-Yard High Hurdles Record

EXETER, N. H., Feb. 22.—A new record for the 45-yard high hurdles was set at the Phillips-Exeter Academy track meet here today by Charles T. Elliott Jr. of Brookline, Mass. His time for the event was 0:5 4-5 seconds, as recorded by the officials of the meet. The interscholastic record for the event is 0:6 1-5 seconds and the A. A. U. record 6 seconds. The meet was the annual competition for the faculty shield. Elliott, who played quarterback on last season's Exeter football team, made his performance on a board track out of doors.

ERASMUS HALL WINS JERSEY CITY MEET

Erasmus Hall High School of Brooklyn surprised followers of scholastic track and field athletics by winning the Dr. Gordon K. Dickinson point trophy at the fourteenth annual games of the Dickinson High School of Jersey City at the Fourth Regiment Armory in Jersey City yesterday afternoon. Five thousand spectators packed the large drill shed to see the games.

Erasmus won by a single point, scoring 17 points to 16 for the St. Benedict's Preparatory School of Newark. It was the first track triumph for the Brooklyn school in fifteen years. The hero of the meet was Bob Wade of Erasmus Hall, who by getting third place in the running high jump senior, the last event on the program, enabled his school to win the trophy. Wade had a great jumping duel with George Allison of South Side High School of Newark for the place.

Erasmus won the meet without scoring a single first place in any of the events, but gathered a flock of points by finishing second, third and fourth in the different events. They got a fourth in the fifty-yard junior dash, second and third in the fifty-yard novice sprint, second in the 880-yard run, third in the 220, second in the novice relay, third in the one-mile senior relay and third in the running high jump.

Erasmus Hall High was not the only Manhattan school to gain honors, for the crack De La Salle Institute relay team won the one-mile relay race for the third consecutive time and obtained permanent possession of the Albert Quinn Post trophy of the American Legion. De La Salle defeated Dickinson High, Erasmus Hall and Central High School in an easy manner.

The best race of the afternoon was the one-mile run for the J. J. Hopkins Memorial Trophy, which was won by Teddy Atkinson of East Rutherford High School, who just nosed out Charley Geoghegan of St. Benedict's Prep by a step.

PRINCETON DEFEATS YALE SEXTET, 1 TO 0

DEFENSE FEATURES GAME

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 22.—Van Gerbig's goal in the last minute of the second overtime period gave Princeton a 1-to-0 hockey victory over Yale in the Baker Memorial Rink this afternoon. Three regular periods of fast hockey failed to produce a tally, and with less than a minute to play Aleck Sayles took the puck down the ice and passed from behind the net to Van Gerbig, who made a beautiful shot from the left side of the rink.

The victory evens the series between the Tigers and the Elis, and the play-off is scheduled for New Haven on March 8. Yale has already registered a win over Harvard, while the Tigers lost the Crimson series, but have a chance to break even in the Big Three series in their next meeting with the Blue.

The game was one of the fastest ever seen on the local rink, with defense work playing the major part, and with very little team work displayed by either side on the offensive. Jenkins, Yale goal, made many brilliant stops, while Colebrook, in the nets for Princeton, was equally brilliant, but had fewer chances. His work was the best shown by a Tiger goal guard this season. Van Gerbig and Sayles starred for Princeton with their stick work, and Captain Wall proved the mainstay of the defense, meeting the Eli wings repeatedly to take away the puck.

Captain O'Hearn was closely watched and had little chance to show anything, losing the puck in the few dashes he attempted.

Tiger followers had a scare in the second session, when a fast scrimmage in front of the goal resulted in Scott shooting the rubber past Colebrook, only to have the referee call him offside. Aside from this there were few close shots, though Jenkins had his hands full several times when Charlie Davis and Van Gerbig rushed him hard.

All three regular periods were played at top speed, and fast slashing by both teams broke up what little semblance of team work appeared. The fast gait continued throughout the first five-minute overtime session, and with the end of the second one drawing near it looked as though a third would be necessary. At this point Sayles got the puck and rushed it the length of the ice and behind the Eli goal, to pass to Van Gerbig, who shot the winning score. In the remaining forty-five seconds Charlie Davis kept the Elis busy chasing the rubber into their own territory, and the bell rang with Van Gerbig again attacking the blue goal.

PRINCETON (1)		YALE (0).
C. Davis	L.W.	Scott
Sayles	C.	Ferguson
A. Davis	R. W.	Turnbull
Wall	L. D.	O'Hearn
Van Gerbig	R. D.	Sargent
Colebrook	G.	Jenkins

Substitutions—Princeton: Scull for A. Davis, Martin for Sayles, Sayles for A. Davis, Wilkinson for Trenholm, Scull for Wilkinson, Stout for Sayles, Sayles for Stout. Yale: Potts for O'Hearn, O'Hearn for Ferguson, Cottle for Turnbull, Ferguson for Scott, Scott for Cottle, Turnbull for Potts, Potts for Sargent, Cutler for Potts, Lindley for Cutler.

Referees—Sands and Wiggett. Timekeepers—Millard and McKim.

ARMY SEXTET WINS; WRESTLERS BEATEN

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 22.—The Army hockey and swimming teams scored victories today, but the wrestlers lost to Virginia Military Institute and prevented a clean sweep for the cadets in the day's athletic events. The V. M. I. grapplers' 10-6 victory was gained by getting falls in each of the bouts which they won. Of the six bouts the Army captured two on time advantages, while two were drawn struggles.

The tank victory was scored over the Swarthmore swimmers, who were completely outclassed, the Army representatives taking first and second places in every event except one.

The cadets' hockey victory was gained against Williams by a count of 6 to 3. The cadets were better with the stick, their passing game showing great improvement and their teamwork was excellent. Army had enough goals to win when the first period was over, Marinelli getting two and Westphalinger and Stevenson one each in that period.

McNary's goal tending was excellent, his turning back of many savage thrusts being a feature. Howe skated well for Williams.

The line-up:

McNary	G.	Lowes
Westphalinger	R. D.	Presoprich
Baird	L. D.	Howe
Marinelli	C.	Comstock
C. G. Stevenson	L. W.	Watson

Referee—Marshall.

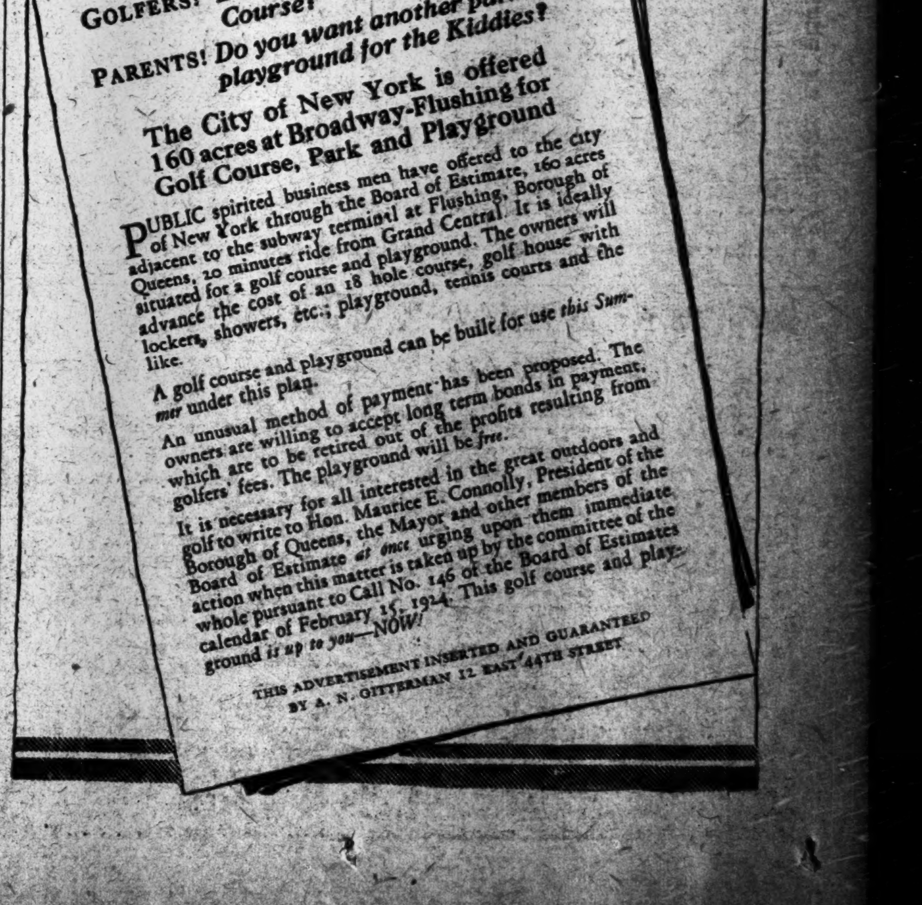
USED CARS

Consult the Automobile Exchange of The New York Times for a used car. All makes and models advertised. Some cars have had little use. Care exercised to prevent insertion of misleading offers.—Advt.



To the friends who are inquiring whether we have any bargains in suits and overcoats, we must to-day say yes, and no!

The offerings of the last ten days have been snapped up at a speed unusual even for us and as a result, we have no such quantity of goods at bargain prices as would warrant our inviting our public generally.

Of course, the suits still left from the $30 and $45 sale aggregate several hundred, counting sack suits and norfolks, and more of them are 38 chest and smaller than for men of more ample proportions.

As for overcoats, the Winter coats marked down are about all gone, but there are some medium weights and light overcoats at $40 which are very interesting to the man who happens on his size.

Aside from these clearances it's perhaps needless to say that in accord with our invariable policy of maintaining liberal stocks right up to the end of the season, we have ample selections of both Winter suits and Winter overcoats at very moderate prices.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 22.—Edgar T. Appleby had a narrow escape from defeat in the semi-final of the National Class A 18.2 balkline billiard tournament here tonight. In his third inning the former holder of the title ran 100 points and at the close of five innings he led John A. Clinton Jr. by 182 to 1. At the end of ten innings he was in front 199 to 76.

It was at this period that Clinton began to show to good advantage. Appleby's stroke was wrecked in attempting to solve the angles and he barely finished in front by 300 to 279.

The baffling leaves of the Pittsburgh player lowered Appleby's average to 10 20-28, with high runs of 100, 47 and 46. Clinton had an average of 9 27-28, with runs of 51, 36 and 27.

Clinton will meet Percy N. Collins, the champion, in the remaining semi-final tomorrow afternoon. Appleby will play Collins in the night match, the final of the tournament series.

Appleby had all the honors at the beginning of the contest. Clinton left him a set up as he missed the regulation two-cushion opener and the New Yorker collected 31 close carroms at the foot of the table. His great shot of this collection was a nip draw off the red to catch the white in the centre of the table. He also played several fine banks and massés and a long draw shot half the length of the table on the side rail. The miss was a draw that found the hole around the second object ball.

Two turns later he settled down to delicate short table carroms. At 71 he made another drive and with a brilliant display of English, draw shots and massés, with the balls only moving inches, he went on to 100 when he failed to get the balls out of balk on a massé. Meanwhile Clinton overplayed his shots. He did not get a cluster of double figures until his ninth turn at the table. The accumulation totaled thirty-six before he missed a cross-table single cushion. On his next turn Clinton made 21, all on open-table shots and with little close table carroms.

The closing innings were filled with brilliant shots and safety play. Appleby took ten innings to get his last fourteen points.

Appleby—31, 0, 100, 47, 4, 0, 4, 0, 0, 13, 2, 0, 46, 5, 9, 14, 2, 0, 9, 3, 1, 0, 1, 2, 0, 2, 4, 1. Total—300. Average—10 20-28. High runs—100, 47 and 46.

Clinton—0, 1, 0, 0, 0, 3, 7, 8, 36, 21, 3, 0, 1, 51, 22, 17, 21, 0, 0, 1, 22, 27, 1, 0, 0, 9, 21, 7. Total—279. Average—9 27-28. High runs—51, 36 and 27.

Referee—James Crookston.

Emil A. Renner, Ohio State champion, played his last game in sensational fashion this afternoon. He outplayed Jacob Klinger of New York and won by 300 to 159 points. The Ohio player completed his string with an average of 12 12-24, and high runs of 71, 39 and 38. Klinger's average was 6 15-24, and his high runs 20, 17 and 15.

As the result of his victory Renner wins fourth place in the classic of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. He has two victories and three defeats. Dr. Richard M. Roscow of Baltimore, who completed his part in the tournament yesterday, is fifth, with one victory and four defeats. Klinger, who has suffered from impaired vision, stands at sixth, with five defeats and no victories.

Renner had the match in hand after the first hundred points. His manoeuvring along the end rails for position was of an unusually brilliant character. So closely bunched did he hold the ivories that he was frequently compelled to play away from a freeze.

In his closing inning he had the ivories well under control. For the twenty points which he ran he had the balls nestling in one of the corners, and he only rolled the red and white out as the restrictions of the game required. At the finish he had the balls under a hat.

Renner—4, 5, 1, 25, 0, 5, 38, 4, 3, 0, 39, 2, 38, 1, 0, 0, 0, 0, 1, 71, 9, 17, 17, 20—Total 300. Average, 12 12-24. High runs—71, 39 and 38.

Klinger—10, 0, 15, 20, 7, 4, 0, 6, 11, 17, 11, 5, 12, 1, 4, 3, 0, 11, 2, 1, 0, 7, 0, 13 (minus 1 for a miss)—Total 159. Average, 6 15-24. High runs—20, 17 and 15.

GREENLEAF EQUALS RECORD

Runs 100 Points in Two Innings, Defeating Woods.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 22.—Running 100 points in two innings, Ralph Greenleaf of this city equaled the world's record for a short-pocket billiard game when he defeated Arthur Woods of Pittsburgh in the first of a four-game match today by 100 to 10. Greenleaf shot 39 in his first inning and then ran out in the second, when he clicked off 61.

Woods failed to score in his first inning and gathered 10 in his second and what proved to be his last inning. Greenleaf's feat equals that made by Andrew St. Jean of Minneapolis several months ago when he beat Walter Franklin at Kansas City.

READING, Pa., Feb. 22.—Killing forty straight, John H. Sellers of Lancaster carried off the coveted Pennsylvania State Challenge Cup, emblematic of the live bird championship of Pennsylvania, in the fifty-eighth annual shoot for this historic trophy, shot here over the Spring Valley traps today.

RICKARD IS ANGLING FOR CHILEAN BOXER

He Would Give Quintin Romero Chance to Fight Way Into Dempsey Match.

Tex Rickard will not be found short of foreign boxing talent in the event that Luis Angel Firpo decides to cast his lot with other American promoters, if present plans of the Madison Square Garden promoter materialize. Rickard now is seeking to induce Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight, to come to this country. The promoter yesterday announced that he had cabled Romero, offering three bouts under his supervision, with the guarantee that if the Chilean survives the three matches he will get a title bout with Jack Dempsey.

Rickard's plan is to match Romero against boxers of the type of Fred Fulton, Jack Renault, Bartley Madden and George Godfrey, on the theory that either or all of the men he named could give Romero a satisfactory trial to determine the Chilean's fitness for recognition as an opponent for Dempsey. It is Rickard's intention, if Romero accepts his offer, to arrange the three trial bouts for this year and develop Romero into a suitable opponent for Dempsey in a match to be held during the outdoor season of 1925.

Reports of Romero's ring exploits and his physical prowess have impressed Rickard until the promoter is confident he can do with the Chilean as he did with Firpo—develop him into a rival for Dempsey. Romero now is camping on the trail of Firpo in South America, seeking a battle for the South American heavyweight title after having scored a number of victories over European boxers on the Continent. His most notable accomplishment to date has been the defeat of Marcel Nilles, French heavyweight, who is an ordinary boxer when measured by the ring standards of this country. Romero knocked out Nilles as he has knocked out several other European rivals. He arrived in South America recently to force a meeting with Firpo. The latter, however, seems disinclined to box the Chilean and has been advised by the boxing authorities of the Argentine that unless he does box Romero the latter will be recognized as South American heavyweight champion.

Romero is said to weigh in the neighborhood of 200 pounds and posses phenomenal strength. In view of the fact that he has not yet received any word from Firpo with respect to the latter's ring plans for this year, Rickard said he is particularly eager to get Romero to come to this country where unlimited ring opportunities await him.

Rickard expressed satisfaction at the news that Luis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, now is on the high seas, bound for this country. The promoter declared he would seek a match against Pal Moran, New Orleans lightweight, for Vicentini, as a preliminary to sending the South American against Benny Leonard in a bout for the world' lightweight title.

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—S. P. Clark of Philadelphia was re-elected President of the United States Squash Racquets Association at the annual meeting of that body held here in conjunction with the national singles and team championships which began today. S. M. Toyne, captain of the English team, told the association that he would recommend to the Tennis and Racquets Association of England the adoption of the American playing rules, with but slight modifications. The association instructed its Executive Committee to reach an agreement of such changes as were suggested by the English team in order to standardize the game to encourage international competition.

In the second flight James A. Stillman, New York banker, took a severe drubbing from Millard Chase of Minneapolis. He held on gamely through the first eighteen holes, turning two down, and then his game got away from him and he lost the match 7 and 6.

HUNTINGTON VICTOR IN CLASS B SQUASH

The Princeton Club Class B squash tennis team, winner of the metropolitan championship last year, yielded additional ground yesterday in the race for the title this season when H. P. Townsend of the Orange and Black was defeated by Ellery C. Huntington of D. K. E. in one of the the two matches postponed from Tuesday in the engagement between the two clubs on the Hotel Shelton courts. The D. K. E. club won three of the five matches played on Tuesday, to lead at 3-2, and two others were postponed until yesterday. When Huntington defeated Townsend the Greek Letter men had captured four matches and there was no necessity of playing the seventh between W. Becker of D. K. E. and Gavin Brackenridge of Princeton. Huntington defeated Townsend after losing the first game at 10—15, 15—10, 15—13.

Princeton remains in third place in the standing but is now a match and a half behind Harvard, which is in second place with eight matches won and three lost. The D. K. E. club strengthens its hold on fourth place with six victories and four defeats, only one match behind Princeton. The Greek Letter team, which was runner-up to Princeton last year, losing the title by the margin of a single individual contest, started strong this season but suffered a lapse that brought it down in the standing.

Townsend played better squash than did Huntington in the opening game of their match yesterday and deserved to win it. His drives were well controlled and he made few errors in getting the ball back from all position. Huntington's smashing power gradually asserted itself in the second game, and Townsend fell off in accuracy, partly because of the difficulty he had in handling the other's speed. Huntington won the game by the same margin by which he had lost the first chapter.

In the third game the two men put up a vigorous struggle. The rallies were characterized by the hardest kind of hitting, and both players outdid themselves in getting about the courts to make returns.

FIRST GIANTS REACH CAMP AT SARASOTA

SAND IN THE BALL PARK

Special to The New York Times.

SARASOTA, Fla., Feb. 22.—The Giants arrived in Sarasota this morning and quickly found that John Ringling's Winter resort was not all that it was cracked up to be. Evidently the circus man and intimate friend of John McGraw had not fully prepared the natives for the coming of the big leaguers, for the Giants had to spend the entire day looking for a hotel big enough to accommodate them.

To cap the climax, the travelers who trudged out to the ball park at one end of town found conditions somewhat less than ideal. The infield was in excellent shape and nicely sodded, but the outfield was found to be several inches thick with sand, and this horrible discovery brought dismay to General Hughie Jennings and Colonel Cozey Dolan, who are in temporary charge of the expedition.

However, the ball park was the least of the day's worries. For several hours the major leaguers from the big metropolis had to walk the streets and sit on park benches while Judge Francis X. McQuade and Jennings scurried around trying to find another hotel. Late this afternoon they finally found lodging for most of the athletes and newspaper men in the Hotel Miramir, a new and palatial hostelry which commands a view of Sarasota Bay and the Gulf of Mexico beyond.

The Wrong Hotel.

One look at the hotel originally selected for the Giant party was enough for Judge McQuade, who led a contingent of fifteen men into Sarasota this morning. In the first place, the hotel had accommodations for only thirty-eight people, and there will be more than seventy in the Giant squad. Besides being inadequate, the place was badly run down at the heels, needed a new coat of paint in several spots, had only nine bathrooms for seventy people and was lacking in other respects. It was described as a family hotel, but the Giants were too large a family.

The blame for the disaster was finally fixed on the local representative of John Ringling, who is not here himself, although he has a handsome Winter home here and owns half the town. The local representative had arranged for John McGraw to stop at the New Miramar while the ball players and newspaper men languished at the family hotel. It seems that that is the custom among the circus people who play in this metropolis. The chief stays at the fancy hotel while the bareback riders, lion tamers, parachute performers, clowns and circus hands tarry in more modest lodgings elsewhere. Mixing baseball with circuses nearly proved fatal for the Giants.

After a series of conferences with the owner of the Miramar, Judge McQuade adjusted the difficulty late today, and the club was resting easily tonight, with excellent rooms and a special dining room of its own.

Tomorrow the practices will start, and Sunday McGraw is scheduled to arrive from Havana. It is feared that the Little Napoleon will not be entirely pleased with what he sees at the ball park. The climate came up to advance notices, the town itself is pleasant, hospitable and pretty; the fishing is wonderful and the bathing superb. But the ball park is a little under par.

Sand at Gainesville.

Five years ago the Giants struck sand at Gainesville and McGraw still swears softly when he thinks of it. Sand in the outfield means treacherous, slippery footing, charley horses, wrenched muscles and sore ankles and knees. At least, it usually means that and Henry Fabian, the demon groundkeeper, was not so sure tonight that it would not mean that in the present case.

Survivors of Gainesville said that the footing here is not as bad, and the Giants may get through without mishap. The park otherwise is ideal. It is part of a former fair grounds and race track, with no fence around it to stop long drives. Fabian declares that the infield is the best he has ever seen in any league. It has been specially sodded and the baselines are in tip top condition, firm and springy. The grandstand is a tiny affair, capable of seating only a few hundred and the bleachers are of the same size.

The best part of the layout is the clubhouse, which has room for a hundred players and is well fitted out with lockers, shower baths, rubbing compartment and even a special room, done in blue and cerise, for McGraw. Next to the park is a nine-hole golf course and clubhouse. On the whole the Giants have no complaints to make about Sarasota, despite the grotesque tangle over hotels.

Most of the players instructed to report here grandly ignored the order of McGraw. The only athletes waiting were Dinty Gearin, Hugh McQuillan, Jack Bentley and Perce Malone, all pitchers. Hank Gowdy climbed aboard the train at Jacksonville. Jennings and Dolan were also waiting here, but Nehf, Watson, Snyder, Dean, Maun and others are absent without leave.

RUPPERT RECEIVES VISIT FROM PENNOCK

The unsigned players of the Giants and Yankees apparently did not want to do business on a holiday, for not one contract was received at the offices of the two local clubs yesterday. There was a ray of sunshine at Yankee headquarters, however, for Herbert Pennock, star and solitary lefthander of the American League team's pitching staff, paid a visit to the city and had a friendly conference with Colonel Ruppert. Pennock came here from his home in Kennett Square, Pa., talked things over with the owner of the club and then went back to the Philadelphia suburb to think the matter over in peace and quiet.

The frail portsider who played such an important part in the last world's series left in a pleasant frame of mind, and both Colonel Ruppert and Edward Barrow, business manager of the club, were confident that his signed and sealed contract would be received within the next few days.

There was no further word from Bullet Joe Bush, the other recalcitrant Philadelphian of the Yankee hurling corps. Bush has definitely announced that he is a holdout, and the next move to swing the veteran into line may have to be made by the club officials.

To offset the sad news from Philadelphia about Bush, Barrow received word yesterday that Joe Dugan, who has been ill at his home here with tonsillitis, was able to be up and around the house and expected to be well enough to get outdoors next week.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 22.—Frank Chance will assume command of the White Sox long before they leave their training camp at Winter Haven, Fla. Despite his recent offer to resign and the fact that the after effects of the flu still have him in their grasp, the Cub hero of other days is determined to answer the call of the big league and he said to night that by the middle of next month he will be able to start South.

HAND SWEEP NIPS SCAMPER AT FINISH

HAVANA, Feb. 22.—Although the majority of the races at Oriental Park this afternoon were for non-winners at this meeting, the fields were well matched, several finishes being so close as to arouse much enthusiasm on the part of the holiday gathering that crowded the course.

The third race furnished the most exciting finish of the day, when Hand Sweep came from behind in the homestretch to get up in the final strides to beat the tiring pacemaker, Scamper, by a head. The latter went wide entering the stretch, while Hand Sweep hugged the inside rail and saved ground all the way.

REVENGE IS VICTOR AT NEW ORLEANS

MAH JONG FAILS TALENT

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22.—Harry Payne Whitney's four-year-old gelding Revenge, by Chicle out of Regret, this afternoon won his second victory in six starts at the Fair Grounds when he defeated four others in the first running of the George Washington's Birthday Handicap. Picking up 114 pounds and with Ivan Parke in the saddle, the gelding ran the mile and seventy yards in 1:44 4-5 over a fast track. The winner was the 8 to 5 favorite and the race was worth $1,500 to his owner.

Revenge did not look like a winner in the early stages. Although he broke from the rail position at the post he ran in last position for the greater part of the journey. Then he went wide, but at the end he came to the fore with a great rush, outstayed Barracuda and beat the Trap Rock horse by half a length. The latter, coupled with Best Pal as the S. N. Holman entry, was ridden wide for the entire journey, but held on well when Revenge challenged and was half a length in front of Romany at the finish.

Best Pal showed a brief burst of speed at the start, running second to Romany until a furlong from home, where he began to weaken and finished last. Romany also tired from his early efforts to hold off Best Pal, but had enough left to take the short end of the purse from Setting Sun.

A good thing went wrong in the Shuffle Along Handicap for three-year-olds at six furlongs when Edward Cebrian's Sir Martin colt, Mah Jong, was soundly beaten by K. C. Miles's King O'Neill II. and the Southland Stable's Blotter. Mah Jong had run seven times previously, had won three times, the last two in succession, and had not been out of the money once. He went to the post an odds-on favorite, backed down to 3 to 5.

Parke had the mount on Mah Jong and rode the colt hard from the start, but the colt tired in the last furlong and could do no better than take the short end of the purse. Queen Charming had the early speed, but she was through after going half a mile. King O'Neill II. ran to his best form, moved to the front with a rush in the stretch and won easily, being two lengths in front of Blotter. The latter ran well and held on to take the place by two lengths from the favorite. Both first and second horses were outsiders in the field of six, being held at 12 to 1. The winner carried top weight of 115 pounds and ran the distance in 1:13.

Would Stop Betting on Golf, Voted to Keep Pari-Mutuels

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 22.—Playing golf in Kentucky on Sunday would be punishable by a fine of $25 to $100 and a jail sentence of ten to thirty days, under penalties provided in a bill introduced in the Upper House of the General Assembly by State Senator J. B. Clark of Martin County. Persons wagering on the outcome of a golf game any day in the week would be liable to the same penalties under the bill. Study of the record today revealed that Senator Clark was among those who voted yesterday to kill a measure under which a State law legalizing pari-mutuel betting at Kentucky race tracks would be repealed. The repealer, which passed the House, 56 to 38, lost in the Senate, 24 to 14.

WHITE'S GET THERE IS DOUBLE VICTOR

RED BANK, N. J., Feb. 22.—Reuben White sailed his ice yacht Get There to victory in two fast fifteen-mile races on the North Shrewsbury ice today before a large holiday crowd. In both the morning and afternoon events Thomas Irving Brown's Say When, handled by Floyd Brady, was only nosed out at the finish, being beaten in the first race by five seconds and in the second event by ten seconds.

Today's races were between skippers as well as boats. White outgeneraled Brady in the afternoon event in the windward work, keeping the fast Say When always to the leeward and thus winning by a close margin. The struggle between these two yachts featured both races.

A strong northwest wind was blowing when Commodore James B. Weaver sent five yachts away in the morning event. Irving Hance, who was sailing Thomas Irving Brown's Now Then, had not gone far when the frail yacht was struck by a heavy gust of wind off Robbins Point and upset. Hance stuck in the cockpit and was not injured. The boat was not damaged.

MISS MULLER TRIUMPHS

Easily Captures 440-Yard Championship and Finishes First in 880-Yard Handicap.

Louis Morris, speed skating star of the Peerless Skating Club, won the two-mile city championship race for men from a field of forty skaters yesterday in the municipal holiday skating novice and championship carnival on Conservatory Lake in Central Park. This event was the feature race on the program, which included competitions for men, women and juvenile skaters. Morris won by a ten-yard margin over Joe Schapiro, skating unattached, while Ray Schwanenkamp of the Morningside A. C. took third. Morris's time for the distance was 5:25.

A crowd of about 3,000 persons fringed the lake to witness the long program of events, which was held under the auspices of the Park Department. The ice was in rather poor condition, and was too soft to permit of any unusually fast marks being made by the skaters.

In addition to the two-mile city championship race, other municipal title events were contested. Miss Elsie Muller, Iceland skating star, scored an easy victory in the 440-yard city championship race for women. Miss Muller's time for the event was 0:43. Miss Caroline Breiter of the Women's Skating Association finished about eight yards behind Miss Muller, and Miss Alice Heiser, clubmate of Miss Breiter, took third. Miss Muller also won the 880-yard handicap race for women from scratch, easily defeating Miss Grace McDermott, Miss Dot Jackson and three others.

Sam Goldberg of Iceland added another victory to his string of triumphs secured on metropolitan rinks when he finished first in the 440-yard race for men. His time was 0:37 2-5. Mike McLaughlin of the Tremont Skating Club, who won a one-mile handicap race for men earlier on the program, was second to Goldberg, and Irving Reiner, skating unattached, took third.

P. Smakey was the victor in the 880-yard city championship race for boys under 16 years, outdistancing the rest of his field by twelve yards. The 440-yard novice race for women went to Miss Grace Leeman, while Miss Adele Corke finished first in the 440-yard title race for girls under 14 years of age. H. Bloom crossed the line first in the 300-yard race for boys under 12.

THREE BOYS AND GIRL LOSE LIVES COASTING

TWO NEW JERSEY DEATHS

Virginia Lawrence, 19, of 135 East Ninety-fourth Street, was one of four persons killed in accidents yesterday when ice-coated hills brought out thousands of sleds for the first good coasting of the Winter. Many others were seriously injured.

The accident in which Miss Lawrence was fatally injured occurred on the golf course of the Wykagyl Country Club at New Rochelle in the presence of several hundred people. Miss Lawrence and her sister, Ruth, 22, were thrown into a stone-lined culvert when the driver of their sled, Donald M. Street, Hotel Gramatan, Bronxville, missed the bridge. Virginia Lawrence sustained a broken back and fractured skull and died an hour later in the New Rochelle Hospital. Her sister suffered concussion of the brain and two broken ribs. Street was also badly injured. The condition of Ruth was pronounced critical.

Street told New Rochelle police that he and the Lawrence girls joined the holiday crowds of coasters assembled at the slides the steep hills of the links afforded. They chose one of the highest, off Quaker Ridge Road, whose slope shot downward toward the seventeenth hole in a long stretch where the recent rain had frozen and crusted upon the snow. Their bobsled developed express train speed by the time they neared the bottom of the lightning-fast chute, and Street attempted to straighten out to take the narrow bridge spanning the culvert. Onlookers said the sled seemed to hit a slight hillock and bounce.

Plunged Into Ditch.

When the sled runners touched again, Street was seen trying desperately to keep the flying sled on its course, but in another instant it missed the bridge completely, crashed into the ditch, and smashed to splinters against the stone retaining wall. The three riders were unconscious when rescue arrived, and club members rushed them to the New Rochelle Hospital, where Virginia Lawrence died shortly after her arrival.

Staten Island police ordered coasting discontinued on three streets there when Arthur Richter, 12, of 53 St. Paul's Avenue, Tompkinsville, suffered injuries causing his death, and Philip Bishop, 14, of 240 Gordon Street, Stapleton, was badly hurt.

Arthur Richter was one of a crowd of boys coasting down the St. Paul's Avenue hill to Van Duser Street. On a descent his sled crashed into the rear of an automobile standing in front of 63 St. Paul's Avenue, while the owner, Dr. Charles Reigl, was inside calling upon a patient. Richter's head struck the metal frame of the car, causing a compound fracture at the base of the skull. Dr. Reigl took the boy to St. Vincent's Hospital, West New Brighton, where he died a few minutes later without regaining consciousness.

The Bishop lad a little earlier met a similar accident sliding down the hill from Hudson Street to Gordon Street at Stapleton. His flying sled ran into a Department of Plant and Structures automobile truck, driven by George Giano of 262 Richmond Road, Concourse. The boy's skull was fractured when he was thrown against a wheel of the truck, and he was taken to the Staten Island Hospital, where his condition was pronounced grave.

No arrests were made, the police after investigating announcing that both accidents were due entirely to the chances taken by the boys. Orders were at once issued, however, that all coasting was to cease on St. Paul's Avenue, Hudson and Gordon Streets.

Two Deaths in New Jersey.

Another coasting death was reported in Plainfield, N. J., where Daniel Haurey, 16, of Dunellen, died in the Muhlenberg Hospital of a fractured skull sustained in Dunellen the day before.

In Newark one boy was killed outright and his brother seriously injured when, in coasting down the Thirteenth Avenue hill, their sled collided with an automobile. The dead boy was John Ronnell, 12, of 116 Hunterdon Street, who died at City Hospital of a fractured skull. His brother, Rocco, 11, is in the same institution. The driver of the automobile, Louis Boydman of 151 Spruce Street, was paroled when witnesses testified he was blameless. The Thirteenth Avenut hill is not designated as a slide, according to the Newark police, who closed it to sleds after the accident.

Two boys are in Lincoln Hospital as the result of injuries sustained in the Bronx yesterday when their sled coasted over a forty-foot embankment at Sedgwick Avenue, near 170th Street. Philip Introase, 12, of 1,350 Sedgwick Avenue, received a broken right arm, and Frank Spein, 13, of 1,350 Sedgwick Avenue, contusions.

In another Bronx accident at 134th Street and Brook Avenue, Rose Meyerwitz, 11, of 492 East 134th Street, ran into an automobile parked at the curb. After being attended to she was able to go home.

Mario Lombardi, 9, of 158 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, was cut about the head when he fell off his sled as it was shooting along Grand Concourse at 158th Street.

Oppose Bar Incorporation Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—An adverse report on the Graham bill, providing for incorporation of the American Bar Association, was decided upon today by a House Judiciary Subcommittee.

TO AID AMERICAN MUSICIANS

New Association Will Be Formed to Develop Native Talent.

Following the charges made by William A. Brady that the Metropolitan Opera Company made no effort to encourage native musical talent, the American Association of Lovers of Music, already represented in thirty-four States, announced yesterday that a new association would be formed, with headquarters at 1,425 Broadway. The object is to inaugurate a patriotic movement by American women, whose aim is to check discrimination against American artists and aid home talent in every possible way. Mrs. Adolphus Ragan, Recording Secretary, said yesterday that members of the new association were entirely in sympathy with Mr. Brady's statement that foreigners were encouraged in the United States at the expense of native-born artists.

The Advisory Committee includes Mr. and Mrs. Alton B. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon, Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lippincott, Charles Wakefield Cadman, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Busch and Milton S. Guiterman. The President and founder of the new association is Mrs. David Allen Campbell, an editress, well known in musical circles.

It is planned to establish art and music centres in all cities of more than 5,000 population throughout the United States. Prior to this a series of concerts featuring exclusively American interpretative artists will be held. For the first time in New York a Spring festival of this character is to be given. It will consist of five concerts at Carnegie Hall, commencing April 11.

The American Association of Lovers of Music will have the support of the National Council of Women, representing thirty-five organizations with a total membership of approximately 1,000,000. It is estimated that of the 40,000 music students entering New York studios yearly, less than 1 per cent. eventually are provided with adequate public hearing. To remedy this economic loss and to obviate the tragic disappointments of artistic effort in some degree, the association declares that it will serve as "a kind of clearing house."

"MME. BUTTERFLY" AGAIN.

Packed Houses See It in Afternoon and "Rigoletto" in Evening.

"Madame Butterfly" was the opera for the matinee of Washington's Birthday yesterday in the Metropolitan Opera House. Edward Johnson being indisposed, the part of Pinkerton was taken by Mario Chamlee, who delivered himself with his customary sentiment and beauty of tone. Elizabeth Rettberg's Cio-Cio-San proved one of the best parts she has taken here. Seldom has the music been sung with such vocalism and eloquent interpretation of dramatic song. Antonio Scotti's Sharpless, as always, was a lesson in every phase of dramatic interpretation. The Suzuki was Flora Perini; Goro, Palgrinieri, and other parts as at previous performances of this work. Mr. Moranzoni conducted.

In the evening, as in the afternoon, there was a packed house. "Rigoletto" was the opera, with Lauri-Volpi, the Duke; Giuseppe Danise, Rigoletto; Jeanne Gordon, Maddalena, and Queena Mario, Gilda—the latter two, young American singers who admirably sustained their rôles. Mr. Danise expresses himself as a singer rather than an actor. The Duke is evidently one of Mr. Lauri-Volpi's favorite parts, found him in the vein and brought him much applause. Smaller rôles were taken creditably and Mr. Papi conducted.

SHAW PLAY DISAPPOINTS.

London Critics Fear He Was 'Spoofing' in 'Back to Methuselah.'

LONDON, Feb. 22.—George Bernard Shaw's play, "Back to Methuselah," had its first London performance this week. It has received perhaps more unflattering press comment than any recent production of Shaw's. Some papers suggested that he was "spoofing" the public.

At the opening show Monday the producer, responding to a curtain call, apologized for the author not making a speech, he having said he preferred to wait for the final performance of the series, as he had done when the play was produced at Birmingham recently. Tonight, when the cycle ended, the audience was gleefully expectant of a speech and was extremely disappointed when it was announced that the author was not in the house.

DELAY SENDING IRISH ENVOY

Dublin Authorities Deny Asking Permission of Washington.

DUBLIN, Feb. 22.—The intention of the Irish Free State eventually to have an official envoy in Washington has long been announced by the Government, but the report that permission has been asked from Washington for such action is stated here to be inaccurate. It is explained that the matter has not yet reached that stage, as the correct procedure requires the same preliminaries as for the appointment of an Irish representative in London.

When the time for such an appointment comes British officials will ascertain through the regular diplomatic channels whether the man suggested by the Free State is persona grata to the United States. When an Irish envoy is appointed to Washington he will carry credentials similar to those of the proposed Canadian representative.

MacDowell Club in Playlets.

Under the auspices of the MacDowell Club, a program of four one-act plays will be given tomorrow night at the Punch and Judy Theatre. On the bill will be "Blind Alleys," by Grace Latimer Wright; "The End of the Book," by Henry Myers; "Tired," by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, and "Just Two Men," by Eugene Pillot.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mary Blair and Paul Robson, the latter a negro, will play the leading roles in Eugene O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Wings," which will be produced at the Provincetown Playhouse late next month. "Fashion" will then be moved to another theatre.

"Gypsy Jim" will close at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre on Monday night with a benefit performance for the Malke Block Aid Society. The house will then be dark until the following Monday, March 3, when "The Outsider" will be produced there.

"The Chiffon Girl" will be transferred from the Lyric to Jolson's Theatre on March 3.

Curtis Cooksey and Catherine Collins have been added to the cast of O'Neill's "Welded," which will come to New York March 11.

The third offering of the Vilna Yiddish troupe at Thomashefsky's Broadway Theatre, to be offered next Monday, will be Hirshbein's "Green Fields."

MUSIC NOTES.

The American Orchestra Society will give a free concert in Cooper Union tomorrow night. Chalmers Clifton will conduct Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony and a movement from MacDowell's "Indian Suite." Virginia Rea will sing "Una Voce" from "The Barber of Seville."

Dorothy Jardon, Cecil Arden, Maud Morgan, Edmund Burke, Earle Tuckerman and many others are announced tomorrow night at the Irish Musical Society's concert at the City College, for the benefit of the Sisters of Atonement at Graymoor on the Hudson.

George Blumenthal has taken a studio in the Metropolitan Opera House Building for an English opera school, planned to open March 3, to train an American chorus of 100 for a company to present Wagner's operas in English next year.

THIEF IN TRICK BOX ROBS BERLIN JEWELER

BERLIN, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—Clever thieves varied an old trick and succeeded in robbing a jewelry store in a crowded Berlin street of about $20,000 worth of loot today.

Just at the noon hour when the proprietor and his clerks locked up and left for luncheon, a dray drew up and two men unloaded a large box which they placed against the shop door. They informed inquirers that they were waiting for the proprietor's return to collect cartage. In about half an hour, saying they could wait no longer, they reloaded the box and drove away.

When the proprietor returned he discovered the loss of practically all the stock available. Investigation disclosed that one man had been hidden in the box and working through a trick door, had cut out the panel of the shop door, helped himself to diamonds and jewelry, crawled back into his case, reset the shop door panel with sticking plaster and was comfortably carted away by his confederates.

The degree was offered Mr. Lorimer in recognition of his merit as a journalist and author, but more especially in appreciation of his efforts to promote friendship between English-speaking nations.

Shipping Board Inquiry in House.

If the House adopts the resolution the inquiry will be conducted by a special committee of seven members.

NEGRO SHRINERS ENJOINED.

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 22.—Arabia Temple, Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, and the national white Shrine body were granted a permanent injunction today against "Doric Temple, Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine," and the national negro "Shrine" organization, preventing the "colorable imitation" of the costumes and insignia of the plaintiff order.

The defense gave notice of appeal and said that if necessary the case would be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The white Shriners introduced evidence to show that their Shrine was formed in New York City in the early '70s and was based in a vague sort of way on the ritual of "Bektash," an Arabic order.

The negroes claimed that their "Shrine" antedated the white Shrine and originated 656 A. D. in Egypt.

POLAR FLIGHT HOPES GROW DIMMER IN NAVY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Prospects for a revival of the proposed flight of the navy's giant dirigible, the Shenandoah, to the North Pole in 1924 are exceedingly dark unless President Coolidge cancels his order which halted the project.

Unless a decision to resume preparations is reached during the next ten days, naval circles say, the expedition cannot start this year. A canvass of Congress indicates that while there are apparently enough votes to stop the adoption of any "limitation clause" to prevent the use of the Shenandoah, it would be practically impossible to obtain from Congress authorization for the flight.

Whether the President would be willing to have the flight made if Congress interposed no legislative obstacle remains to be seen, although it is considered doubtful that he would reauthorize the project without express sanction of Congress.

The plans of the navy for the flight have been studied by the naval subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, but the naval bill as reported contains no reference to it. The members think the committee should not deal with the subject legislatively, on the theory that the navy should be free to go ahead with its plans if the President approves. The naval bill will be considered in the House next week, and the Shenandoah flight will then be debated.

Lieut. Commander Lansdowne, the new commanding officer of the Shenandoah, returned to Washington tonight. Reports from Lakehurst, N. J., were that he was to confer with Admiral Moffett on the proposed Shenandoah flight because of news from London that British army aviators would attempt to fly to the Pole in May. Admiral Moffett said no significance was to be attached to the return of Commander Lansdowne. He went to Lakehurst to take command of the Shenandoah and to consider plans for the use of the airship. He has returned to Washington to make oral report.

OPERA IN THE AIR ASSURED.

Contributions Pouring In to Defray the Expense of the Project.

The Radio and Music Fund Committee, launched by Clarence H. Mackay, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Philharmonic Society of New York; Felix M. Warburg, Frederic A. Juilliard and A. D. Wilt Jr., to raise money for broadcasting operatic talent through Station WEAF, announced yesterday that the public response had been so widespread that the date of the first concert would be announced in the near future.

Substantial contributions have been received by the designated depository, the Union Trust Company, 80 Broadway, from persons in all walks of life. Letters received by the committee include ones from invalids and other "shut-ins" who never have had an opportunity to hear grand opera. Most of them express the hope that WEAF will use its new super-transmitter when the world's foremost artists are broadcast.

Arthur Judson, manager of the Philharmonic, Philadelphia and Cincinnati symphony organizations, has been engaged to act as radio impresario.

Urges Inquiry of Bankruptcy Laws.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Investigation by a special committee of the interpretation and practice of the Federal bankruptcy laws is proposed in a resolution introduced today by Representative LaGuardia, New York.

EDUCATION BY RADIO PROVES A SUCCESS

ADVERTISING IN AIR GROWS

WEAF Has a Monopoly on Commercial Broadcasting, at Rate of $100 for Ten Minutes.

Columbia University and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company will begin next week the second phase of a joint experiment to determine the educational possibilities of radio broadcasting. It was learned yesterday that the reports on the first test show the Home Study Department of Columbia and Station WEAF met with unusual success when they broadcast Robert Browning.

Browning was selected, it was said, as typical of the "heaviest stuff" the radio public could be expected to follow. Thousands of listeners, in letters to the educators and the radio station, disclosed that they took a keen and genuine interest in the lectures on the English poet by Professor Hoxie N. Fairchild, Supervisor of the Home Study Department. One Browning enthusiast picked up the lecture as far away as Wyoming, according to Professor Levering Tyson of Columbia, who arranged for the broadcasting.

"The figures on the experiment have not been given out and will not be made public for several days," explained Professor Tyson, "but we have evidence which leads us to believe that thousands of radio listeners who heard the Browning lectures broadcast by WEAF had a genuine interest in the subject and did not listen merely out of curiosity.

"Next week we are going to try them out on a more popular subject. We will give them a course in practical politics. The series of lectures on that subject will be given by Schuyler Wallace of Columbia."

Possibilities in educational broadcasting so great that they are not even dreamed of as yet may develop out of these experiments, according to Professor Tyson.

Advertising in the Air.

Columbia's educational courses are broadcast from WEAF free of charge to the university, it was explained yesterday by William E. Harkness, Vice President of the Bell company, who told of the rapid growth of commercial broadcasting. WEAF is the only station which has a fixed charge for broadcasting, because the Bell company controls, through patents and manufacture, certain vital radio parts and is in a position to dictate to other stations that they shall not enter the "commercial field."

Rates of $100 for ten minutes, or $400 an hour, have been fixed by WEAF for advertising in the air. Among the firms which have made contracts are the American Tobacco Company, which employs an orchestra to which it hitches its name in the broadcasting. Gimbel Brothers also broadcast an orchestra, the United putting out a talk by a sports expert. The Brooklyn Eagle broadcasting current events and the National Carbon Company broadcasting vocal selections and readings. In addition, banking and brokerage houses and various other lines of business have at times advertised through WEAF. Last year a total of 250 firms and individuals used the station for commercial purposes.

Not Yet on Paying Basis.

However, Station WEAF, according to Mr. Harkness, is not on a self-sustaining basis. It is paying for talent which it broadcasts and is broadcasting for many individuals and institutions free of charge, among the latter the Federation of Churches of New York and the United Synagogues of New York. Also, Hunter College has been sending out a series of lectures on music without cost to the college.

"We are not trying to put WEAF on a profit-making basis immediately," said Mr. Harkness. "We are merely experimenting to determine some of the controlling factors in broadcasting. At present the public is not supporting broadcasting. The only people who are contributing to the operating expenses of WEAF are those who are paying for what they want broadcast. We are not expecting or attempting to make a large profit. But certainly it is our aim to develop broadcasting to the point where it will be established on a revenue-paying basis."

"ON THE WRONG SIDE."

Whatever else Attorney General DAUGHERTY may know or not know, he knows politics. It was partly as a seasoned politician that he wrote his pungent reply to the private letter of Senator PEPPER. The Pennsylvania Senator, who had gone with Senator LODGE to the White House to urge the President to call upon Mr. DAUGHERTY to resign, was later seized with a gentlemanly compunction. He did not like to have it appear that he had been making charges against a public official behind his back. Accordingly, he hurried off a friendly note to the Attorney General, saying, in effect, that it was not a question of the justice or injustice of the accusation brought against Mr. DAUGHERTY, but that he had unfortunately got "on the wrong side of an issue in the mind of the public," and that for the good of the Republican Party he ought to leave the Cabinet.

To this the Attorney General made an overwhelming rejoinder. Was he to be adjudged guilty without a trial? Was he to be decreed to be on the wrong side "without hearing, without evidence," simply because the public had been fed on ex parte statements and vague allegations? This appeal must have come with much force to Senator PEPPER, both as a lawyer and a public man. His only excuse is that he was acting on strong grounds of political expediency. But even on that point the Attorney General did not let him off. The Pennsylvania Senator appeared to think that throwing one child to the wolves would stop their howling. Mr. DAUGHERTY knows better. As a veteran in political intrigue, he assured the comparative novice from Pennsylvania that "my "destruction is but the accomplish-"ment of one phase of the program, "which will be immediately followed "by other and more drastic demands "by these same adversaries." The fact is that if the management of a political party takes fright at popular clamor, and begins to yield to it, there is no telling how far it will have to go or where it can stop. Merely as party tactics, the Attorney General is right in insisting that it is folly to call for his resignation simply because he is "under fire." His withdrawal would simply mean that the volleys would be concentrated upon some other man.

The remainder of Attorney General DAUGHERTY's letter is equally unanswerable. Failing proof of guilt, he ought not to be summoned to an act which would everywhere be accepted as a confession of guilt. Like any other man under charges, he is entitled to face his accusers, to demand that they produce their evidence if they have any, and to meet his enemies in the gate. This is not to say that the Attorney General, or any other member of the Cabinet, has a right to insist upon retaining his office against the wish of the President. It is always understood that the members of the President's official family have a tenure only at his good pleasure. But none of them should be dismissed under circumstances implying ignominy, unless ignominy there has been. Mr. DAUGHERTY will be sustained in the opinion of right-minded men when he declares that he will not consent to a silent elimination in a way that would reflect upon his reputation and his honor. With a request from the President for his resignation he would undoubtedly comply at once, but there would have to be the clearest understanding of the grounds upon which it was based.

The principles laid down in Mr. DAUGHERTY's letter have an application running far beyond his office or his personality. If the Administration, if Congress, is to be intimidated in the discharge of its duty by fear of being on the wrong side, there is an end of responsible government. One sees at this moment how the thing works in the mutilating of the Mellon tax-reduction bill. The question which the majority in the House has been asking is not whether the bill is sound and safe, but whether it is not on the wrong side. If a measure both unsound and perilous can be devised in a way to make it appear more popular than the other, then the argument is held to be convincing that the Mellon plan must be set aside. The opposition to it is conceded to be founded largely on ignorance and prejudice; but if ignorance and prejudice are only discovered to be very widespread and vocal, then it is thought to be politically expedient for Congressmen to surrender their own preferences. This is no way to get good legislation. Nor is it a way to win respect for Congress. The timid majority which rushes to get away from what it thinks the wrong side will speedily be forgotten. The public men whom the people will be found in the end delighting to honor are those who stand by what they believe to be right and just, and are willing to say with CATO that they even prefer the wrong side—that is, the temporary losing side—if it squares with their innermost convictions and their sense of official duty.

A SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT.

There is good news in the story from Paris that the Dawes committee will report not only that Germany can pay, but that after a brief moratorium she can pay substantial annuities toward a total of seventy billion gold marks. Inasmuch as this would be sufficient to allow to France twenty-six billion gold marks for the repayment of the reconstruction of the devastated regions plus twelve billions for the payment of interallied debts, and to England the fourteen billions which she has asked in order to pay America what she owes, as well as to allow to Italy and Belgium five billion gold marks, it should go far toward making possible a definite settlement. Even if no direct attempt is made to name the total sum at present—and all indications are that this will not be done—the plan should provide, at least for a period of years, for sufficient payments to do much to relieve the financial troubles of the allied nations.

The basis of this plan is to fix upon Germany taxes as heavy as those at present imposed upon the French and British taxpayers. Inasmuch as Germany has no internal debt, she is expected to be able thus to make large payments annually to the Allies. It is not yet clear what guarantees or pledges will be asked. The French express the fear that the Germans may endeavor to avoid reparation payments by increasing or reviving their internal debt. Under the terms of the Versailles Treaty, however, reparation payments constitute a prior lien, except for the costs of the armies of occupation, upon Germany's resources.

There remains the question of the control of the German railways and the surrender of certain properties as security. France is reluctant to relinquish the specific pledges which she has seized in the Ruhr and elsewhere. She distrusts the Germans and is unwilling to resign her future to a new agreement which may have the same fate as the tripartite treaty of defense in which Great Britain and the United States promised to come to her aid in case of unprovoked German aggression within fifteen years. The French have not forgotten that this treaty was never ratified.

Champions of German non-fulfillment have made so much of their claim that an impartial committee on which America was represented would find that Germany could not possibly pay, that discontent is sure to arise from them if the forecast of the Dawes committee is finally confirmed. If the annuity should be fixed at as high a rate as 4,500,000,000 gold marks, a chorus of condemnation of the committee may be expected both inside and outside of Germany. In place of the compliments formerly addressed to the plain-spoken General from Chicago about the impartiality of American participation, we may expect to hear something very different. But whatever the findings of this committee, they will be received by an anxious world with an open mind. That Germany must pay has never been disputed except by her own people. That she can pay has been questioned by her friends. It would be heartening to have the Dawes committee tell the world that Germany now will pay, and recommend the methods for her so doing.

PROGRESS IN THE PORT.

The Port Authority announces that the railways are ready to spend a half million dollars on connecting links in the first instalment of the belt line for exchange of traffic between several railways ending in New Jersey. This step toward betterment of terminal facilities is greater than it seems. The belt line exists, but is crippled by several gaps which prevent exchange of traffic between independent carriers. To fill these gaps the railway companies are cooperating heartily, and are also appointing a manager to operate the new facility under the supervision of the Port Authority.

After the Port Authority has done its part and the traffic leaves the railways, there will remain a great opportunity to reduce the costs of delivery to consignees. Some six million tons of freight enter New York from New Jersey, and are delivered in multitudes of half-laden trucks which creep through congested streets. There is no possibility of doing less trucking, although its cost has been estimated at $5,000,000 yearly. But it is easily possible to do more trucking with fewer trucks, for fewer dollars. The railways have learned how to profit by putting more tons into cars and moving the cars faster. The same thing can be done with trucks. Reduction of costs is a true source of profit which is shared all down the line to the ultimate consumer. It is said that the Erie Railroad has reduced the cost of its trucking by more than 80 cents a ton. If the Erie can do this over the ferries, the other railways can do even better through the vehicular tunnel. The Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads are reported to be negotiating contracts for trucking all their export and import traffic, and all less than carload business is particularly suitable for such disposition. The Port of New York seems about to cross the threshold of a new era in terminal deliveries.

HUNGARY ACCEPTS A RECEIVERSHIP.

The announcement that Hungary has at last accepted the League of Nations receivership, and that Mr. W. P. G. HARDING is to be the Commissioner General in charge of the reconstruction work, is of threefold interest to the American public. It means that an important measure in the reconstruction and pacification of Central Europe will be begun; that this will be accomplished through the direct though unofficial participation of an American representative, and that a Hungarian loan will shortly be floated in the American market.

Hungary has been a sore spot in Eastern Europe ever since the armistice. It was infected by Bolshevism. When it recovered from this disease it became a hotbed of reaction, and if it had been strong enough would surely have been influenced by those of its leaders who preached incessantly that the territories taken from Hungary by the peace treaties must be restored to her. Twice it was the scene of an attempt to restore the Hapsburg dynasty. Political passions have always run high in Hungary, and these not only caused uneasiness among her neighbors, but delayed the final acceptance of the League's receivership plans. Certain reactionary leaders claimed that the terms imposed too great restrictions upon Hungary's sovereignty. But supervision of Hungary by the League should go far toward checking all revenge tactics.

It is understood that the total amount of the loan for Hungary will be $50,000,000, of which it is hoped to raise $20,000,000 in America. This loan is to be secured, as was the case in Austria, by specific revenues, including the customs receipts, the tobacco and salt monopolies, and the sugar tax. During the two-year period of reconstruction—that is, until June, 1926—Hungary is to pay no reparations, but thereafter for a term of twenty years she is to pay annually a sum not exceeding 10,000,000 gold crowns, or about $2,000,000.

Hungary has greater potential wealth than Austria. Hence it is expected that her recovery will be quicker. The experience of Austria has shown, however, as Dr. ZIMMERMANN, the Austrian Commissioner General in charge of the League's work, warned the people of Austria on Thursday, that any reconstruction plan can be carried out only by continued and severe economy, private as well as public. In Austria there has been a sort of relapse following the general surprise and satisfaction at the improvements within the year. The tendency has been to act as if the speed of the recovery entitled the people to let up in their efforts at economy.

The Hungarian scheme will require a high degree of cooperation on the part of the Hungarian people and a complete truce in politics. Only if the investors of the world are convinced that there is no danger of a recrudescence of extreme nationalism, bearing in its wake a threat of war to reconquer the dismembered territories, will they readily purchase the bonds of the proposed loan.

GERMANY'S "BETRAYAL."

Count VON BERNSTORFF has done a service to his countrymen by calling their attention to certain vital facts at a time when the appeasement of Europe is moving forward only through the acceptance of facts. The former German Ambassador at Washington flatly rejects the legend that Germany laid down her arms in 1918, not because she was defeated, but because she was deceived by the Fourteen Points. "This is a falsification of history," says VON BERNSTORFF. "We "laid down our arms because Army "Headquarters urgently asked it to "avoid catastrophe, and only then "we called for President WILSON's "help in connection with his Four-"teen Points." As to WILSON in the guise of Germany's enemy, VON BERNSTORFF again reminds his countrymen that without WILSON at Paris they would have lost the Rhine and the Sarre.

The legend of Germany's betrayal is not altogether confined to Germany. It bobs up in this country with regularity, usually in connection with a second legend. This would have it that to the extent Germany did envisage defeat, it was not because her armies were being beaten in the field, but because the national morale was shattered by Mr. WILSON's Fourteen Points. Colonel HOUSE declared in THE TIMES recently that the Wilson speech of Jan. 8, 1918, "broke the "morale of the Central Powers and "pointed the way to peace." If Colonel HOUSE means by the morale of the Central Powers the relations between Germany and her principal ally, Austria, the truth is that Austrian morale had been shattered before Jan. 8, 1918, as is attested by Vienna's repeated feelers for a separate peace. If he means the morale of Germany herself, the subsequent record of the war is against him.

Far from being weakened by Mr. WILSON's appeal to the conscience of the German people, the rulers of Germany in the weeks immediately after the enunciation of the Fourteen Points proceeded to impose upon Russia the ruthless Peace of Brest-Litovsk. Then began the shifting of German battalions from the eastern front to France in preparation for the decisive stroke against the Allies. LUDENDORFF, in his Memoirs, dwells insistently upon the famous "dagger thrust in the back," the pacifist propaganda of German Socialists and Clericals which is supposed to have undermined the morale of the German Army. But there was obviously no lack of morale in the troops which LUDENDORFF hurled against the allied line in four successive drives on March 21, May 27, June 9 and July 15. If in that last battle, the so-called Friedensturm, the French had not obtained advance information which enabled General GOURAUD to shatter the attack, LUDENDORFF might have had his victory and would not have subsequently been writing of dagger thrusts in the back.

The legend that Germany yielded and was betrayed and the memory of a German army welcomed home as heroes have helped to delay the settlement of Europe. It is one thing to say that the Peace of Versailles violated the Fourteen Points in respect to the imposition of the cost of war pensions upon Germany. It is another thing to say that there would have been no Peace of Versailles if Germany had not accepted the Fourteen Points. The Fourteen Points might have specified war-pension costs and Chancellor MAX would have been forced to sue for peace just the same.

As for Mr. WILSON, there is no need to claim that his speech of Jan. 8 defeated Germany, in order to vindicate the high purpose which his speeches gave to the war. The Fourteen Points reinvigorated the allied morale. But German morale only began to see the point—and the Points—after the smashing of the battle line by FOCH on July 18 and by HAIG on Aug. 8—that "black day in the history of the German Army," as LUDENDORFF calls it. BERNSTORFF's reminder, on the eve of what we have good reason to expect will be a definite settlement of reparations, will benefit the Germans if it can persuade them to abandon once for all the "we-were-betrayed" legend and to acknowledge the bitter but salutary fact of military defeat.

"TOBY, M. P."

After TOM TAYLOR's death, HENRY W. LUCY, a provincial reporter who had made his way in London and been chief Parliamentary reporter and for a year the editor of The Daily News, returned to the press gallery of the House of Commons and continued in Punch TAYLOR's "Essence of Parliament," more familiar for thirty-five years as "The Diary of Toby, M. P." He loved the work. He thought, perhaps, that the players are more than the game. So he watched and heard for more than a generation the shining figures of the House, GLADSTONE, DISRAELI, PARNELL, BALFOUR, CHAMBERLAIN, MORLEY. The last two were his juniors in service. He had grounded himself in literature and the languages. He was a shrewd observer. He had a sharp sense of news, a faculty about as rare among London reporters forty years ago as was his mastery of the then rare and magical art of shorthand.

"Toby" had to be condensed. This necessity sometimes made it difficult for American readers to follow him intelligently; and the day-by-day knowledge of British politics now given, as a matter of course, by the best American newspapers was then still far in the future. To cultivated Englishmen "The Diary" was a weekly delight. If the humor was sometimes thin, there was a spirit of good nature, of tolerance, of fair play, that has generally distinguished Mr. Punch's political cartoons. Punch and Toby wink and put a waggish finger on their noses and seem to say: "Really, these gentlemen in Parlia-"ment are not so ferocious as they "like to paint themselves. They are "pretty good fellows, and the British "Empire and Mr. Punch watching "it, will continue to do business with-"out postponement on account of "weather."

LUCY did an immense amount of work in newspapers and periodicals and books. His mind was a storehouse of information on Parliament and politics. He loved to travel. He is pleasantly remembered by those who met him here some twenty years ago, and by readers of THE TIMES for his informing articles on European politics. Only last Fall he gave in it a thoughtful and discriminating valuation of JOHN MOSLEY, whose first speech, a "failure," in the House of Commons he had heard. He was knighted in 1909, an honor no man grudged him. Though he wrote on politics, he did not become Sir HENRY for "political services," but in reward for satires never mean or mischievous, for adding to the good humor and enjoyment of many.

Bidding good-bye to the faithful Tobyites in 1916, he said modestly that he was "not disposed to linger superfluous on the stage." From the press gallery he had looked on the sessions of nine Parliaments. He had been the personal friend of most of the members of six Cabinets. One wonders if the observer's memory, enriched with intimate portraits of the prime historic figures of forty years, was not more valuable than the prizes for which these men fought, only to find "what shadows we pursue."

PROTECTING BIRD LIFE.

Within a few weeks in this vicinity it will be comparatively easy for the casual observer to count about seventy varieties of migratory birds; altogether there may be as high as 200. The activity of the Audubon societies in this country in the protection of birds has recently been reinforced by Mr. T. GILBERT PEARSON. As head of an international committee, he has already been abroad twice to secure the cooperation of other countries. The instruction which has been going on in our schools will eventually extend all over the world, so that children in all lands will be brought up to understand what the beauty and usefulness of birds mean to human beings everywhere.

The conservation of birds is closely allied to the conservation of forests. Birds and trees go together. A birdless country would be such a melancholy wilderness that few could be brought even to imagine it. For most of us are blind to the birds about us, even in settled districts. JOHN BURROUGHS, visiting a friend, was told the following day of the pity of there being no birds about. "Yet," he replied, "this morning I counted twenty-nine varieties."

It is a fine expression of that touch of nature that makes the whole world kin that the woodland about Colonel ROOSEVELT's grave should have been set apart as a bird retreat. This precedent might well be followed in other places. Man has exerted his ingenuity from time immemorial as an enemy of birds, through traps and guns, and woman has aided and abetted him. That there apparently are not so many birds on women's hats at present as formerly is due largely to the diffusion of information about birds. SHELLEY's "Ode to a Skylark" might well be emblazoned over the door of every school and the entrance to every park.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

He Does Not Seem Like a Man.

Most criminals are understandable, and the motives that prompt their acts usually are such as are felt commonly enough, in some degree, to give to the ordinary, honest citizen some appreciation of the fact that with a different heredity and a different training and environment his own conduct might have been much the same. Now and then, however, there appears in the criminal courts a man who, though he has the human form, is so lacking in the essentially human traits that he seems hardly to belong to the human race.

Such a man is LOUIS WALLINGER, who, in apparently perfect unconsciousness of having done anything wrong or even unusual, calmly told of earning a petty wage by setting fire, between midnight and dawn, to buildings in which scores of people were sleeping. This he did, he said, as the hired participant in a war which laundrymen of two sorts were waging against each other. He "worked" for one of the groups, quite willing to do anything he was told to do, and he started his fires without a thought of possible consequences to anybody except the man who was to be put out of business and so punished for adopting methods disliked by his rivals.

Of course, if WALLINGER's story is true, it must be said that between him and his employers there is no moral difference, and the law, properly enough, would hold both to the same responsibility. Yet, just as in the case of the giver and the taker of bribes, instinct if not reason does glimpse a difference between the principal and the agent—a difference that works out into the contempt which the former has for the latter and the latter does not feel for the former.

For the sake of our common humanity, if there is one, it is to be hoped that WALLINGER turns out to be a "defective." Surely there can be no more terrible defectiveness than the complete lack of a moral sense, and that is true whether the basis of morals is held to be utility or is found in intuition—the question on which LECKY wrote a huge book in the middle of the nineteenth century. Now men are thinking about other things—atoms, for instance, and relativity.

His Power Is Not Utilized.

In GARET GARRETT's latest novel, "Satan's Bushel," mingled with a lot of mysticism that some readers will find absurd without being amusing, there are certain economic ideas that at least are the results of thought and are provocative of it. The author is particularly interested in the case of the farmer in his relation to the grain market, and he notes as a strange and significant fact that, though the farmer, by being the only producer of the world's first necessary, food, ought to have the world at his mercy, he does not occupy that position, but is himself at the mercy of those dependent from day to day on him for life itself.

That is because the farmer, when he has something to sell, takes what is offered for it by those who want to get it as cheaply as they can, while when he buys anything he gives what is demanded by those whose effort is to get all they can for it.

To this peculiar state of affairs and relation to markets the author ascribes in great part the farmer's present plight, which, after all, is only an aggravation of the plight in which the farmer almost always finds himself.

Why should this be so? The obvious answer is that the farmer has himself to blame for his own woes—that, if he were more intelligent and shrewd, he long since, by some form of cooperative selling, would have gained control of the market in which he now has so very little to say. That explanation, however, is far too simple as solution of a problem so complicated as this one. Farmers, middlemen and consumers constitute each a very ancient institution, and there is more than a chance that each of them is what he is because, in the nature of things, he cannot be anything else.

It even may be that the consumer is not a bit more dependent on the farmer than the farmer is on the consumer, and that the middleman is the inevitable link between the two. Certainly the middleman only takes another name when he is the manager of the cooperative storehouse and its distributing agencies. The difference then is that he becomes a hired man instead of working for himself, and perhaps, taking smaller risks, he is willing to work for smaller wages.

Adventurous But Not Profitable.

Now it is the British who are planning a trip by dirigible to the North Pole and another by airplane around the world. With two great nations undertaking these adventures, there is reason or excuse for hoping that somebody in one of them will make clearer than it is now to the inhabitants of both countries just what is to be gained from success in either of these expensive and dangerous tasks.

That both are practicable, if not at the first trial, as the result of efforts continued long enough, nobody doubts. And in both Great Britain and the United States there are many who will be eager to make these journeys—men to whom their risks will be attractive, not alarming.

Their willingness to go constitutes a sort of national insurance against deterioration. Just the same, older folk of quieter minds cannot help remembering that now there is nothing at all interesting at the North Pole, and that the demand for aerial transportation will not include, very often, departure and destination in the same place.

Daylight and Marriage.

In two bills just introduced in Albany there is interest if not importance. One of them would take away from municipalities their present "local option" as to daylight saving in the Summer, and the other puts a space of three days between the application for a marriage license and the issuing of it.

The first of these proposals voices anew the implacable antagonism of the country to anything of which most or all of the advantages are enjoyed by the city. That is a comprehensible feeling, though not very admirable, and to deprive the cities of daylight saving would be one of the not many ways to punish the city folk for their claim, not always asserted tactfully or politely, of superiority. That the countrymen have both the power and the will to stop daylight saving anywhere in the State hardly can be doubted, but before they accomplish it they will be well aware that they have been in a fight.

For the marriage license bill there is something, and perhaps a good deal, to be said. The delay proposed probably would not prevent or even postpone the solemnizing of any really commendable and promising marriage, and the chances are that those whom it inconvenienced would profit later from an opportunity to think things over before the knot was tied.

A Contrast.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Moving U. S. Mail Abandoned.

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 21.—The 5,000 bags of mail from America which have been stacked on tenders here since the outbreak of the dockmen's strike have not yet been moved to London.

Gangs of dock workers and a large staff of postal officials assembled this morning to begin sorting the bags prior to entraining them for distribution to the various centres, but a member of the Strike Committee intervened, and both the dock workers and postal officials abandoned the task.

This report awakens memory of another strike of laborers in Chicago and of a certain American President named Grover Cleveland, who, when the mails were interrupted by the strikers, declared that a postal card sent across the continent would be delivered if it took the whole United States Army to effect it!

If the MacDonald Administration has no responsibility to the British public for the delivery of mails, has it none to the Government of this country?

New York, Feb. 22, 1924.

JOURNEY.

I will go free . . . and lonely . . . and intent
Upon simplicity. A sacrament
Of solitude has risen in the Cup.
I reach my hands and slowly lift it up,
And drain the potion, knowing—knowing well
A bitter wine, you say. Well, better so
Than surfeiting with sweets . . . I drink, and go
With passionate glad feet the Way I see.
No link of all these chains shall fetter me!
I will be rid of walls and small mean Things
That crowd upon my day. I will take wings
And go, and fellow with the vagrant stars—
Forgetting thus the petty stinging scars
That I have borne in my protesting flesh.

I, who was dumb before those human eyes,
Am now become quite eloquent, and wise
With such new wisdom and such sharp delight

I have pushed off the hands that sought to press
Their cold detaining weight upon my heart.
See, I have healed the scars, and eased the smart,
And am constrained to laughter . . .
As I go
Blessed and free, the lonely Way I know.

LAY SCHOOL CORNERSTONE.

George Washington High Likely to Be Finished in a Year.

Exactly one year after ground had been broken for the building, Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert officiated yesterday at the placing of the cornerstone of the new George Washington High School at Audubon Avenue and 192d Street, the site of old Fort George. More than 1,000 children and their parents participated in the exercises. An elaborate program of music and speeches attended the ceremony, which was presided over by Arthur A. Boylan, Principal of the present George Washington High School.

"The contractors have promised that next Washington's Birthday will see the school formally dedicated," announced Acting Mayor Hulbert. "When completed the George Washington High School will represent the finest high school building in this or any other city in the world.

"Some 3,500 students will find here many new features in high school construction, with courses of study arranged for aspirants to the professions and those to whom early earning capacity is essential. An adequate campus or playfield is yet to be provided, and I am hopeful that sufficient adjoining property will be acquired by the city for this purpose in the near future, so that the playfield may be ready in time for the formal opening of the school."

Other speakers were the Rev. Frederick K. Braun of the Temple of the Covenant; Dr. Harold G. Campbell, Associate Superintendent of Schools, and William H. Gompert, Superintendent of School buildings. ALUMNI ARE TOLD OF NEW YALE IDEALS

700 RETURN TO NEW HAVEN

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 22.—Yale's expansion from a college to a university, national in membership, influences and aspirations, was the central theme of the addresses at the Washington Birthday alumni reunion exercises today. Fully 700 graduates visited the class rooms and laboratories, witnessed the new historical film "Vincennes," produced by the Yale University Press; enjoyed a reunion banquet and listened to addresses by the heads of the departments.

A cordial reception was given to Miss Annie W. Goodrich, dean of Yale's newest department, the Nursing School. Miss Goodrich pictured the leaven introduced into civilized endeavor by the trained nurse in factory and school work, as interpreter to the immigrant mother, as missionary in preventive medicine and as trench worker in the warfare against pestilence and disease.

Professor Chauncey Brewster Tinker's summary of the scope of the new Sterling Library portrayed Yale's next monumental building as reversion to Yale's earliest traditions. He pointed out that Yale was founded by ten clergymen who gave their books to found a library, calling that the original Yale, and asserted that Yale, in establishing a library which spelled almost world leadership, recalled its historic foundation.

Dean Wilbur L. Gross of the Graduate School, which is beginning a delayed development, said that while the campus guide found it difficult to explain to the visitors where the Graduate School was, it might yet boast towers, walls and lawns like Princeton.

"It is now non-existent in the realm of visible fact," he said; "it presents a case of low visibility, but the Graduate School is not a disembodied spirit. Its spirit is the spirit of expansion."

In explanation of the national character of the school, Professor Gross stated that it had 512 students, from forty-four States and eleven foreign countries, of whom 100 were Yale graduates, while the others represented 200 colleges. Three hundred and fifteen were studying for the doctor's degree and thirty-two for the master's degrees. To meet their needs it was necessary to mobilize the intellectual resources of the university. Yale had never yet shown the world its power of co-ordinated effort, but there was progress toward unity of purpose. The table was set for university co-ordination by the Graduate School's development in the next decade.

President Angell admitted that there were alumni who claimed more for the old academic department alone, but he insisted that the university could not attain its greatest promise and success unless its departments were allowed to expand. Yale must choose between strong undergraduate courses with weakly developed departments and strong and well organized professional schools. Yale was committed to the policy of launching no new enterprise which had not financial support pledged. New professors in history, physics and Latin were to be appointed immediately, he stated. There was need for new recitation and dormitory buildings and there were funds for them. They would soon be constructed. As long as liberal studies were fostered at Yale the university's future was secured.

Secretary Robert Hutchins of the university acted as toastmaster at the luncheon and said that the alumni fully realized that the present was a hard time for secretaries and that all who were taking part in the luncheon speaking had been searched for oil, but that, like the foolish virgins, none had been found on them.

Harold F. Woodcock, manager of the Athletic Association and head of the Football Ticket Department, explained in detail the mechanics of that department. He asserted that while the football revenues were large, they were used to finance the other university sports, and that track athletics and the crew each took $35,000 annually. He confessed that the ambition of the oldest graduate to be allotted seats in the Bowl between the one-yard line and the middle of the field could never in the future be gratified because these must go annually in the blocks of seats allotted to the players, coaches, Faculty and university guests, but that the Football Association was perfecting plans for seating the graduates of every class together, so that every big football game would hereafter be a class reunion. A beginning at this has already been made.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The stir caused by the revelations of Alfred Kerr, theatrical critic of The Berliner Tageblatt, who accuses a "high official prominent in gamblers' circles of having hired assassins against him" is assuming political importance. The Communist Party takes it for granted that the "high official" in question is Dr. Weissmann, the Prussian State Commissioner for Public Security, Alfred Kerr's own father-in-law, and in last night's session of the Berlin City Parliament its representatives offered the following resolution:

Dr. Weissmann, Commissioner for Public Security in Prussia, has been openly accused by a newspaper writer of having planned an attack on him in Grunewald and for this purpose of having hired notorious criminals. We request the City Parliament immediately to ask the Prussian State Government to discharge Dr. Weissmann because in view of his alleged moral depravity his services can no longer be considered a guarantee for Berlin's public safety."

Action on this motion was deferred till the next session.

Herr Kerr in his criticism of a certain play had said "the stage manager did well to replace at the last minute the suburban actress, Asta Nielsen, selected for the principal female part, by another actress, Marianne Wenzel."

Most newspapers openly asserted this morning that it was this criticism that caused State Commissioner Weissmann to turn against his son-in-law.

This afternoon Dr. Weissmann published a statement to the effect that he knew nothing of the whole affair and had never hired any criminal or other person to attack Alfred Kerr in front of his Grunewald home, as the latter charged. He, however, did not deny acquaintance with Asta Nielsen.

Seconding Dr. Weissmann, a newspaper writer, Anton Fischer, appeared on the scene with a statement that he and some of his friends, all admirers of Asta Nielsen, had taken umbrage at Kerr's criticism and decided to teach him a lesson. One night, after partaking liberally of wine, Fischer said, he met a young man named Hermes, to whom he promised a certain amount of money if he would slap Alfred Kerr's face. This was all there was to Kerr's story of "planned assassination."

Hermes and several accomplices, who claimed to have been hired by Dr. Weissmann and revealed the plot to Alfred Kerr, still insist that it was not Anton Fischer but Weissmann who tried to persuade them to "do up" Kerr.

ROGER FOSTER DIES.

Drafted Tenement House Laws Under Governor Flower.

Roger Foster, lawyer and legal author, one of the governors of the National Democratic Club and former Tenement House Commissioner, died early yesterday morning at his residence, 69 West Fifty-fifth Street, in his sixty-seventh year. Services will be held at 11 o'clock Monday evening in All Angels' Church in West Eightieth Street. His marriage to Laura Pughly Moxley, his widow, took place just three years ago yesterday.

A native of Worcester, Mass., Roger Foster was the son of a Supreme Court Judge and the maternal grandson of Governor Roger S. Baldwin of Connecticut. He spent a year at the University of Marburg, Germany, and then completed his training for a bachelor's degree at Yale with the class of 1878. He was graduated from Columbia Law School in 1880 and was admitted to practice here the same year. In 1894 Governor Flower made him Tenement House Commissioner, and the following year he drafted the tenement house laws, later conducting proceedings that established the constitutionality of one of these laws and caused the destruction of seventy insanitary tenements. Mr. Foster secured the appointment of receivers for the Bay State Gas Company in 1896, and in 1900 he appeared for Senator W. A. Clark of Montana in the election case before the United States Supreme Court.

Many legal treatises bear Mr. Foster's name, including several articles in the Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure. His article, "Trial By Newspaper," in The North American Review of May, 1887, is believed to contain the first use of the phrase, "court of public opinion."

Annual Tribute Is Paid by the Holy Name Society.

Members of the Holy Name Society of the Police Department attended a solemn mass of requiem yesterday at St. Vincent Ferrer's Roman Catholic Church, Sixty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue, in honor of the deceased members of the department.

He referred to the Police Department as "one of the most important institutions in the whole world."

In Memoriam.

BATT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Rachel Batt, who passed into eternal life one year ago today.
Daytime and nighttime,
We're lonely without her,
We cannot think her idle,
She must be a home-maker still.
God giveth that work to the angels
Who fittest the task fulfill,
And somewhere yet in the hill-tops
Of that country that hath no pain
She will watch from her beautiful doorway,
To bid us a welcome again.
HER CHILDREN.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

With the Washington's Birthday holiday observed in all cities of the United States, no American market did business yesterday. In Europe, attention was directed to the easing off of money rates at London and the slightly higher silver market; to an advance of cotton prices at Liverpool, probably following the late rise of Thursday at New York, and to a distinct recovery in French and British Government bonds—the French 5 per cents selling yesterday more than 2½ points above the week's low price of Wednesday.

The last-mentioned movement on the foreign markets pointed to returning hopefulness, which may easily have been based on the outline, published yesterday morning, of the Dawes committee's expected findings regarding Germany's capacity to pay. This supposition was more or less confirmed by the action of the franc, which rose rapidly at both London and Paris. On the Paris market, the price of sterling, measured in French currency, declined nearly 2¾ per cent. What was more to the point, the Paris price for the dollar fell so considerably as to mean an advance in the franc from Thursday's New York closing at 4.22½ cents to 4.31, the highest price reached this week and representing a rise of nearly ¼ cent from Tuesday's lowest.

This recovery retraces only part of the ground lost in the franc's decline from 5.04½ cents on the first day of January to last Tuesday's 4.07½, but for the present the essential fact is the change in the market's attitude. The Dawes committee has not yet made its report, but yesterday morning's Paris cable to THE TIMES indicates very positively that the committee believes in Germany's capacity to pay what France and England at present actually demand in reparations—always supposing a moratorium sufficient to bring back to stability the German financial situation.

That any conclusion on the matter would be largely based by the committee on the fact of the German Government's virtual repudiation of its domestic war and pre-war indebtedness every one familiar with the situation believed, and to that consideration full weight has apparently been given. It now remains to be learned, first what are to be the exact details of the committee's proposals, next how they will be received at Paris and Berlin. It is in this regard that the recently much altered attitude of both French and German public authorities, toward the reparations, ought to cut an important figure. Further speculation in the matter would at present undoubtedly be premature, but enough is in sight already to make sure that the Dawes report will be an influence of the first importance in the financial situation.

Our own market ends the week with easy money again the outstanding consideration. The week's predictions of reduction in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate, however, turned out to be unfounded, as the more experienced financial observers knew they would be. At the moment the New York Reserve Bank's rate is 4½ per cent. and the open market rate for high-grade commercial paper 4¾ to 5. With the bank rate even now below what private banks can get in the open market and with the money position tranquil, there is no reason for lowering the Reserve Bank's figure than for raising it.

A year ago this week, it was actually raised from 4 to 4½, in spite of the fact that open-market rates were one-quarter of 1 per cent. below the week's. It was then advanced, not at all to "check the business boom" but because, with the bank rate lower at New York than in the West and with Western demand for money widening, the low New York rediscount charge was throwing on Wall Street a wholly disproportionate burden of financing interior trade revival. It would scarcely be the counsel of wisdom to revert deliberately to such a situation now.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Today's Market.

Not a great deal is anticipated by Wall Street from two hours of trading, such as will occur today, sandwiched in between two holidays. Nevertheless, it was admitted this week that the Saturday markets of recent months have not been running entirely true to form. It appeared to be the consensus of opinion yesterday that the advance in the market on Thursday was in the main due to short covering and not to any change in the factors or developments to which the market is now paying most attention. Three considerations probably will be uppermost, according to Wall Street view, in the markets of the next two or three weeks: First, additional developments from the seat of the Senatorial investigation of the oil leases; second, the fate of the Tax bill; third, the forthcoming report to the Reparation Commission of the Dawes Commtttee, which has been examining Germany's ability to pay reparations, and the consequent movements of foreign exchange in reflection of that report.

Views of the Market.

It was the opinion of many folk in Wall Street this week that the stock market threatens to gather for itself just the same sort of reputation as it had last Summer, when it was heard on every hand that "Wall Street is the only blue spot in the country." In other words, the bearishness which has recently come over a large number of people is confined in the main to the out-and-out speculators. The real truth, according to a considerable body of Wall Street opinion, is that the situation represents a large number of small speculators trying to follow the workings of the minds of two or three large ones. At any rate, it was the testimony of the heads of many responsible brokerage houses in Wall Street, after Thursday's closing, that the country "has bought on balance" during the last few days of declining markets and that it is only the speculatively inclined who have sold out their long stock or have actually gone short of the market. It is the contention of many of those who have remained bullish that the period of market hysteria over the Washington developments will vanish as quickly and unexpectedly as it arose. When that time comes, they argue, constructive industrial news will find full reflection marketwise.

High Record "Distribution."

One of the factors which made for prompt oversubscription of the recent large Japanese loan in the American market was the evident interest taken by small investors in this issue. The books of two of the largest banking institutions, which were participants in underwriting the issue, showed that subscriptions averaged approximately $3,000 each. This is counted "ideal distribution" by the bankers, and it is to be doubted whether any of the recent large loans sold in the New York market have had behind them exactly the same sort of widespread public interest. The final tabulation of the underwriters, of course, will show a larger average than the $3,000 indicated by the two large distributing houses, but nevertheless the average of the entire loan taken up by investors as a whole is remarkably low.

Trend of Commodity Prices.

Although it is true that the general level of commodity prices is higher at the present time than at the first of the year, the advance has been so slow and irregular as to dispel to large measure the talk now frequently heard in the financial district of "an era of inflation." In the main this advance has been checked by rather sharp downswings, such as occurred in the grain and other commodity markets during the last week. The record compiled by one trade authority of a large number of commodities, from which the price index is compiled, indicated that during this week thirty-one advances had taken place, as compared with forty-one declines. These totals compare with thirty-five advances and thirty-two reductions in the previous week. A better view of the situation is obtained, however, from a study and comparison of the changes at the present time, which are extremely moderate, against those at this time last year. For exactly the same commodities, out of eighty-one changes in this week last year sixty-five were advances.

***

Oil Prices Rising.

Some Wall Street observers pointed out yesterday that the Washington investigation may literally upset the stock market, but that it appears to make no particular impression on the good old law of supply and demand. Crude oil as well as refined oil prices continue to advance.

It has always been a well known fact in the financial district that there has been more or less speculation in Liberty bonds since they have been issued, not particularly on the part of investors, who, under ordinary circumstances, buy these bonds for safe deposit box purposes, but on the part of some of the banks. In this connection one of the largest dealers in Liberty bonds has sounded a note of warning in connection with the recent upward movement in those securities. "Institutions, notably country banks, have bought and are carrying abnormal amounts, expecting a price advance," says this authority. "Banks in general, which planned to sell their holdings at various price levels, altered their intention when those limits were reached and again specified still higher price levels and limits at which they could liquidate. Any general scramble to unload in the face of a sudden shifting of the financial skies might reasonably encounter an unsettled market situation and result in substantial losses instead of profits. At present the multitude is arrayed on one side and all are anticipating an opportunity to sell out at the top without knowing exactly who the waiting buyers will be."

***

Changing Skippers.

If Wall Street rumor is to be believed—and, of course, it is always to be taken cum grano salis—the heads of two or three corporate Presidents will "roll into the basket" during the early Spring. The reason ascribed for these prospective changes is the fact that there have been a number of dividend disappointments in the last two or three years, and that some of the larger stockholders of the corporations mentioned have got quietly together on the outside and ascertained, somewhat to their own surprise, that a little more than 50 per cent. of the stock of these corporations belongs to them, or can be "sewed up" by them. Particularly during the month of March, any determined-looking stockholder, who approaches a meeting in a belligerent manner, is going to be viewed with grave suspicion until it is ascertained exactly what he has in his vest pocket. Sometimes, it is recalled, corporate control has come directly out of that depository.

Money and Tax Laws.

It is admitted to be questionable whether the new developments in the fate of the tax bill have been responsible for the sudden withdrawal of several good-sized blocks of time money from the financial district. Nevertheless, whether for this or other reasons, some of the bankers have withdrawn entirely from the time money market and no longer have any money of this sort to put out, even at the quoted rates of 5 and 5¼ per cent. Possibly a better explanation is to be found in the fact that the commercial paper market has been an active and strong one during the last week, characterized by a rather heavy inflow of first class paper of a kind in which the banks are always vitally interested. It was the opinion of one banker, whose funds have been withdrawn from the time market, temporarily, at least, that the commercial paper market at the moment offers a much better channel for investment of banking funds than the time loan market. One of the peculiarities of the situation is that call funds still are in ample supply, and on the last trading day were to be had in the outside market as low as 3¾ per cent. Most of these funds, however, were corporate-owned and were placed temporarily in the call money market, pending their investment in raw materials as the Spring demand opens.

WEEK'S NEW BONDS TOTAL $35,089,300

Railroad Securities Aggregate $13,154,300 and State and Municipal Issues $9,835,000.

$11,100,000 FOR UTILITIES

Hocking Valley Railroad's $6,000,000 of Two-Year 5% Notes Placed Privately at 99¼.

New bond offerings this week totaled $35,089,300, comparing with $172,625,000 last week and $63,659,000 in the corresponding week of 1923. Last week's larger total was due to the sale of $150,000,000 bonds for the Japanese Government.

By groups the offerings of this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Public Utility	11,100,000	....
State and Municipal	9,835,000	$2,625,000
Land Bank	1,000,000	....
Foreign Government	....	170,000,000
Totals	$35,089,300	$172,625,000

Announcement has been made by J. P. Morgan & Co. of the placing privately of $6,000,000 of two-year 5 per cent. secured notes of the Hocking Valley Railroad Company. The notes were priced at 99¼ to yield 5.40 per cent.

With a brisk demand for new issues reported, even on the heels of the large Japanese Government undertaking, investment bankers are scanning the lists for new prospective issues. Several of small size are in prospect.

In the open market for bonds prices of the semi-speculative issues suffered a reaction in keeping with the selling movement on the stock market, but on the day before Washington's Birthday they rallied. Two instances of conspicuous strength were afforded in the foreign group. The Mexican and the Italian bonds of certain issues advanced. The Mexican movement was based on reports of Obregon victories and the Italian advance on the strength of the lira in the foreign exchange market which appeared practically invulnerable to the influences which during the week drove both French and Belgian francs to new low levels.

ENGLAND SENT HALF JANUARY'S GOLD IMPORT

Inflow From Many Countries—Italy, New Zealand and Palestine New Shippers.

The Commerce Department's complete report of gold imports and exports during January, published yesterday, shows that the month's gold imports were the largest of any month since last May, and, with that exception, the largest since November, 1921. It also shows that our gold exports in January were the smallest of any month since December, 1914.

Almost exactly one-half of last month's $45,468,618 gold imports came from England; whose $22,939,710 shipment to us was $13,536,499 larger than in January, 1923, and has been exceeded since 1921 only by the $38,065,994 of July, 1922; the $26,805,215 of May, 1923, and the $33,617,361 of November, 1923. From France our gold imports last month were larger by $1,040,589 than in January, 1923; from Holland they were $5,818,727 larger.

We received $2,700,000 from Italy, which has seldom sent gold to the United States directly. Imports from Canada, however, decrease $9,812,888 from January, 1923. The month's $280,723 gold exports went almost entirely to Canada and Mexico. Following are the imports and exports of gold in January by countries from which more than $100,000 gold was received or to which more than that amount was shipped:

AUSTRIA'S TAXES AND LEAGUE'S ESTIMATE

December Collections Nearly Five Times the Stipulated Total.

It is stated at Vienna that the gross receipts of the Austrian Government from customs and tobacco taxes, which had been assigned as security for the reconstruction loans, had amounted in that month to double the figures for December, 1922. They were nearly five times the sum required monthly for the reconstruction loans, the excess over that monthly requirement being nearly 15,000,000 gold crowns.

The further comment is made that if this high level of revenue were to be maintained, the annual service of the international loans would be covered nearly four times over.

TO PLAN EXTENSION OF FOREIGN TRADE

The country's need for world markets will be the central theme of discussion at the eleventh annual National Foreign Trade Convention at Boston June 4, 5 and 6, the call for which was issued yesterday by James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation. Mr. Farrell said that present conditions in foreign trade offered inspiration and encouragement and that for the first time there was a real popular interest in foreign trade shown by the American public, down through the colleges and schools.

"The foreign trade of the United States for 1923 averaged more than $26,500,000 for each working day of the year," Mr. Farrell said. "Exports alone averaged $13,880,000 per working day. Imports were over $12,600,000 a day. Almost two-thirds of these exports were the manufactured products of American industry. More than half of the imports were raw materials required in the manufacture of goods for home and foreign consumption. The Department of Commerce report for January shows imports valued at $299,000,000, against exports amounting to $394,000,000.

"These are facts that offer inspiration and encouragement to American foreign traders. They indicate opportunities for further extension of foreign trade and call for renewed energy and determination.

"We must be ready to meet the new situations constantly arising. Europe's increasing productivity emphasizes the importance of intensified American effort in all markets.

"To examine the present situation of our foreign trade and to study its prospects for the future; to provide an opportunity for cooperative consideration of the problems confronting us, and to secure the deliberate judgment of experienced business men on these matters of vital concern to all American people, the National Foreign Trade Council will hold the eleventh annual convention in Boston on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 4, 5 and 6, 1924.

"All Americans engaged in foreign trade or connected with any factor of our international commerce—agriculture, commerce, education, industry, finance or transportation, all chambers of commerce, boards of trade, national and State associations, and other industrial and commercial organizations, as well as firms and individuals, are cordially invited to participate.

"Cooperation in the effort through this convention, representing every section of the country and every factor of international commerce, to make more effective the national service of foreign trade, is earnestly invited."

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Prices moved irregularly on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols ⅛ higher, at 56⅝; British 5 per cent. war loan, ⅛ higher at 100⅝; 4½ per cent. war loan unchanged at 96½.

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 23 centimes higher at 54 francs 30 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan, 1 franc 80 centimes higher at 68 francs 80 centimes.

Exchange on London declined 2 francs 76 centimes to 102 francs 90 centimes per sovereign; the American dollar was quoted at 23 francs 20 centimes, against 23.92 yesterday.

FIRMNESS OF CZECH CROWN.

Industry Has Accommodated Itself to Higher Value of the Currency.

A review of the year 1923 in Czechoslovakia, published in London, states that the outstanding features of 1923 were the stability of the crown and the adjustment of industry to the conditions following the crisis of last Summer. Along with this came the activity of the Government in concluding commercial treaties with other countries.

It is stated that throughout the year the crown remained around 150 to the pound sterling. This high figure hit manufacturers and others, but industry on the whole accommodated itself to the new position, although the crisis is not yet over.

EUROPEAN MARKETS SHOW SOME GAINS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—There was a distinct relaxation in money today, following the pronounced stringency of earlier in the week. The mails held up by the dock strike were arriving, thus releasing funds temporarily held up.

Discount rates declined in sympathy, Treasury bills tendered for today being allotted at an average of 3 7-16 per cent. against 3 17-32 per cent. last week.

Francs were active and continued to recover, the closing rate on Paris being 100.90, against 101.55 yesterday; that on Brussels 115.25, against 115.65.

The sterling market was quiet owing to the American holiday, with dollars concluding at 4.30⅝, against 4.31⅛ previously.

The hitch in the dock strike settlement did not affect the markets, the delay being regarded merely as a matter of tactics. French bonds rallied with exchange.

The metal markets were weak, with tin 4¼ down at £274¼; copper ⅜ lower at £62⅝. Bank Line Ltd., a Government-guaranteed 5 per cent. loan, went well, the applicants receiving about 50 per cent. This issue is the first under the trade facilities acts carrying 5 per cent., previous loans being at 4½ per cent.

Cables from Europe yesterday apparently indicated that the European markets were influenced by the reported conclusions of the Dawes committee. In London consols and the 5 per cent. war loan advanced ⅛ point; in Paris the Government rentes rose nearly ¼ point and the 5 per cent. war loan 1⅛. The price of sterling, measured in French currency, declined 2¾ francs; the American dollar declined from 23.82 francs to 23.20.

ON ITALY'S STOCK MARKET.

The index number of prices of representative shares on the Italian Stock Exchange during 1923, drawn up by Professor Bach, shows that from 72.82 at the end of January the average rose to 85.67 at the end of December. The December average was the highest of any month in the year.

The next highest was 81.63, at the end of November, and the next 81.45, at the end of September. The low monthly average of the year was 72.63, at the end of July.

Sidney Blumenthal & Co. Income.

The annual report of Sidney Blumenthal & Co., Inc., operating the Shelton Looms and the South River Spinning Company, Inc., shows net income of $1,449,915 for 1923, before making provision for depreciation, doubtful accounts and Federal income tax. The net after allowances for depreciation and doubtful accounts, but before provision for Federal income taxes for 1923, was $1,143,803. Preferred stock dividends paid during the year amounted to $154,265.

NEARLY ALL SAVINGS LENT ON MORTGAGES

BIG GAIN MADE LAST YEAR

New Loans of $320,000,000 the Largest in History of Savings Banks, Says Association.

New York State savings banks made new bond and mortgage loans last year of approximately $320,000,000, according to reports received at headquarters of the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York, 110 East Forty-second Street. The number of new loans was 35,300. The savings banks in 1923 lent money secured by first mortgages on all classes of building in larger amounts and in greater volume than in any year in their history.

The net gain in mortgage investments was $225,170,000. The net gain in deposits, including dividends credited, was about $248,000,000. The increase of $225,170,000 represents a gain of 13.9 per cent. compared with an increase for 1922 of 11.8 per cent.

Total mortgage investments amounted to $1,839,988,398 on Jan. 1, or 53 per cent. of the resources. Since 1920, when the savings bank holdings of mortgage loans reached the low point of 47.5 per cent. of resources, savings banks have steadily increased their investments in mortgage loans, along with the increase in volume of building operations. The association points out that not since 1915, or the days of normal building activity, have the savings banks invested so large a percentage of their resources in mortgages.

The percentage of mortgage investments to the savings bank's resources compares as follows over a period of ten years: Jan. 1, 1924, 53 per cent.; 1923, 50.4 per cent.; 1922, 49.4 per cent.; 1921, 47.6 per cent.; 1920 47.5 per cent.; 1919, 49.4 per cent.; 1918, 50.9 per cent.; 1917, 51.2 per cent.; 1916, 52.8 per cent., and 1915, 53.2 per cent.

The average mortgage loan made in 1923 was about $9,000. The total number of all mortgage loans held by savings banks is reported as approximately 214,000, making the average of all loans $8,000.

"These figures prove," says the association, "that the savings banks do not profess to finance the biggest building operations. They are, rather, doing a real service in favoring their depositors and financing individual home owners. To take care of the multitude of small loans is the best kind of service which can be rendered by our mutual savings banks and one which deserves recognition."

The association says that, with building activities promising to continue at the present rate for some time to come, there is every likelihood that 1924 will witness another increase in the volume of savings bank money invested in mortgage loans.

LIVERPOOL'S COTTON WEEK.

QUAKER OATS DIVIDENDS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—The directors of the Quaker Oats Company today declared a special cash dividend of 16½ per cent. on common stock to pay all dividends in arrears for 1921, 1922 and the early part of 1923, and announced that the 12 per cent. annual rate on the common stock would be continued in the future. The quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. on the common stock, payable April 15 to stockholders of record April 1, the same dates applicable to the special dividend, and the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock, the latter payable May 21 to stock of record May 1, also were declared.

The directors stated that the dividend action was made possible because of the liquidation of excess inventories and other working assets of the period of 1918 to 1920 and the favorable business of the last two years.

The company reported a profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31, 1923, of $6,877,214, an increase of $2,015,556 for the year. Dividends on preferred stock for the year amounted to $1,080,000 and on common stock to $1,293,750.

USE OF COPPER INCREASES.

The electrical industries of the United States consumed 800,000,000 pounds of copper in 1923, or approximately one-half of all the copper consumed in the United States last year, according to the results of a survey announced yesterday by the Copper and Brass Research Association. This was a substantial increase over 1922, and is ascribed by the association to the large use of copper in electric light and power lines, telephone and telegraph systems, railroad electrification and the radio. A radio set requires an average of five pounds of copper.

The survey concludes that the increasing use of electricity and electrical equipment indicates a further growth in copper consumption in these industries in the near future to an amount in excess of a billion pounds yearly.

BROOKLYN CITY RAILROAD.

Net Income for Past Six Months Less Than a Year Ago.

Net corporate income of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company for the six months ended Jan. 31 was $1,143,871, compared to $1,180,409 for the same period of the preceding year, according to the company's income statement yesterday.

Net corporate income for January was $154,646, as against $195,339 for January, 1923. Passenger revenue last month was $975,082, while in January, 1923, it was $966,329. For the six months ended Jan. 31 passenger revenue was $6,854,569, against $6,815,583 for the six months ended Jan. 31, 1923. Operating expenses and taxes increased from $757,486 in January, 1923, to $807,862 in January this year, and from $5,544,604 in the six months ended Jan. 31, 1923, to $5,648,858 in the six months ended Jan. 31, 1924.

Adirondack Power Reports Gain.

REDUCED SUPPLY OF COTTON IN EGYPT

Quantity Available This Season Estimated 290,000 Bales Less Than a Year Ago.

The quantity of cotton to be available in Egypt during the 1923-4 season can be placed at approximately 1,380 thousand bales as compared with more than 1,670 thousand bales last year, according to statistics submitted by the American Consul, Ernest L. Ives, at Alexandria. The statistics given herein are expressed in bales of 478 pounds net weight. The Egyptian cotton year begins on Sept. 1.

Exports during the 1922-23 season were 24 per cent. greater than those for the previous season having amounted to 1,480 thousand bales as compared with 1,190 thousand bales the year before. Arrivals on the Alexandria spot market were also greater than the year before, having amounted to 1,390 thousand bales as compared with 1,111 thousand bales the year before. The stocks on hand throughout the country at the end of the season on Aug. 31, 1923, were therefore very small, having amounted to approximately 167 thousand bales which was only 34 per cent. of the stocks on hand at the end of the preceding season.

While 209 thousand bales of cotton were estimated as being available in the interior of Egypt on Sept. 1, 1922, reports from all sources concur in the statement that there was very little cotton held outside of Alexandria on Sept. 1, 1923.

Deny Dumping Cotton on Market.

Reports that the recent slump in cotton prices was due in part to heavy selling by the North Carolina Cotton Growers' Association were declared to be without basis by U. B. Blalock, General Manager of the association, yesterday. Mr. Blalock said the association was adhering to its policy of orderly sales and was not dumping cotton on the market.

WOOL MARKET STEADY.

Finished Goods, However, Still Fail to Rise.

BOSTON, Feb. 22.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

"The market has shown little change during the past week. Prices are steady, with certain specialties suited to the woolen trade appreciating slowly. Further openings of fancy worsteds by the American Woolen Company this week at substantially last year's prices have not helped the market any as yet, although everything in raw materials is very firm. There is little new from the West.

"The foreign markets are generally steady both in the primary markets and in England and on the continent. France has placed an embargo against the export of raw wool and cotton and wastes, chiefly because of the adverse exchange situation."

WHEAT GAINS AT LIVERPOOL

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—All American grain markets were closed, with no interest taken in the grain trade. Winnipeg was open and advanced ⅛ cent, with the close on May wheat $1.04⅝ and July $1.06.

Oats were 48⅝ c for May, a gain of ¼ cent.

Liverpool wheat prices closed ¼ to ⅜d. higher, with the continued idleness of dock workers the main feature. There was good buying of wheat in Winnipeg by exporters early in the day and selling by Chicago houses and the exporters. Sellers of offers were also buying late in the day, after selling against them early.

The general advance in the non-ferrous metal market continued during the last week, with copper, lead, antimony and tin all moving into new high ground, says the Engineering and Mining Journal-Press in its issue of today. Spring bookings by manufacturers and fabricators are reported to be larger than was expected, and "no lull in demand is yet apparent." With regard to the continued advance in copper from the preceding week, the Journal-Press says:

"The peak seems to have been reached and passed for the time being. The undertone is distinctly firm, however, and with most producers well sold up it is unlikely that there will be much pressure on the market. The export market has been satisfactory all week."

DENY MEAT MERGER CUTS COMPETITION

TRADE RIVALRY CONTINUES

The growth of meat chain stores in the East has been by leaps and bounds, according to admissions of owners at the resumption yesterday of the Government hearing in the Hotel Commodore, to determine whether the acquisition of Morris & Co. by Armour & Co. in 1923 has created a monopoly, or lessened competition in the meat packing industry. All the witnesses denied that the merger had any such effect, asserting that business had never been on a more brisk scale competitively.

Those who testified were H. C. Bohack, President of H. C. Bohack & Co., which operates 156 meat selling stores in Brooklyn and Queens; Ernest Haverly, secretary and treasurer of the same company; James Falls, general manager of the meat department of the United States Stores Company, which operates 700 meat stores in the country, 200 of them in the metropolitan district; S. W. Kagan, President of S. W. Kagan Company, operators of twenty-eight meat chain stores in Jersey City, and Leopold Oppenheim, who owns more than fifty meat chain stores in this city.

Mr. Bohack began business thirty years ago with one store. His meat business now has a turnover of $6,000,000 a year. Mr. Falls, before going with the United States Stores Company, several years ago, had twelve chain stores of his own. Mr. Kagan began business in 1892 with one store. His business now is $1,500,000 a year. Mr. Oppenheim started thirty years ago as a partner in a meat store. His stores now do an annual business of $2,000,000.

Another witness was Thomas B. Glasscock, who raises cattle on 8,500 acres in Upperville, Va. He finds an active market to sell in, saying the merger in no way has affected the selling end of the business.

Other testimony tending to show that no ill-effects in the industry followed the merger was given by Bernard Levy, President of the Bronx Provision Corporation, this city, which has seven stores and does $3,000,000 business annually; Cyrus Russell, general manager of Chieffetz & Greenberg, slaughterers, Brooklyn; C. H. Fraederich, wholesale meat dealer, Brooklyn; August Miller of Miller Brothers, Jersey City, and Nathan Eisler of 640 Riverside Drive, an executive of four big wholesale dealers in the city.

An interested spectator at the hearing was Colonel Nelson Morris, Chairman of the board of Morris & Co. The hearing is the third at which the Armour interests, represented by counsel headed by Alfred S. Austrian, are endeavoring to show cause why they should not desist from operating under the merger. The Government concluded its side recently after five hearings. Walter L. Fisher heads the Government counsel. The action was brought by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The hearing, at which Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Chester Morrill is examiner, will be concluded today.

Special to The New York Times.

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was considerably in excess of last week but was recorded in somewhat smaller volume than a year ago for the same week.

Canadian Maintenance Men Ask for a Wage Parley.

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—The Railway Association of Canada today received from the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Men a request for a conference on wages and working conditions. The request came from the brotherhood headquarters at Detroit, Mich.

Maintenance of way men in Canada recently took a vote on whether to strike in enforcement of a demand for five cents an hour increase for all grades of labor. The ballot, according to F. H. Fljozdal, President of the brotherhood, was "overwhelmingly in favor of a stoppage of work if necessary."

Previously a board of arbitration had pronounced in favor of a two-cent an hour increase for all maintenance of way men whose rate was less than 40 cents an hour. This award the railways declined to put into effect.

FOR MORE GRAIN STORAGE.

The Washburn-Crosby Company of Minneapolis announced through its local offices yesterday that it has begun construction in Kansas City of an additional grain elevator of 750,000 bushels capacity adjoining its mill and 500,000-bushel elevator there. The new elevator, it was said, will more than double the company's present elevator capacity in Kansas City and greatly facilitate the handling of Southwestern wheat.

Kansas City is the largest Winter wheat market in the world, and with the new elevator the city will have total elevator storage capacity of more than 28,000,000 bushels, the fourth largest in the country, according to the company.

Big Georgia Hotel Burned.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 22.—The Valdes Hotel, Valdosta's largest hostelry, was almost completely destroyed by fire early today. Although every room in the hotel was occupied, no one was reported injured. The damage is estimated at $125,000.

SAYS PROHIBITION BELIES OUR HISTORY

CITES FOUNDERS OF NATION

Traces Our Independence to Fight of James Otis on General Search for Liquor.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 22.—Horace Franklin Nixon of Woodbury, who was elected President of the Sons of Revolution of New Jersey at the annual meeting of the society here today, attacked prohibition in his opening address as a reversal of the principles on which the United States was founded. Mr. Nixon quoted Stephen Leacock, Nicholas Murray Butler, Dean Inge of London, Hudson Maxim and others in his support.

Speaking of the search of premises without specific warrant, Mr. Nixon declared that "the real starting point of American independence was in 1761 at Boston, when a case was being tried over the searching of premises—not alone private dwellings—under general search warrants for smuggled liquor."

James Otis opposed such search without warrants specifically describing the place to be searched or the person or thing to be seized. "The writ prayed for in this petition, being general, is illegal," said Otis. "It is a power that places the liberty of every man in the hands of every petty officer. I will to my dying day oppose with all the powers and faculties God has given me all such instruments of slavery, on the one hand, and villainy on the other, as this writ of assistance is."

"American independence was then and there born," declared Mr. Nixon. "Washington and Jefferson and Adams knew far better what should be put into our Constitution and into our Bill of Rights than the Congress which adopted the Eighteenth Amendment and passed the Volstead act, Washington and Jefferson and Adams used the Bible and the history and experience of nations as precedents.

"Congress in adopting the Eighteenth Amendment was influenced by a lot of fanatics and professional lobbyists, known as the Anti-Saloon League, largely financed by the Gasoline Trust. Let the descendants of the founders of our country now lead in rooting out of our Constitution this incongruous thing called the Eighteenth Amendment."

The meeting today was in the old barracks and more than 150 men, most of them prominent in New Jersey life, attended.

A feature of the day was the march of the society, preceded by its fourteen flags, to the First Methodist Episcopal Church for religious services. This was one of the four places of religious worship at Trenton during the Revolutionary War. The service was directed by the pastor, the Rev. B. F. Rhodes.

The following officers, besides President Nixon, were elected today: Vice President, State Controller Newton A. K. Bugbee, Trenton; Secretary, James S. Messler, Trenton; Treasurer, James R. Barber, Trenton; Registrar, Edwin Robert Walker; Chancellor, J. Forman Sinnickson, Salem; Surgeon, Dr. William A. Clark, Trenton, and Librarian, Colonel William Libbey, professor at Princeton University.

Members of the Board of Managers were elected as follows: Robert C. Belleville, William E. Green, George A. Katzenbach, Trenton; Alexander P. Gest, Louis Irving Reichner, Philadelphia; Louis B. Moffett, William G. Pancoast of Woodbury; John Lenord Merrill of East Orange, and State Treasurer William T. Read of Camden.

TO SEE QUEENS PROSECUTOR

Victim of Bandits Threatens to Call Mass Meetings.

John De Lackner, proprietor of the Lackner Paper Box Company, Astoria, will discuss his circular attacking the police in a conference today with District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe of Queens. He said at his home in Flushing yesterday that a message had been left at his office to visit Mr. Newcombe.

The circulars, which were distributed Thursday, disparaged the investigation being made by the police and the District Attorney's office into the attempt made by two men to rob De Lackner of $1,500 on Dec. 22 at his plant, 308 Seventh Avenue, Astoria. John O'Brien, under arrest on a charge of being one of the hold-up men, is undergoing an examination into his sanity. The other man has not been found.

"If O'Brien is declared insane, and so cannot help to clear up this case, I will immediately take steps to hold mass meetings in Flushing and Long Island City," said De Lackner. "I am going to get after the county officials and stir them up, so that they will find out who the other bandit was and who drove him away in a taxicab."

FIRE IN EAST SIDE THEATRE.

Fire in the Novelty Moving Picture Theatre, at 214 Bowery, gave firemen an hour's hard work early yesterday. Dense smoke enveloped the neighborhood, and several families and scores of lodgers in rooming houses near by were driven to the streets.

Shortly after the firemen entered the theatre the metal ceiling collapsed, but no one was injured. The flames started in the cellar from an undetermined cause.

Chauffeur Held After Woman Dies.

Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman held Frank Adams, 24 years old, a chauffeur of 418 East 152d Street, the Bronx, in $2,500 bail for the Homicide Court in Yorkville Court yesterday on a charge of homicide in connection with the death of Mrs. Beatrice Van Norman, 50 years old, of 125 East Fifteenth Street. Mrs. Van Norman was struck by a John Wanamaker delivery truck, operated by Adams, at Third Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street early Thursday evening and was fatally injured.

Lured to Roof and Robbed.

Fred Guthrie, a machinist, of 15 Cranberry Street, Brooklyn, was held in $5,000 bail by Magistrate Albert H. Vitale in Essex Market Court yesterday on a charge of robbery. The complainant was James De Madlio, porter in the plant of Robert Hoe & Co., 504 Grand Street. He says Guthrie, who was repairing an elevator in the plant, coaxed him to the roof and then beat him with a revolver and robbed him of $9. Guthrie denied the story told by De Madlio.

Home Rule Committee Meets Today.

A special committee on home rule, appointed by Chairman Samuel S. Koenig of the Republican County Committee, will meet today at the Republican County headquarters to submit recommendations for enabling legislation to carry out the provisions of the home rule amendment. Ward V. Tolbert is Chairman of the committee, which will meet with the Research Bureau of the County Committee, which also has been studying the home rule question.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 22.—Thomas A. Edison will leave here Monday for his annual two months' stay at his Southern home at Fort Myers, Fla. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Edison and several relatives.

25 INSANE SOLDIERS ESCAPE WRECK PERIL

Car Jumps Tracks, but All Respond to Discipline and March Off Uninjured.

Twenty-five insane veterans of the World War escaped injury yesterday at noon when the Long Island Railroad passenger train on which they were traveling from Long Island City to Kings Park Hospital was wrecked at Huntington, L. I. Although the men were in the forward car, which jumped the tracks when the locomotive of their train crashed into the rear end of a freight train on a siding, they were apparently less shaken up than the passengers of other coaches which did not leave the rails.

At Huntington it was reported that eighteen men and women were treated for bruises and other injuries not regarded as serious. The ajured and the veterans were able to continue their trip.

In the emergency the ex-service men "almost normally responded to discipline," according to Dr. Charles S. Parker, Acting Superintendent of the Kings Park Hospital. Dr. Parker said that all the men had been carefully examined on arrival at the hospital and that not one showed a trace of injury. It was possible, he said, that the effect of injuries might develop later, but that such a possibility seemed remote.

The men were being transferred from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island to Kings Park Hospital, where mild mental cases of veterans are being concentrated. Four attendants, headed by William McNamara and a Ward's Island hospital doctor were in charge of the patients.

When the engine crashed into the rear of the freight train, demolished the caboose and partly smashed the last freight car, setting both on fire, the flames began to spread very rapidly. The Fire Department of Huntington kept the flames from spreading.

While the firemen were fighting the fire in the two cars the insane soldiers were quickly lined up in the aisle of their car, and in military fashion ordered to leave the coach, which had come to a stop in a leaning position. They were marched around and away from the wreck. A train leaving Kings Park a few minutes later picked up the soldiers and other passengers at Huntington. The wrecked passenger train was due in Kings Park at 12:30. It arrived there an hour late. It was in charge of Conductor L. B. Wheeler and Engineer Walter Reid.

The wreck was caused by an open switch. The freight train was in charge of Conductor Harold Bateman and Engineer William Brower. They said the switch was closed after the freight train entered the siding to give the passenger train a clear track. The switchman reported to the police that he had seen children playing near the switch. An investigation for the Long Island Railroad was started by Assistant Superintendent E. D. Kessler. The main line at Huntington was blocked for five hours.

Hangs Himself in Railroad Coach.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 22.—The body of Ellery Irving Redfield, 35 years old, of Newark, N. Y., was found hanging by a bell cord in the washroom of a New York Central coach in the yards near Chicago Street today. A note in the dead man's overcoat pocket indicated he had been despondent.

ADVERTISING is SELLING

That Is Why The New Kind Of Advertising Agency Must Know As Much About Merchandising And Selling As About Advertising.

Advertising—that is, filling publication space with effective pictures and winning words—is only a very small part of the generic problem of sales.

Unless a product's advertising is produced by an agency which knows by experience—never guesses by theory—just what are the problems of selling, merchandising and distribution, the advertising appropriation will be worth anywhere from fifty cents to zero on the dollar.

Is it lese-majesty to say that advertising practise and procedure can be bettered very considerably,—made more scientific in its work to make it more certain in results? If so—then so be it.

Creske-Everett accepts as its job as an advertising agency, that it must know and help solve the problems of selling and merchandising as related to advertising.

Creske-Everett is made up of men who know by experience how to perceive selling through the eyes of the sales manager and his salesmen; through the eyes of the advertising manager and his staff; through the eyes of the dealer and his clerks; never forgetting the consumers and their needs and desires.

Creske-Everett seeks advertising accounts with sales and merchandising problems to work on. Are you such an account?

NUMBER FIFTEEN NEW YORK FEBRUARY 1924

RALPH WALDO EMERSON

"No truth so trivial today but it may be sublime tomorrow, in the light of new ideas"

"They won't understand"

"Natives in the Fiji Islands are dying out, for they no longer go to war. . . . This nation, too, will deteriorate rapidly, if we continue to live free from real effort. . . . Human beings have come up from mental and physical depths by desperate striving and constant struggle. When they 'take things easy,' they lose energy and value."

A FAMOUS student of the American press uttered a great fundamental when he observed:

He might well have added: "And so does the average advertiser."

Of these, 20 merely asserted quality. Yet the public was expected to understand, to believe and buy.

Only 21 of the 70 gave and explained facts in that clear, connected way which constitutes information. And these 21 were all by notably successful advertisers.

§

THE public likes to know. The public can be made to understand. But it needs the helping-hand of simple information, simply presented.

Because so many businessmen fail to appreciate this, so many absorbing advertising campaigns have remained unwritten.

For example, gelatine. Until this year, gelatine, according to the advertising pages, has been simply the foundation of many delectable dishes. But this year, one gelatine advertiser is also proclaiming the health value of gelatine. The facts as they came from the research chemist, made a formidable document. The facts, as they are being interpreted by the advertising agency*, make an absorbing story. And the sales of Knox Gelatine are increasing at an unprecedented rate.

§

FEDERAL attends, first, to the facts; second, to making those facts interrupting.

Federal never worries about the complexity of subject matter. It does worry over the simplicity of presentation-manner.

Careful is Federal to be brief. More careful to be interesting. But most careful to supply the public with information enough to make it understand and buy.

§

"THE INTERRUPTING IDEA" is also issued as an independent publication, printed on fine paper. Executives who wish to receive it regularly are invited to write to the FEDERAL ADVERTISING AGENCY, Six East Thirty-ninth Street, New York.

THREE WORDS THAT MAY ADD YEARS TO YOUR LIFE

YOU ARE the average man or woman. Life is sweet to you. You want to live a long and healthy life. You want to be free from sickness and suffering.

Get Yourself Examined

Don't worry about your health. Don't watch yourself live. But on the other hand, don't bury your head in the sand like an ostrich and simply "hope for the best".

Get Yourself Examined

Over 750,000 people will die in the United States this year from some form of preventable disease. Who will they be? Certainly not many of the men and women who arrange now for a thorough examination of their whole life and body either by their family physician or by the Life Extension Institute.

Get Yourself Examined

The Life Extension Institute was organized to provide periodic physical examinations of the whole body for the purpose of discovering any unfavorable factors which may be causing a present lowered condition of health or threatening future health.

Get Yourself Examined

The Institute's services are available for men, women and children and are appropriate for all classes. Write, telephone or visit the Institute for further information and for its free booklets "How to Live Long" and "Neglect of the Human Machine".

LIFE EXTENSION SERVICE

The Institute's service includes a critical examination of the whole body, confidential reports, suggestions as to any needed form of medical treatment, education in all phases of correct personal hygiene and other valuable privileges designed to help protect you from disease and upbuild your health and vitality. The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body and submits a report which, if some form of medical attention is needed, assists your physician in making the final diagnosis and applying the necessary treatment for the correction of your physical defects. There is a separate department for women at the Head Office. Outside of New York the Institute has examining physicians in every leading city and town in the United States and Canada. 300,000 men and women have already been examined by the Institute. The Institute was organized in 1913 by a group of nationally known physicians, scientists, educators and public-spirited business men. Two-thirds of its common stock is held in trust for philanthropic purposes. Back of the scientific policy of the Institute is its Hygiene Reference Board of 100 leaders in scientific and public health work.
